6 Navy Fliers Killed as Ship Falls in Ocean In War Games

Mass Flight Due In Honolulu Today

Toll of Operations in Pacific Now Stands at 8 Dead.

By the Associated Press.

Honolulu, May 23.—Minus a big bomber which plunged into the sea and killed six men during spectacular night operations, 40 naval patrol planes presumably were heading back here today from Midway Island, goal of their unprecedented mass flight, May 9.

Although the fleet command lifted its news censorship this morning only long enough to disclose the loss of the plane and announce the sky armada had been ordered to fly back to Pearl Harbor, it was learned the planes might be expected here tomorrow.

Presumably the 40 planes remaining based at Midway, 1,323 miles from here, left there today. They were destined to stop temporarily at French Frigate Shoals, 100 miles east of the little island off which the tragedy occurred.

The ill-fated bomber was the 6P7. It fell into the sea Tuesday night 50 miles south of Midway while taking part in battle operations. The six men aboard apparently died without ever realizing what happened.

Fleet Ordered Back.

Rigid secrecy veiling the extensive operations involving scores of battle planes and fighting surface craft was lifted quickly at the first hint of the tragedy. Warships, which had been operating in complete darkness turned on their powerful searchlights in a hunt for the fallen craft, but it never was seen.

Officers then ordered the Midway planes back to their Pearl Harbor base.

At the same time naval authorities here disclosed the flagship Pennsylvania would move into Pearl Harbor Saturday morning, leading the other 165 ships taking part in the far-flung operations.

Two men previously died in a plane crash and a destroyer collision, bringing maneuver casualties to eight.

The 6P7 apparently crashed with terrific force in full flight while circling about a disabled sister plane, the 6P10, which had been forced down on the ocean service.

Find Battered Tank.

The only wreckage found by the cruiser Northampton, the first surface vessel to reach the crash scene, was a battered gasoline tank, a twisted wing tip and seat cushion.

Those who died in the crash were:

Lieut. Harry A. Branderburger, of Belleville, Ill.

Officers of the Pennsylvania said that news of the crash was withheld until a 24-hour search by air and surface craft had convinced them the six men had been killed and their bodies lost.

The last word from the 6P7 was at 9 p. m. Tuesday, when it notified the destroyer Breese and the cruiser Raleigh it was circling above the 6P10, which had been forced down.

Belief was expressed by officers that after sending the message the 6P7 went into a spin while flying close to the water and dived into the ocean.

In response to the call for help, the Breese and Raleigh steamed to the position given and took the 6P10 in tow at 10:30 p. m. Word that the 6P7 was missing was

Col. Williams Found Guilty; Faces Ouster

Court-Martial Convicts D. S. C. Man of Getting Loan From Concern.

An Army court-martial yesterday found Col. Alexander E. Williams, former assistant quartermaster general, guilty of "soliciting and obtaining a loan of $2,500," in connection with War Department contracts, from the representative of an automobile tube concern, and sentenced him to be dismissed from the military service.

Col. Williams, 59-year-old one-time brigadier, who holds the Distinguished Service Cross and the Silver Star for gallantry in action, also was found guilty of giving false testimony by denying the loan before a House committee.

After the conviction, the War Department issued a statement saying that "the members of the court unanimously joined in a recommendation for clemency on account of the long and faithful services of Col. Williams."

The findings of the court-martial, in a secret trial conducted at the War College, will go to the judge advocate general for review, then to a board of review. After which, Secretary of War Dern will send it to President Roosevelt.

The official announcement of the War Department, issued yesterday, said:

"The War Department announced today that a general court-martial had reached findings of guilty of two of the three specifications of which Col. Alexander E. Williams, Quartermaster Corps of the Army, had been on trial for the last three days at the Army War College and had sentenced the officer to be dismissed from the military service. The members of the court unanimously joined in a recommendation of clemency on account of the long and faithful service of Col. Williams.

"The specific allegations of which Col. Williams was found guilty were the soliciting and obtaining of a loan of $2,500 when he was a brigadier general and assistant to the quartermaster general in charge of the transportation division of the quaratermaster general's office in November, 1933, from the representative of an automobile tube concern whom he knew was attempting to interest him favorably in this tube in order to secure War Department contracts, and also of giving false testimony by denying the loan before sub-committee No. 3 of the Committee on Military Affairs of the House, December 10, 1934.

"He was acquitted of a specification alleging the receipt of another sum of $2,000 of which there was no documentary evidence.

"The charges were preferred as the result of a very thorough in-

England Calls 20,000 Youths To Air Force

Recruiting Drive Opens With Patriotic Appeal to Protect Empire.

By the United Press.

London, May 23.—Great Britain, aroused by Europe's re-armament, called on the youth of the nation today to join the Royal Air Force and keep the British Isles impregnable.

The appeal came less than 24 hours after government spokesmen had bluntly told both houses of Parliament the campaign for aerial supremacy was on, and that Britain was determined to seize aerial supremacy for her own security as she had a century ago achieved rule of the seas.

The opening gun in this campaign to add 20,000 men to the air corps and bring the home aerial defenses to 1,500 first-line war planes was fired by the Marquess of Londonderry, air secretary.

"Recruiting begins at once," he announced. "I appeal to the youth of the nation to join the Royal Air Force."

The famous war-time slogan, "Kitchener needs you!" already is being paraphrased to, "Londonderry calls you!" as the rallying point in the mammoth air expansion.

"Our action does not reflect a policy of competition with other

2-Year NRA Or a Strike, Green Warns

By the United Press.

Madison Square Garden, New York, May 23.—A general labor strike was threatened here tonight by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, if Congress refuses to grant the current demands of labor.

He spoke before 20,000 trade-unionists assembled at Madison Square Garden to demand a two-year extension of the NRA.

"If Congress fails us," he thundered, "we have our economic strength."

"If it comes to the point, we can mobilize our strength and refuse to work until we get our rights," Green threatened.

The throng of assembled workers roared in affirmation.

Demand 30-Hour Week.

"And that's no idle threat," Green asserted in a sober tone. "I mean it."

Adoption of the Wagner labor disputes bill and the 30-hour week work measure were also demanded by the protest meeting.

Green made the strike threat in departure of his prepared speech, and the declaration caused a ripple of intense excitement to spread through the crowd of men and women.

Madison Square Garden was jammed. Around loud-speakers in the streets outside milled a crowd that, union officials said, numbered 50,000.

In strong language, labor leaders thumbed down the proposed extension of the NRA for ten months.

"We would rather see it completely abandoned," Green asserted.

The Wagner labor dispute bill and the Black 30-hour work measure enthusiastically were indorsed.

A current of protest against the new relief wage scale also was voiced by the speakers.

"Our people will not continue to ask for bread and receive stone," shouted John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, as tears coursed down his cheeks.

"Bulwark Against Reds."

Other speakers were Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and member of the National Industry Recovery Board; David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, and Max Zaritsky, president of the Cap and Millinery Workers International Union.

"The A. F. of L. is the only bulwark between communism and revolution," Joseph P. Ryan, president of the Central Trades and Labor Council, said, introducing Green.

"The protest of labor is Nation-wide," said Green, noting that similar meetings were being held in other cities.

"Labor holds that the national recovery act must not and can not be either abandoned or terminated until the NRA has completed its work, finished its task and returned the millions who are still unemployed back to work."

Hits at Abandonment.

"What other remedies are offered by those who seek abandonment of the national recovery act and who oppose its re-enactment into law?

"It is unthinkable that we should stop now, retrace our steps, abandon the national recovery act, turn back the only practical remedy yet available and thus far offered, the only remedy that has been utilized and is available for the relief of unemployment."

"Labor can not and will not, un-

Coughlin's Talks Hysterical, Cardinal O'Connell Asserts

Shouting and Screaming Methods Deplored by Boston Archbishop.

By the United Press.

Boston, May 23.—A new and pointed attack on the methods of Father Charles E. Coughlin, of Detroit, was voiced today by Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston and dean of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in America.

Addressing a convention of Catholic Foresters, the cardinal, whose earlier criticisms of the radio priest prompted Father Coughlin to devote one of his Sunday broadcasts to a direct response, said:

"All those disturbing voices, the shouting, yelling and screaming, are so unbecoming to anyone who occupies the place of a teacher in Christ's church that even the quality of their voices betrays them. They are hysterical. And no priest of God, no teacher of the Christian Church, ever permits himself to become hysterical. The matter is too serious."

Cardinal O'Connell spoke nearly 45 minutes, expounding what he considered the proper sphere of duties of Catholic priests and bishops, and while he did not mention Father Coughlin by name the inference was obvious. In addition to assailing the tone of the radio priest's talks, he seemed to raise a question of the propriety of his campaigning in dioceses other than his own when he said:

"There are a million ways in which any citizen of America can voice his views, but it ought to be done with self-respecting honesty, and, above all, with the proper respect due to superiors. That is the underlying principle of Christian conduct. Otherwise, you have good reason to think that all the pretense of having a superior knowl-

Night Hearings Called to Speed NRA Extension

By Felix Bruner.

With labor threatening a general strike, with business concerns in many instances declining to make long-term commitments, and with enforcement of codes becoming demoralized, Congress and Administration officials were racing against time yesterday in their effort to solve the tangled problem involved in the proposal to extend NRA.

In a mass meeting at New York yesterday William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, told 50,000 workers that unless NRA is extended for two years and other labor legislation is enacted American workers will lay down their tools.

Green expected to hurry back to Washington, where he has been called to testify before the House Ways and Means Committee today. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, first head of NRA, also has been called. In an effort to save time, Chairman Doughton announced night sessions would be held. The present recovery act will expire three weeks from Sunday.

The committee is not expected, however, to be ready to report until some time next week. Chairman

Steel Men List Aims of Labor As Chief Peril

Wagner Bill, Closed Shop, 30-Hour Week Plan, Lashed by Grace.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 23.—Cheers for recovery and tears because of Government and labor union action mingled today as the Nation's steel industry leaders gathered at the forty-fourth general session of the American Iron & Steel Institute.

An attack on the closed shop and "vicious" Government legislation was led by Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation and head of the institute.

Cheer leader for recovery and unbridled optimism was Charles M. Schwab, chairman of Bethlehem and former institute president.

"Business is ready to go forward," declared Grace.

But, he added, "it is being halted by undue emphasis on reform, unsound, biased and perhaps even unconstitutional legislative proposals, political maneuvering, unrestrained public expenditures, currency tinkering and increasing tax burdens."

The institute president brought the labor issue forcefully to the front with the statement:

"We stand squarely for the open shop."

T. M. Grindler, chairman and president of the Republic Steel Corporation, lashed the Wagner labor relations bill.

"It was enacted upon the insistence of, and for the exclusive benefit of, the American Federation of Labor, and the one and only purpose behind it is to clamp the yoke of the closed shop upon millions of free American citizens," he said.

Grace supported the steel industry's employe representation

Payment in 18-Month Installments To Be Asked Today by Reynolds

Doom of Veterans' Hopes This Session Seen Generally, But Leaders Cling to Chance for Clark, Harrison Plans.

By Robert C. Albright.

The Patman bill vanished into the limbo of all other cash bonus proposals yesterday, blown over the brink by an unexpectedly vigorous Senate sustainer of the President's flat veto.

A 54-to-40 Senate ballot fell short by nine votes of the number needed to override the President's strong "I forbid."

The Administration's most enthusiastic expectations were fulfilled as three Senators, who had previously voted for bonus payment, switched at the last minute to the support of their leaders.

The vote dealt an effective blow to all bonus legislation this session, although efforts to rally veterans' strength behind a half-dozen new bonus bills were started at once.

Heading the list of new bonus measures is the tri-cornered Clark compromise, giving the President a choice of paying off veterans through either the Vinson or Patman methods, from a works fund allotment, or from a combination of the three.

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, served notice on the Senate he will move to suspend the rules and adopt the compromise as an amendment to the pending Navy appropriations bill. Later, he tentatively decided to defer this action until the legislative appropriation bill is before the Senate.

Later yesterday four other bills were offered in House and Senate, all giving the President authority to pay the bonus out of the $4,880,000,000 works fund. Within the week the old Vinson bill, probably with new tax features, may be revived in the House, and today Senator Reynolds (Democrat), North Carolina, will offer a resolution to pay off the bonus in installments over an 18-month period.

Many See Bonus Doomed.

The Clark compromise is not the only bill that may be offered as a rider on the legislative appropriations bill. There was talk last night of reviving the inflationary Patman bill on that measure. There was a dual strategy in this. The legislative bill appropriates salaries for Senators and Representatives. Congress, it was argued, would not be likely to sustain a veto on that measure.

But despite these outcroppings of renewed veterans' activity, yesterday's decisive Senate rejection of the Patman measure threw a damper on bonus hopes. Some Senate leaders sensed in this action the doom of all bonus legislation this session.

The only bill, it was said, that has a chance of White House approval is the Harrison compromise, partially paying off the bonus on a present value basis. The Senate turned thumbs down on this when it was offered the first time. But there was reason to believe Senate leaders may revise it a bit and offer it again, if there is any evidence of cooperation from the extreme bonus bloc. Veterans' organizations to date have refused to have anything to do with it.

Debate Lasts Five Hours.

Packed Senate galleries, well sprinkled with veterans, with an overflow bulging corridor doors and lining the walls, hung on every word of the five hours' debate preceding the roll call. Regularly the gavel descended, warning enthusiasts against demonstrations.

Then came the vote. You could have heard a pin drop in the chamber as 28 Democrats cast their ballots with 12 Republicans to block the overrider. Patmanites managed to muster only 41 Democrats, 11 Republicans, 1 Farmer-Laborite and 1 Progressive, for a total of 54, one shy of the strength they polled on the last Patman test—sharp contrast with the 322 to 98 count by which the President was overridden Wednesday in the House.

There were many surprises when the reading clerk ran down the list of names. Two came when Senators Coolidge, of Massachusetts, and Pittman, of Nevada (Democrats), switched to the support of the President. Senator Pope (Democrat), Idaho, already had announced he would switch to sustain the veto. He did.

Another shock came when Dennis Chavez, newly appointed Senator from New Mexico, cast his vote with the Administration. The Patmanites had claimed him. Three other Senators who had not voted in the last test, O'Mahoney, of Wyoming; Gore, of Oklahoma, and Tydings, of Maryland, cast ballots for the veto. Two others who were previously absent, Senators Nye, North Dakota (Republican), and Reynolds, North Carolina (Democrat), voted to override.

Lobby Drive Fails.

The American Legion's drive on 12 picked Senators to assure their vote for the Patman bill failed dismally. Six of these originally voted for the inflationary measure, but three of the six changed yesterday to sustain the veto. Not one of the remaining six who originally voted against the Patman bill were won over yesterday.

Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, who drafted the bill which rode triumphantly through Congress, only to meet with a presidential veto, backed up by the Senate, rather gloomily re-

American Messiahs

By The Unofficial Observer

Author of "The New Dealers"

—Installment VI—Tarzan of the EPIC (Part 2)—

This is the sixth installment of "The American Messiahs," by the Unofficial Observer, author of the "New Dealers," which appeared last year. While "The American Messiahs" does not necessarily reflect the editorial opinion of The Post, it is commended as a most candid discussion of the mavericks, the reformers and the radio spellbinders now booming their way across the American political stage.

As Technocracy waned as a "discredited" political force, its place was quickly taken by the Utopian movement, centering in Southern California like so many other of the "joiner" groups.

The U. S. A. (Utopian Society of America, to you!) is, in fact, a direct descendant of Technocracy. About Christmas, 1932, during the depths of the interregnum, an organizer of retail sales for oil companies named Merritt J. Kennedy, of Los Angeles, heard Manchester Boddy, the editor of the Los Angeles Daily Illustrated News, deliver a lecture on Technocracy. Boddy had been publishing a series of articles on the subject and had even gone so far as to predict that the New Deal would apply Technocratic principles to the solution of the economic crisis. It did not seem so unreasonable at the time. Scott was still somewhat under control and the President-elect was far from unsympathetic, although he shrewdly suspected that after the Nation's experience with "The Great Engineer" anything which proposed government by technicians would be doubtful politics.

At any rate, Kennedy was moved by Boddy's lecture and hurried out to buy all the Technocratic literature he could find. He also interested his friend and neighbor, Eugene J. Reed, a former investment banker of Denver, itself a strong center of Technocratic sentiment. Together they attended Technocratic meetings and hoped until the late spring of 1933 that F. D. R. was going to put their principles into effect. As the NRA took shape they sadly decided that they had been guilty of wishful thinking and began to consider ways of organizing a movement. Kennedy realized that Technocracy was still only a re-

Wife of Flier Killed in Crash Told of Fear in Letter Home

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 23.—Mrs. Edna Henning, mother-in-law of Lieut. Charles Joseph Skelly, one of six men killed in a Navy seaplane crash in the Pacific Ocean, today said that in her last letter home her daughter viewed the flight with apprehension and asked her to "say a prayer for Charles' safety."

"She said," continued Mrs. Henning, "that he was going out on a maneuver and it was going to be quite a flight—to some little coral island in the Pacific, half way between Hawaii and China. He had never gone on such a long flight before and she was afraid.

"She always had been a little worried, anyway, and always asked me to send up a prayer. Charles had a cousin, an air-mail pilot, who was killed about three years ago in a flying accident in California. He left several little children, and, of course, my daughter, has three of her own. They are Charles, 6; Jean, 4, and Robert, 2.

"She's in Honolulu. I got her last letter only four days ago. She said they were expecting a transfer back to the United States in June—they didn't know where, exactly, but they hoped Annapolis, Md."

As she spoke, Mrs. Henning was sitting beside the telephone in the home of a comforting neighbor, awaiting some word from her daughter. Up to that time, she said, she had received none. Her news of the tragedy had come from local sources.

Her daughter was Miss Miriam Glenville, a graduate of the Western High School. She met her husband when he was a midshipman at the Naval Academy, at Annapolis, and they were married at Seattle, in 1928, a little more than a year after his graduation.

They and their children had been in Honolulu about two years.

Mrs. Lyddane and Four Face Plot Trial at Rockville June 4

Blonde Mrs. Anne Lyddane, comely member of an old Rockville family, and the four men who are charged with her with conspiring to murder her husband, Francis, and Mrs. Arthur Beall, of Darnestown, will go on trial June 4, Judge Charles E. Woodward, of the Montgomery County Circuit Court, ruled yesterday.

When the five defendants are brought into court, Judge Woodward and Associate Judge Arthur D. Willard will be on the bench, and possibly Judge Hammond Urner, it was announced last night. The jury will be chosen from a panel of 25, called during the March term of Circuit Court.

Mrs. Lyddane's four codefendants, John H. Carnell, John M. Boland, Harry E. Thomas and Edwin J. Davis, were indicted with her Wednesday by the grand jury. All appeared before Judge Woodward and entered pleas of not guilty.

Under bond of $10,000, fixed at a preliminary hearing before Police Court Judge Donald A. DeLashmutt, Mrs. Lyddane did not appear in court yesterday.

The court set bonds for Boland and Davis, both of Washington, at $5,000 each, and both were remanded to jail pending the securing of bail. Bonds for Thomas and Carnell were fixed at $1,000 each following a conference between Judge Woodward and their attorneys. Both secured bail and were released.

Life pursued its usual course yesterday for Mrs. Lyddane and the husband she is charged with plotting to kill. Neither is working, and Mrs. Lyddane went about her housewifely tasks.

Friends spoke to her pleasantly on Rockville's streets and she passed the time of day as though she were not faced with the conspiracy trial.

Lyddane himself went fishing late Wednesday night and did not return until yesterday morning shortly after dawn.

Way Is Cleared For Early Vote On AAA Bills

Year's Deadlock Broken 10 Days After Farm March; Smith Relents.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Less than ten days after the "farm march" on Washington, which brought 4,000 farmers here to lobby for the New Deal farm program, the hotly disputed AAA amendments yesterday had acquired a favored status in both branches of Congress.

Whether by coincidence or otherwise, the way has been cleared for early action in both chambers after more than a year's delay.

The House Rules Committee, after hearing Secretary Wallace and AAA Administrator Chester Davis, yesterday agreed to an open rule limiting debate to six hours, but permitting amendments from the floor. The AAA legislation will come up in this branch on Tuesday.

In the Senate, Chairman Ellison D. ("Cotton Ed") Smith of the Senate Agriculture Committee, is reported to have softened in his former opposition to the amendments. Action in that chamber also may come next week, after the Senate disposes of the naval appropriations bill.

Hard Struggle Seen.

Administration leaders in both houses were confident in their predictions, but it was conceded the path to final pasage will be a stormy one.

The House version of the amendments, much more sweeping than the Senate bill, broadens the whole basis of the AAA. The "clarifying" amendments to be presented the lower chamber enter a new field by providing for the subsidizing of American agricultural exports, in line with principles of the old McNary-Haugen farm bill.

"I think we'll pass it, all right," declared Chairman Marvin Jones of the House Agriculture Committee, but action in the Senate on this provision was conceded to be doubtful.

Secretary Wallace indorsed the House bill in his appearance before the Rules Committee. Both he and Davis sought to minimize the objections of Chairman John J. O'Connor and others to provisions which, it was contended, would give the Secretary authority to license thousands of small retailers who happened to handle milk.

"Well, if the final veto power over marketing agreements is to rest in the hands of distributers and handlers of commodities," answered Davis, "then we might as well fold up. It is always possible for Congress in the consideration of legislation to foresee cases that never materialize."

Flexibility Granted.

In addition to vesting licensing power over distributors in the Secretary, the House bill permits the flexible use of income from processing taxes. A definite authorization also is given the Secretary to use 30 per cent of the annual customs receipts—estimated at $100,000,000—to pay premiums on farm exports or to make good losses on such exportations.

A minority report submitted by six committee members criticized licensing provisions of the bill, but approved the export subsidy plan, a section providing for payments "in kind," and Wallace's "ever-normal" granary scheme.

Senator Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, said he expected "some opposition, of course, but I think the amendments will go through the Senate all right." Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, is looked to as the spearhead of the assault, now that Senator Smith has cooled off.

Meantime, AAA officials are counting on an overwhelmingly favorable vote in tomorrow's wheat referendum. Farmers throughout the wheat belt will cast ballots on whether they want the program continued. Secretary Wallace yesterday broadcast an appeal for an adequate vote.

Crop Expert Assails AAA Wheat Program

New York, May 23.—Counseling against a defeatist attitude toward the future of drought-stricken Western Plains States, Bernard W. Snow, Chicago crop expert, today assailed what he termed the AAA's attempt to allot wheat acreage on a "mathematical percentage basis."

"National planning by mere rule of thumb will in the natural course of events lead to national disaster," he said in an address before the New York Commodity Club.

Snow, a former Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, said the percentage basis for acreage allotment followed thus far by the AAA already had reversed the country's position as a wheat exporter.

"I characterize this as unnecessary," he said, "because it is the result of complete failure to differentiate between the humid and the semiarid acreage allowance in years when shortage of moisture in the Western belt was perfectly well known in ample time to have permitted of acreage enlargement in the humid territory."

The chief question, he said, is whether the drought marks a permanent change in climate or whether it represents a cycle.

He called "fantastic" the proposal to create an enormous forest belt "in a land where trees have never grown."

Advance in Execution Date Denied Convict

By the Associated Press.

Denver, Colo., May 23.—Gov. Ed C. Johnson denied today, for lack of authority, a convict's request to be executed three weeks ahead of schedule.

Leo Belongia, 24, slayer of a rancher, wrote the Governor seeking permission to occupy "the vacant chair" of Colorado's three-chair lethal gas chamber May 31, when two other slayers are to die.

"It would be so much nicer to go with my present companions," Belongia wrote. He is to die June 21.

Between You and Me

New Bonus Fight Due in '36; Huey's Caramels Bring Jitters; Kennedy Popular.

By Raymond Clapper

WITH eight Senate votes more than he needed to sustain his bonus veto, Mr. Roosevelt has won his first Battle of the Marne. But a long period of trench warfare lies ahead. The bonus army has been defeated but not conquered. The bonus issue is as alive as it ever was. Aren't there still votes in it?

Knowing the Senate would uphold the President, friends of the bonus had begun falling back to previously prepared positions, even before the Senate voted. They have numerous plans. Most of them involve attaching some bonus plan to other legislation by amendment.

• • • •

Without going into the details of these plans, the significant thing is that the fight will go on. If a guess must be made, the best one is that no bonus legislation will go through at this session. Advocates will continue to shell Administration trenches. Undoubtedly they will force some votes by offering amendments.

It is even possible that a compromise acceptable to the Administration—such as payment of the present value, not the 1945 face value—might reach the White House. The better guess, however, is that in spite of continuous agitation, the real showdown will come next year. After all, there is no hurry—the election is not until a year from next November. The only pressure for haste arises from the fact that some pro-bonus Senators and Representatives will face stiff early primaries next year. Otherwise the time for the Pig Push is next spring.

Bonus marching:—Representative Wright Patman not only visited the Senate chamber to see the vote on his bill but during the final debate assisted friendly Senators by looking up data for them . . . Huey Long almost broke up Senator Harrison's speech—and a swell one it was—just before the roll call by strolling into the chamber and standing in the center aisle chewing caramels. Galleries began to titter. It was like a small boy sucking a lemon in front of a circus band. The Kingfish handed a caramel to Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, who, after hesitating suspiciously, took it and soon was chewing with obvious contentment. Huey then wandered among the Republicans, passing out caramels to White, of Maine; Carey, of Wyoming; Dickinson, of Iowa; Austin, of Vermont, and Barbour, of New Jersey. All were still chewing furiously when Harrison finished speaking and the roll call began . . . Senator Neely, of West Virginia, made the most flowery bonus speech. He even resurrected Joshua, who was quite a bonus marcher himself in the old days . . . Commander in Chief Van Zandt of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who were the original backers of the Patman bill, was so certain the Senate would uphold the President that he had a sheaf of typewritten statements all ready to give out. As reporters dashed out of the press gallery to flash the vote they were handed copies . . . Radio listeners missed one phrase which appeared in the official copies of Mr. Roosevelt's bonus message. The sentence read, with the phrase in parentheses omitted in delivery, as follows: "I hold that that able-bodied citizen (because he wore a uniform, and for no other reason) should be accorded no treatment different from that accorded to other citizens who did not wear a uniform during the World War."

Harrison had difficulty keeping his face straight when in his final speech against the bonus he said he was confident that no Senator, in casting his vote, would give a single thought about whether he would come back to the Senate in the next election. . . . The toughest break was the one which hit Chavez, the new Senator from New Mexico. A strong pro-bonus man in the House, Chavez took his Senate seat just in time to get in on the vote. But the Administration, which had done so much in backing him for the Senate, apparently demanded its pound of flesh. Chavez voted against overriding. Now he has to face a special election next year. . . . The only Senator not voting was Norbeck, of South Dakota. He was ill, but asked Senator La Follette to announce that if present he would have voted to override. . . . One of the House Democrats who did not vote and was not paired was seen strolling about the chamber shortly before the House voted. He disappeared before his name was called. . . . Acting House Democratic Leader Taylor, of Colorado, voted to override the President. So did the Senate Democratic whip, J. Hamilton Lewis. After that the Democrats can't accuse the Republicans of obstructing the President, especially when Senate Republican Leader McNary and House Republican Leader Snell voted to uphold Mr. Roosevelt. . . . Senator Wagner, of New York, who was booed by Coughlinites in his home city, had an engagement to speak in New York at a large union mass meeting a few hours after the Senate vote. He risked disappointing his New York audience to remain on hand and vote to support the President. . . . Suspense during the Senate roll call was broken when a Republican, Senator Townsend, voted not to override. His was the thirty-second vote against passage. That put one-third of the Senate on record to sustain the veto.

President Roosevelt is leaning more and more heavily on Joseph Kennedy, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission. He is asked to remain for the small White House huddles over works relief with Hopkins, Ickes and Walker. His intimate knowledge of business conditions and his sound judgment make his advice valuable.

Recently a report appeared that Kennedy would resign within 90 days and return to private business. When asked about it Kennedy was noncommittal.

Kennedy is one of the few officials connected with the Administration who has won substantial confidence among big industrialists and financiers. While Wall Street doesn't particularly like SEC, it is complaining less and less and regards Kennedy as a fair administrator. Above all, they feel that in this former market player they have a man in Washington who understands the game. But if Kennedy is thinking of following his old market rule of getting out at the top, he may have difficulty in selling Mr. Roosevelt on releasing him.

The New Deal is scattering, not as its enemies would like, but geographically. The rural electrification organization is setting up out on Massachusetts avenue, above Dupont Circle. Now Dr. Tugwell wants to plant his rural resettlement organization at the Arlington Experimental Station, across the Potomac. One advantage is that the farther from the downtown area they move, the farther they are from inquisitive reporters.

None of Lincoln's 7 Salaries Paid by NRA, Says Richberg

Income Reported Derived From Private Trade Associations.

George J. Lincoln, jr., of Philadelphia, who takes on trade association secretary jobs on a wholesale basis, hasn't received NRA approval of any of his numerous salaries, Donald R. Richberg, chairman of the National Industrial Recovery Board, said yesterday.

In the Senate Wednesday, Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, listed six NRA code jobs for which he said Lincoln was receiving a total of $48,000 a year.

Richberg replied that NRA had refused to approve budgets for four of these jobs and that the others—which he said were three in number, rather than two—are private trade assoication jobs over which the NRA has no control.

Richberg declared that Lincoln—who he said "may be an individual or a corporation"—was receiving $24,000 a year from these private jobs.

NRA had been asked, Richberg said, to approve budgets for four industries listed by Senator Nye, but that they had been held up because it was believed the amounts were excessive and because it wished to learn more of Lincoln's status and to determine whether services actually were performed.

The budgets which have been held up, Richberg said, are:

Paper disk milk bottle cap industry, $9,000.

Cylindrical paper liquid container industry, $9,000.

Sanitary milk bottle closure industry, $6,000.

Bulk drinking straw, wrapped drinking straw, wrapped tooth pick and wrapped manicure stick industry, $4,200.

Richberg said Lincoln is receiving salaries of $24,000 for representing the following three trade associations, which he said are not code authorities and over which the Government has no control:

National Crepe Paper Association.

National Association of Drinking Straw Manufacturers.

National Association of Paper Napkin Manufacturers.

Richberg said he believed the multiplicity of milk bottle cap industries and of other divisions of the paper industry provided a good argument for combining of codes, which he is advocating in connection with proposed NRA extension.

Richberg also suggested that the Government pay scale limits be imposed on all code authority executives and employes, who are paid out of assessments levied through code previsions.

Alleged Loaded Dice Roll Man Into Court

A pair of allegedly "loaded" dice yesterday held Paul Rivnack, of Hartford, Conn., for grand jury action when he was arraigned in Police Court on grand larceny charges.

Rivnack, it was testified, attended the Board of Trade outing Saturday and reputedly "cleaned up" in a series of dice games. Charges against him were brought by Harry M. Nelson, of the 1600 block of I street northwest, who said he lost $60.

Plan to Validate 'Illegalities' of TVA Charged

Proposed Legislation Is Attacked by Member of House Committee.

By the Associated Press.

A blunt assertion that proposed legislation to increase the scope of the Tennessee Valley Authority law is intended to "validate illegalities" of the TVA was tossed to the House Military Committee yesterday by one of its leading Republican members.

In addition, said Representative McLean (Republican), of New Jersey, the legislation would give TVA $100,000,000 to compete with private utilities, attempt to circumvent a Federal court decision, and change entirely the present TVA power program.

McLean inserted these comments in his questioning of David E. Lilienthal, TVA director, who helped draft the legislation.

McLean struck particularly at a provision in the bill that mentions specifically the Wheeler and Pickwick Landing dams, now under construction. Contending TVA began building them without the sanction of Congress, he said they are "wholly illegal" and "if we pass this act we validate all those illegalities."

Lilienthal Defends TVA.

"If there are any illegalities, the legislation might validate them," Lilienthal asserted.

But he argued that as TVA construed the law, it could construct the two dams.

Turning to another section that would clarify the TVA electric program and allow TVA to sell power it generates in excess of Government needs, McLean asserted the paragraph was designed to expand the TVA electric program.

"I don't think it would increase our authority at all," Lilienthal retorted.

"But the old act refers only to surplus power and this applies to all power," McLean rejoined. "What is the need of this section?"

Lilienthal replied that the section merely rewrites the policy in the existing statute "in language so clear it can not be misunderstood" and that the term "surplus" really had no significance.

"The purpose," McLean said, "is to entirely change the electric power policy as it is in existing law."

Aimed at Court Decision.

Lilienthal admitted, however, that the section was aimed in part at a decision of Federal Judge Grubb in Birmingham holding TVA had no authority to market surplus power.

The committee planned to conclude its hearings on the controversial legislation with the questioning of Comptroller General McCarl today.

Members wanted to ask him about his office's audit of the first year's operations of TVA, which took exception to purchases without specific authorization of law.

Earlier, Representative Montet (Democrat), Louisana, proposed that the act be amended to state definitely that TVA must not sell electricity below its production cost.

Friends of TVA legislation immediately interpreted the proposals as an indication that approval of the Norris bill may be expedited if dissatisfied committee members are permitted to write in some changes which they consider safeguard provisions.

Lilienthal accepted an observation by Chairman McSwain that TVA "must be self-sustaining if it is going to be anything like a power yardstick."

Nevertheless, the director said, mere legislation can not prevent TVA's having a loss on its power program if it is unable to obtain a market. Litigation, he explained, could reduce expected sales to the point where earnings would not be sufficient to meet costs.

Roosevelt Vetoes Act For Plumbing Survey

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt yesterday vetoed another bill—one authorizing investigation by the Public Health Service of plumbing in Federal buildings. The Public Health Service reported it had neither the money nor the facilities required.

Mr. Roosevelt suggested that the various departments might make the investigation with their own engineers. It was estimated the investigation by the Public Health Service would cost $6,000,000.

Rand Freed by Debtor's Oath Of Income Tax Accusation

Ex-Millionaire Lists Assets Now at $150 in Savings Bank.

By the Associated Press.

Barnstable, Mass., May 23.—James H. Rand, 75-year-old one-time Buffalo (N. Y.) multimillionaire and founder of what ultimately became the nationally known Remington-Rand Co., today answered a State charge that he had evaded his income tax by taking the poor prisoner's oath.

He took the oath which gives a civil debtor his freedom after having spent a night in the jail of this little Cap Cod town, not far from the palatial summer home of his son, from which he was taken suddenly last night by an officer of the State income tax department.

Arraigned on a charge of having failed to pay $7,044 in income taxes for 1930, the white-haired Rand told Judge Frederick C. Swift that a $150 bank account was his sole remaining asset. The court promptly ordered it seized.

Rand, in a statement telephoned to his New York office, asserted he did not become a resident of Massachusetts until 1932 and previously had paid State and Federal taxes in full in New York and since then in Massachusetts.

"Because I resided a portion of each year (prior to 1932) in Massachusetts," the statement said, "it was claimed that I also owed taxes on my full income in that State. I refused to accept this double tax and shall continue to contest the right of Massachusetts to levy against me."

Less than ten years ago, when Rand merged his office equipment firm with the Kardex firm of the same nature, dominated by his son, James, jr., the combined assets of the companies were announced as $10,500,000.

Rand, sr., became chairman of the board of directors and his son, president and general manager. Since then the father has retired from active connection, but still remains a director of Remington-Rand Co., and his son took his place as active head of the concern.

Today in court Rand admitted having transferred his assets to his son several years ago but said he did not know whether they then exceeded his liabilities. He understood, he testified, that his son would assume those liabilities.

The suddenness of his arrest was prompted, State Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long said in Boston, by the fear that Rand might flee "in his yacht." Today the father said the son owns the yacht as well as the estate.

Long added that Rand had been given several warnings to settle income tax claims levied against him.

Beside the specific item for 1930, Rand's attorney told the court that the aggregate claims against him from 1928 to 1930 amounted to approximately $35,000.

Senator King's Trees Come Home to Roost

Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, yesterday added his protest to those of two members of the House against what he termed "vandalism of Washington's beautiful trees."

"Are the District Commissioners looking into the vandalism of the trees along Pennsylvania avenue and in the Mall area?" he asked Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman yesterday at a committee meeting.

People's Counsel William A. Roberts interrupted to remind him that the trees involved came under the jurisdiction of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, of which King is a member.

"Then I wish you'd come down some Saturday afternoon and complain about it," Senator King concluded.

House Favors 546 More West Pointers

Congressmen Would Be Given 3 Appointments.

The House yesterday approved, without debate, a bill increasing the number of appointments to West Point by 546.

Under the measure each member of Congress is given three, instead of two, appointments to the Military Academy. The number of appointees from the District of Columbia is increased to 5, Puerto Rico is given one, Panama 1, and the number appointed from military "honor schools" is raised by 20.

Further, the bill authorizes the President to call to active service 1,200 Reserve officers, who would serve for not more than one year each. On this point, the committee reported:

"It is practically the unanimous judgment of the committee that it is wise at this time to bring up the officers' strength of the Army to the minimum needs of defense by the addition of 1,200 officers over a period of years."

The bill now goes to conference.

Hopkins Now Hope Of Illinois' Hungry

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 23.—Back into the job of finding food quickly for its Hopkins, Illinois today tossed the job of finding fodo quickly for its 1,200,000 indigents.

In a conference with Hopkins at Cleveland Friday, Gov. Henry Horner will point to passage of the 3 per cent sales tax, signed today, as pledge of Illinois' intention to share in the aid of its jobless, and seek a promise of Government funds to carry on until the State law becomes operative July 1.

Private charity, local funds and neighbors tried to assure bare sustenance until the verdict at Cleveland was announced.

As to the conference, the undercurrent of sentiment at relief headquarters was optimistic. It was believed Hopkins would waive his previous objections to extending funds until Illinois actually was providing cash and tide the State over until July 1.

Rain Aids Crops Of Corn and Feed

By the Associated Press.

Liberia, Kans., May 23.—Farmers of the Southwest's drought areas, heartened by rains which came too late to save much wheat, placed hopes today in the prospect of generous crops of corn and feed.

They are awaiting only clearing skies and drier fields now to convert thousands of acres of abandoned wheat fields into corn fields or fields of kafir, feterita, broom corn, sudan grass and other sorghums and feed crops.

Denied a normal wheat crop the past three years and producing almost nothing in last year's drought, the outlook is optimistic after a week of rain which changed dusty fields to mud.

The drought definitely broken, farmers need "only a little more rain later on" to insure good yields, crop authorities said today. The soil is in good condition for planting.

Jury Indicts 10 In Plot to Steal 50 Autos in D.C.

A wave of automobile thefts in the District during the last few months was blamed by the District grand jury yesterday on ten men.

The grand jury found that the ten had been members of a ring operating up and down the Atlantic seaboard.

Specifically, it accused them of taking five stolen automobiles from Washington to North Carolina, and it charged also that they plotted to take at least 50 other stolen cars from Washington into Southern States.

They named them as Ernest Rodgers, Charles E. Smith, Joseph Frederick Raleigh, jr., Stanley Dade, James Robinson, Roy Burleigh, Douglas McKnight, Frank Deaton, Fred H. Deaton and Karl Deaton.

Five Counts Returned.

All the counts charge violations of the Federal motor-vehicle theft act. Five counts say that automobiles belonging to Stephen A. Alpin, Emil J. Greenwall, Kenmore M. McManes, Mildred J. Fletcher and Cost Christopher, all of Washington, were taken to North Carolina by the ring after the cars had allegedly been stolen here.

The sixth charge asserts that the ten "consipred, combined, and confederated together" to violate the law by transportating 50 other stolen machines out of the District. Owners of these cars were not named.

Altogether, 42 persons were charged with various offenses in the indictments the jurors handed to Justice Proctor yesterday.

One was a District employe, John Louis Wolarik, time-keeper in the Water Department, against whom six forgery charges were returned. The indictment said he had altered work sheets of two workers on six occasions, erasing dates and inserting others.

Two men were held on gaming charges. They were Louis Walter Dove and Charles Patrick O'Brien, charged with setting up a gaming table on the third floor of a house near Fifteenth and K streets northwest. Six others, Louis Joseph Waldron, Frank Crandall, William Thomas Dowdney, Cabora Shama, William Edward Larman, and Claude Phillip Cool, were exonerated of gaming charges, the jurors ruling that there was no evidence of law violation against them.

Mail Fraud Charged.

Use of the mails to defraud was charged against Harry C. Smith, John J. Gallagher, A. F. duVerger, and H. C. Moore, alleged promoters of a lime kiln project in Lancaster County, Pa. Two Washingtonians, Senes B. Passmore and Willie Hein, were the complainants.

The year-old theft of $1,330 from the Bell & Smith Co. was blamed on a former employe, William Weitlauf, who was charged with threatening William J. Bell, a partner in the firm, with a pistol as Bell left a bank with the firm's weekly pay roll. The indictment said Weitlauf jumped into Bell's car, compelled Bell to drive him to Ninth and L streets northwest, and then got out there, telling Bell he would be shot if he looked around.

A cab driver, Roy A. Bayne, was exonerated of homicide charges in connection with the death of Mary E. Dyer, fatally injured when struck by his cab at Sixteenth and Harvard streets northwest on May 14. Witnesses said Bayne had been driving at only 15 miles an hour. They said the victim ran into the cab's path from behind a bus. Bayne picked her up and took her to a hospital, and there she died next day.

Those indicted were:

Harold E. Marsh, nonsupport; Edward A. Stone, William J. Riley, Howard J. Baylor, Arthur A. Hawkins, Joseph Baldwin, Wilbur Shipley and John C. Byrd, joy riding; Joseph Matthews, Howard A. Cosby, Elijah Williams, George Newman and Eugene M. Jones, housebreaking; Raymond Potts, Arthur Herndon, Robert Clay, William Whitlaw and Clarence Tomlin, robbery.

Lawrence Saunders, assault with a dangerous weapon; Maurice Haley and Clara Hall, robbery and assault with intent to kill and assault with a dangerous weapon; Grantley E. Edelen, carnal knowledge; Louis Walter Dove and Charles Patrick O'Brien, gaming, charges; Wallace Kimball and Eliot W. Shreve, narcotic violations; Harry C. Smith, John J. Gallagher, A. F. du Verger and H. C. Moore, violation of section 215, U. S. Penal Code.

John Louis Wolarik, forgery; Floyd Manuel, second degree murder; Ernest Rogers, Charles E. Smith, Joseph Frederick Raleigh, jr., Stanley Dade, James Robinson, Roy Burleigh, Douglas McKnight and Frank, Fred H. and Karl Deaton, violation of the national motor vehicle theft act, and conspiracy.

Chicago Firm Indicted Under Securities Act

New Orleans, May 23 (AP).—Eight counts charging violations of the 1933 Federal securities act were filed against Turvias & Co., of Chicago, and 20 of its officials and agents in an indictment returned by a Federal grand jury here late today to District Judge John McDuffie.

Six of the counts charged fraud in the sale of securities and the other two charge conspiracy to violate terms of the act.

marked that the next bonus step is up to the Senate.

This question can't be settled until it is settled right, and this bill settles it right," he said. "We might as well forget it for the time being on the House side. The Senate may enact it as an amendment to some bill. The next move will have to be made over there."

The subdued comment of Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, who sponsored the bill in the Senate, was cryptically:

"This has been a great day for political suicides."

Thomas agreed with Patman that the next move must be taken in the Senate, but he declined to disclose his plans pending conferences with bonus-minded associates.

Van Zandt Pledges Fight.

"The fight for full and immediate cash payment of the adjusted service certificates will be renewed at once with redoubled vigor," said Commander in Chief James E. Van Zandt of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

He addressed a telegram to National Commander Frank N. Belgrano of the American Legion to return to Washington for a conference.

"The Veterans of Foreign Wars has just begun to fight," it read. "What is the American Legion going to do?"

Director Henry H. Curran, of National Economy League, wired 40 Senators who voted to sustain the veto the league's "appreciation" of their "thoughtful and patriotic vote."

Vinson Plan Reviewed.

Aside from the Clark amendment, providing three alternative methods of paying the bonus, the following bonus measures were offered yesterday in House and Senate:

By Senator Gore—A resolution providing authority for the President to pay off the $2,200,000,000 bonus residue through a bond issue or by allocation of money from the $4,880,000,000 works fund.

By Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), New York—A resolution following the lines of the Vinson bill, but allowing the President to pay the bonus from the works fund.

By Representative Clare G. Fenerty (Republican), Pennsylvania—A bill for payment under Vinson terms, but out of the works fund.

By Representative Daniel A. Reed (Republican), New York—A bill modeled along lines of the Harrison compromise, but directing payment from the works fund.

Word of the Senate vote was announced in the House by Representative Ernest Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, who drew some applause by declaring that "some of us will continue to fight for a bonus bill, financed by the Patman method."

Wives and relatives of Senators, Government officials, diplomats, tense-looking veterans and at least one actress, Ethel Barrymore, looked down on the Senate drama leading up to the vote. They witnessed some good acting.

Last to speak was Chairman Pat Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee, whose own compromise plan had been thrust aside by the Senate, and who once again warned colleagues that his partial payment proposal is the only bonus legislation that has a chance of enactment.

Lobbyists Assailed.

He paid his compliments to colleagues, whom he cleared of any charge of "playing politics;" he aimed a few shafts at a pro-Patman former Secretary of the Treasury, Senator McAdoo, of California, whose figures he declared were in error; he bitterly condemned a proposal to attach the Clark bonus compromise to the Navy appropriations bill; then paid a parting tribute to lobbyists.

"It is a bad day for America," he shouted, "when groups can control it. It is a bad day for Congress when groups can govern its actions."

Earlier, Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, who was briefly quoted by the President in defending his bonus veto, took the floor to explain why he once opposed bonus payment and now favors the Patman bill.

"I have supported the silver legislation and the President's monetary program for the same reason I support the payment of the bonus," he said. "This bill will have a tendency, however slight, to put more money in circulation. It is a step in the right direction, but probably no more than that."

Speaking under a 30-minute debate limitation, a dozen Senators took the floor, but only a few used their full time. The Senate had met two hours early to insure disposition of the bill. The vote came just before 3 o'clock. Galleries received the result dully, with no demonstration. A few minutes later the gallery was nearly bare of spectators.

Williams Guilty Of Misconduct; Facing Ouster

vestigation made by the inspector general of the Army at the direction of the Secretary of War, and the court, with one exception, was composed entirely of general officers stationed in Washington.

"The proceedings now go to the judge advocate general for review by him and the board of review, a statutory board of three officers of the judge advocate general's department. The holding and opinion of the board of review and the recommendations of the judge advocate general are then transmitted to the Secretary of War for final action of the President."

No appeal is possible in the case of a general court-martial, which is the highest court in military law. The judge advocate general and the board of review automatically will look into all the legal technicalities of the case, and then will pass it on to the Secretary of War.

In view, however, of the recommendation for clemency, many observers yesterday felt that the President would retire Williams because he has given 37 years of active and distinguished service to the Government. As a retired officer he would draw $375 a month.

Another course also open for the President would be to allow Col. Williams to resign from the Army—and in this case the officer would receive no compensation.

Officers on Court.

The members of the general court-martial that tried Col. Williams were Maj. Gen. Malin Craig, commandant of the Army War College; Maj. Gen. Edward Croft, the chief of infantry; Maj. Gen. Edward Markham, the chief of engineers; Maj. Gen. Leon B. Kromer, the chief of cavalry; Maj. Gen. William Tschappat, the chief of ordnance; Brig. Gen. Perry L. Miles, commanding the Sixteenth Brigade; Brig. Gen. Creed Cox, chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs; Brig. Gen. Edgar T. Conley, assistant to the adjutant general, and Brig. Gen. Edward M. Shinkle, assistant to the chief of ordnance.

Lieut. Col. Edwin McNeil, of the judge advocate general's office, served as law member of the court. Maj. F. G. Munson was trial judge advocate. First Lieut. James L. Harbaugh, jr., was assistant trial judge advocate. The defense staff was headed by Col. William McCammon, with Capt. Adel C. Harden and J. Leonard Townsend as assistants.

Col. Williams is the first high ranking officer to face a court-martial since the colorful trial of Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, former assistant chief of air corps, who faced a military court in December, 1925.

Mitchell was found guilty of broken discipline and was sentenced to five years' suspension from the Army. However, he was allowed to resign from the service.

Youth Held in Stabbing Of Woman and Dog

Warren, Ohio, May 23 (AP).—Police investigating the mysterious slaying of Mrs. Marie Tobin, 22, continued to hold a 20-year-old suspect tonight, pending a check of his alibi story.

The youth was detained after the nude body of Mrs. Tobin was found, badly burned, on a flaming bed in her home here. Her pet dog, also dead, was found nearby. Both had been stabbed by an ice pick, officers said.

The tragedy was discovered when neighbors, seeing smoke pouring from the bedroom window, summoned the fire department.

It was a "plain case of murder," Coroner J. C. Henshaw said.

31-Year-Old Murder Admitted by Farmer

By the Associated Press.

Farmington, Mo., May 23.—Because he couldn't sleep, Henry Huff, well-to-do 50-year-old farmer, confessed killing a youth 31 years ago, and today was charged with first-degree murder.

Authorities had forgotten about the strange death May 24, 1904, of Henry Mayes, when Huff last Tuesday presented himself to Prosecuting Attorney Thomas A. Matthews and told his story.

Huff, according to Matthews, said he disagreed with Mayes and shot him off of his horse as he rode along the highway.

"A Catholic has certain principles by which he lives," said Cardinal O'Connell, "and it is the duty and the life work of your priests and bishops who are directing your spiritual life to give you directions according to those principles, not to appeal merely to some wayward emotion of the day, not to make a lot of endless and foolish promises which can never be fulfilled, but to teach the word of God as Christ delivered it to us * * *.

"The office of the priest and bishop of the Catholic Church is to continue to love poverty, to love the poor, to respect the poor, and to teach them, to help them and to guide them, not to ill-gotten wealth or anarchy or discontent in their lives, but to bring them, through the grace of God, the word of God and the sacraments, peace and happiness in whatever condition of life they may happen to be."

The prelate said the Christian principle was "not to fight with our neighbors and to call names and stir uprisings and create discontent in the heart of the poor, pretending to alleviate them when they are only making things worse and more intolerable." Asserting that the howling and shrieking and hysterical influences" would "all disappear one day and be forgotten," he said in conclusion:

"Be guided by those who have only one interest in life, and that is your spiritual and temporal welfare; not by throwing out gaudy promises or flashy orations, but by the clean-cut, straight, simple direction of the Catholic faith taught you Sunday after Sunday, day in and day out."

Crime Laid to Hunger.

Leavenworth, Kans., May 23 (AP). Financial stress was given by Warden E. M. Stubblefield today as a contributing factor in the rise of Kansas State Penitentiary's population to the highest total in its 71 years—1,972. Most of the new arrivals, Stubblefield said, are "destitute men who have erred against society by stealing food for their families."

Vance New Moderator Of Presbyterian Church

Cincinnati, May 23 (AP).—The Rev. Dr. Joseph A. Vance, of Detroit, today was elected moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., highest office the church can bestow. He succeeds the Rev. Dr. William Chalmers Covert, of Philadelphia.

Roosevelt Vetoes U. S. Survey Of Plumbing; Not Overridden!

Cost of Capitol Study Too Great, Message (Via Runner) Says.

By the Associated Press.

Members of Congress who have been worrying about whether bad plumbing in the Capitol and other Federal buildings was making folks sick may have to just keep on worrying.

President Roosevelt yesterday sent up—by messenger this time—a veto on a resolution directing the Public Health Service to survey plumbing in all Federal buildings and report to Congress by January 3, 1936.

There was no question of overriding that veto. When it was read to the House, it was referred by unanimous consent to committee, there to gather dust.

The cost of a superficial survey, the President said, would be $776,000, and of a thorough one $5,000,000 to $6,000,000. Furthermore, he added, even with such a budget-unbalancing expenditure, the Public Health Service could not finish more than 25 per cent of the job in the time allowed.

Representative Dingell (Democrat), of Michigan, author of the resolution, immediately said he would talk the situation over with the President. He expressed hope that money for the job—which "would give employment to lots of plumbers"—might be allocated out of the $4,880,000,000 fund.

Dingell drafted his resolution after a plumber testified before a House committee that the lives of House and Senate members were being endangered by bad plumbing in the Capitol.

Deer Cut From Herd In Park Dies of Grief

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., May 23.—The Towson, Md., gardens will not receive the buck purchased from the city park here and which was to have been delivered today.

Last night the deer was trapped and removed from the herd in the park range preparatory to shipping, but during the night died, park officials say, apparently from grief.

Dana Completes Trans-U. S. Flight

Flying Time From Pacific Coast Is 25 Hours.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, May 23.—Peter Dana, 19-year-old great-grandson of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, completed the last leg of his transcontinental flight from San Diego, Calif., when he arrived at Boston Airport late today. Dana flew from New York. Jack Fisher, 21, of Connecticut, accompanied Dana, who was seeking to establish a cross-country speed record for junior sportsmen.

Dana arrived at 5:46 p. m. (Eastern standard time), coming from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., in an hour and a half. His flying time from San Diego, Calif., which he left at 2 a. m. (Pacific standard time) yesterday, was approximately 25 hours.

Sweitzer Accounts Audited in Chicago

Democrat Leader Denies Any Shortage.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 23.—A special audit detailing the precise amount Robert M. Sweitzer owes to balance books of the county clerkship he left last January 1, was handed the Cook County Commissioners today as an assistant State's attorney looked on.

Sweitzer, one of the most popular leaders of Democracy in Chicago for years and now county treasurer, admitted he had not turned over all the funds to his successor, but asserted he stood ready to do so "if the figures in the audit are correct."

He reiterated previous denials of any shortage, which Chicago newspapers asserted might run as high as $414,000, and said he had the money, which "I have said all along would be considerably in excess of $300,000" in a bank.

Nemours Foundations Awaits Estate's Settling

Wilmington, Del., May 23 (AP).—Plans for Nemours Foundations, provided for in the will of the late Alfred I. du Pont as a home for aged persons or crippled children, will not be put in effect by trustees of the du Pont estate until the estate is settled, it was stated today.

Col. Reginald Huidekoper, of Washington, son-in-law of du Pont and an executor of the estate and trustee of the foundation, said today it will be about a year before the estate will be settled.

Snow Covers Sahara; Oasis Crops Flattened

By the United Press.

Meknes, Morocco, May 23.—A blizzard accompanying a rare cold wave swept the Sahara Desert today, blocking the highway from Meknes to Sahara and freezing to death thousands of newly shorn sheep in the Sahara oasis.

The snow was 2 feet deep and drifted badly.

Scant crops in the famous Sahara oasis, on which thousands of the adjacent desert population depends for life, were flattened by icy gales.

Women's Clubs Asked to Back Administration

O'Conor Urges Roosevelt Policies in Speech to Maryland Women.

Speaking to more than 500 members of the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland, Herbert O'Conor, attorney general of the State, yesterday called for a united support of President Roosevelt's policies.

Although he mentioned no specific issues, he declared that Mr. Roosevelt was "leading and will continue to lead this Nation out of its difficulties as long as you stand behind him."

Continuing his address at the club's annual spring luncheon, held at the Maryland Club Gardens, he pointed, he said, "with pride" to the fact that the Democratic Party gave the Nation such a leader as Mr. Roosevelt.

"And I believe the Democratic Party will be entrusted to continue the handling of the affairs of the Nation," he said.

Women to Take Lead.

He predicted that the women of Maryland in the next election may be called upon to lead the way in the campaign for the return of a Democratic administration. The men, he said, would be glad to work with the women in this effort.

He also predicted that the next State elections will see the return of a Democratic Governor to the State House.

Gov. Talmadge of Georgia was severely condemned by Assistant United States Attorney General Stella Aiken, a resident of that State, who charged he was unfair in his criticisms of Mr Roosevelt.

She declared that his criticisms were "unpardonable" and that they would not affect the people of Georgia, who would "vote a straight Democratic ticket in the next election."

Miss Aiken pointed out that women have never been given more equal rights than under President Roosevelt. He demonstrated that women have a right in this Government, she said, referring to the appointment of Miss Perkins as Secretary of Labor.

M. Hampton Magruder, Upper Marlboro attorney, who has been recommended for collector of internal revenue for Maryland, declared the Democratic Party must fight the "demagogic" advocates of the "share-the-wealth program."

He mentioned no names, but declared there was a strong campaign being waged by these advocates which, if overlooked, would completely undermine the national and State party.

Must Meet Challenge.

"We must meet this challenge, we must defeat this menace to our institutions. If we minimize this share the wealth program we will rue the day."

State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, president of the Maryland senate, who delivered the address of welcome, stressed the need for supporting President Roosevelt's present policies.

Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, scheduled for the speakers' list, was unable to be present. Former Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and Senator George L. Radcliffe also sent their regrets.

Mrs. Frances E. McFadden, chairman of the southern Maryland division of the clubs, opened the meeting and turned the proceedings over to Mrs. Mary H. Duvall of Baltimore, president of the United Democratic Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Duvall called on the women to build up an organization that would be capable of supporting candidates who have shown their appreciation of women's work.

Baltimore Man, 25, Is Killed by Truck

Driver Held After Fatal Accident in Beltsville.

A man identified as Edwin Burkhead, 25, of Baltimore, was fatally injured yesterday as he crossed the Baltimore boulevard at Beltsville, Md.

Taken to Casualty Hospital by the Bladensburg rescue squad, he was pronounced dead soon after arrival. Physicians said he had a compound fracture of the skull.

Sergt. Ralph Brown and Policeman Claude Reese of the Prince Georges County police force arrested W. W. Warner, alleged driver of the truck, on a technical charge of reckless driving. He was held in default of $1,000 bond at the Hyattsville lock-up for an inquest before Acting Coroner George S. Phillips, set for Monday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Health Officer Gives Warning About Disease

Rocky Mountain Fever Germ Carried to Humans by Ticks.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With one known death in Virginia from the Rocky Mountain spotted fever, Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, yesterday gave out the following warning and methods of preventing the disease:

"The tick is known to be the means of transmitting this disease to human beings and by investigations by the United States Public Health Service these are the best methods of preventing it.

"There are three measures which we, as individuals, may use to prevent spotted fever: Avoid the tick, remove ticks from the person as early as possible and by vaccination.

"On camping trips care should be used in selecting a site for placing the bed, as ticks will crawl into a bed laid on the ground. The safest camping ground is undoubtedly in standing timber where low vegetation is scanty.

"Persons should be especially watchful when walking along trails. It is especially desirable to watch the clothing when following trails or old roads.

"In the prevention of tick bite, the first precaution is the wearing of such clothing as will prevent ticks from getting underneath. This may be accomplished to a considerable extent by wearing high boots, leggings, puttees, or socks that are worn outside of the trousers legs.

"Ticks are far more likely to secure hold on rough clothing than on clothing of smoother texture.

"In spite of precautions, however, a certain number of ticks will reach the body through the various openings in the clothing. It is therefore important that the above precautions be supplemented by the examination of the inside of the clothing and the body.

"Ticks may be removed from man and domestic animals with the fingers, but a better plan is to use a pair of small forceps or tweezers.

"Two or three innoculations of the vaccine give a degree of protection usually sufficient to last through one tick season, but the immunity apparently is not permanent."

While Arlington County is most fortunate in that no cases have been discovered. Dr. Chichester says that he hopes this will be a warning to the citizens to be careful and avoid the tick.

The one death occurred in Children's Hospital, Washington. The victim was David Lorimer, 4-year-old adopted son of Mrs. Frank Lorimer, of Idylwood, Va., near West Falls Church. A number of blood transfusions by persons already immune to the fever failed to save the little boy.

The newly elected officers of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Stonewall Jackson School at Mulhall were installed in the school auditorium. The ceremonies were conducted by Mrs. Gladys I. Monroe, past president of the Arlington Council of Parent-Teacher Associations.

Those installed were Mrs. Adenall Cartwright, president; Mrs. Frank Cumberland, firse vice president; Miss Lillian Massoletti, second vice president; Mrs. Genevieve Surprise, secretary; Miss Agnes Frank, treasurer, and Mrs. Phyllis Kaselbaum, historian.

Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, gave a lengthy talk on health and urged the parents to keep a careful watch constantly over their children.

Committee chairmen as announced by the president are as follows:

Program, Edith Rogers; membership, Mrs. A. Meinberg; publicity, Mrs. Gladys Riley; hospitality, Mrs. Ruth Brown; finance and budget, Louis Hamm; building and grounds, Robert Balinger; welfare, Miss Fearnow, and magazine, Mrs. Mildred Williams.

The summer round-up committee will meet at the home of the president Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The annual senior banquet and dance will be held at the Washington-Lee High School tonight. The banquet will be served at 6:30 o'clock.

The invocation will be given by Mrs. Frances Bell, assistant principal, who will also act as toastmaster.

Instead of having a principal speaker, as in the past, a feature of the program will be the offering of toasts to the officials of the school and county school board.

The toast to County Superintendent Fletcher Kemp will be given by Franklyn Payne, president of the class. A response by Mr. Kemp. To the school board by Mary Dell Crouch, with the response by John M. Stewart, chairman of the board. To the class by Miss Manye Turner, with the response by Ida Jean Dagger. To the faculty by Courtney Hood, with the response by O. L. Driver. To the principal by Douglas True, with a response by S. P. Vanderslice.

The presentation of the class annual, "The Blue and the Gray," will be made by Maxine Cardwell, editor in chief.

Dancing will be enjoyed following the banquet until midnight.

Bids for the collection of garbage, rubbish and ashes for the fiscal year beginning July first will be received and opened by the county board at its meeting May 29, at 9 a. m.

The Arlington Hall, Junior College for Girls, will stage its annual May Day pageant tomorrow afternoon on the lawn fronting the administration building, at 4 o'clock.

The public is invited.

Mary Washington Chapter, No. 50, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the Masonic Temple at 8 o'clock, at Clarendon.

Harry K. Green, commissioner of revenue for Arlington County, and his assistants will be at the Jefferson firehouse in Virginia Highlands tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock for the purpose of assisting taxpayers in the preparation of their local and State income returns.

The honor roll for the month at the Thomas Nelson Page School at Ballston, as announced by County Superintendent Fletcher Kemp, includes the following list of pupils by grades:

First grade—Jeanne Payne, Wava Arnold, Peggy Compton, Elnore Hall, Donald Dedera, John Collins, Warren Rowland, Buddy Hall and George Hawes.

Fire Company Women's Unit Has a Banquet

Prince Georges Auxiliary Observes Anniversary; 200 Attended.

Almost 200 persons attended the fifth anniversary banquet of the Women's Auxiliary to the Prince Georges County Volunteer Firemen's Association at the University of Maryland Wednesday night.

Mrs. Rudolph S. Allen, president of the Southeastern Council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who delivered the main address, stressed the need of unity through permanent organizations of women workers.

She praised the work of women's auxiliary units in Prince Georges County.

Nobel F. Rushe, president of the Maryland State Firemen's Association, praised the women for organizing the new nursing unit of the county rescue squad, calling it the only one of its kind in the country.

He also commended Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the University of Maryland, for his efforts in aiding the promotion of the firemen's short course, held at the university each summer.

Charles C. Marbury, chairman of the Prince Georges County delegation in the Maryland Legislature, outlined the various acts passed during the last session. He spoke for State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, who was unable to attend.

Others who addressed the gathering were Mrs. Nina Merryman, president of the county auxiliary; Dr. Pearson, Mrs. Mary Fainter and Mrs. Annie A. Burnette, past presidents of the county auxiliary; C. Earl Wyvill, president of the county's Volunteer Firemens Association.

The list also included Delegate John S. White, John Fainter, first president of the County Firemens Association; County Commissioners Vinton D. Cockey and James Berry, Mrs. Myrtle Moffett, president of the Womens Auxiliary of the Washington Fire Department; Mrs. Grace Witzel, secretary of the Washington auxiliary, and Andrew Gasch, chief of the County Rescue Squad.

The dining hall was decorated with blue and gold balloons, the colors of the auxiliary, and spring flowers. Following the speaking there were group singing and solos by Delegate White and Miss Thelma Donaldson. Mrs. Irene A. Conner, of Capitol Heights, was toastmistress.

5 Groups Pushing 16th Street Project

Urge Extension as Part of Federal Works.

Marshaling their forces to secure the extension of Sixteenth street from its present terminus at the terminus at the East-West highway in Silver Spring, Md., to Georgia avenue at North Woodside, representatives of five civic associations yesterday launched an intensive campaign for immediate construction.

Petitions will be circulated by the group among residents of almost the entire eastern suburban area of Mongomery County, urging the county commissioners and State roads commission to place this extension on the list of Federal projects.

Organizations sponsoring the move are Woodside Civic Association, Woodside Park Civic Association, Linden Civic Association, Forest Glen Citizens Association and North Woodside-Montgomery Hill Civic Association. G. W. Hopkins, chairman of the roads committee of the Montgomery County Civic Federation, is also lending his support.

Peril to Nation Seen by Ritchie In New Deal

He Says Business Needs Assurance From Washington.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Pittsburgh, May 23.—Contending that American democracy is in "very real danger," Albert C. Ritchie, former Governor of Maryland, tonight made a vigorous plea here for the "restoration of self-government and the free play of individual endeavor in American life."

Speaking at the annual banquet of the Insurance Federation of Pennsylvania, Mr. Ritchie severely condemned the "lavish" grants of money being made to the individual States by the Federal Government. He contended that in an effort to get this money the States were subjecting themselves to the domination of the Federal Government in many fields properly belonging to the local authorities.

Fears Disastrous Crash.

He also contended that the Roosevelt Administration was taking one great gamble—whether economic recovery will come before national and State debts get too vast for the country to carry, with the consequent inflation, bankruptcy and a disastrous crash.

He asserted that the business world, despite the "fairly decided upturn" of recent months, feared to take the risk and gamble and held back from lending or borrowing. He said he did not see how "there can be any sustained recovery unless these fears and uncertainties are dispelled."

All this doubt and fear of the future might be ended and confidence and courage restored, with a diversion of capital into the fields of trade and commerce, if the Roosevelt Administration would give the country three assurances, he continued.

Stable Money Urged.

These assurances he enumerated as follows:

"We should aim for a balanced budget. No nation can long be stable unless it recognizes fundamental economic truths. One is that, like an individual, it must live within its means. It will take time, of course, to balance the national budget. But it should be made clear we are committed as rapidly as possible in that direction.

"The country should be assured that our national currency is going to be sound and stable. Recovery is hard to visualize with the future of our currency uncertain.

"The country should be assured that the Government is not going to add to the national debt by borrowing so much additional money as to place an unbearable burden on the people in fixed charges for interest and redemption."

Neglect of Servant Costs Farmer $25

By the Associated Press.

Westminster, Md., May 23. Frank Thomas Davis, farmer, of the Mount Olive section of Carroll County, was fined $25 and costs in Carroll County Circuit Court on a charge of having failed to care for a demented servant under his care.

The servant, Frank Taylor, 41-year-old Negro, had been in his employ for a number of years and was taken in charge last February by county authorities. He was poorly clad, his hands were frozen and it was necessary to amputate several of his fingers. He was committed to the county home.

Davis denied the charge, stating that he had provided good food and clothing and that Taylor refused to wear the clothing and was hard to handle. The costs included a doctor's bill of $40.

Estimates Cut On Apple Crop In Shenandoah

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 23.—The heavy apple crop forecast three weeks ago with a big bloom over Shenandoah Valley belt has been reduced heavily by failure of York Imperial, main variety in this area, to set its crop well, a survey among principal orchardists today showed.

There is a possibility this year's crop from this section will not be much larger than last year's comparatively light crop.

Yorks were the victims of a "mystery" freeze in mid-April, which did not affect to any great extent the other varieties although Yorks, latest to bloom and usually hardiest of all varieties, were mostly well wrapped in the bud stage while the other varieties were further out.

Experienced growers predicted heavy York injury. Now, with the blossom period completed, they find that even though the York trees bloomed profusely, the entire cluster of buds is dropping in such a heavy percentage of cases that a light yield is plainly predicted. Some York blocks are practically stripped, especially those that bore crops last year.

Between 40 and 50 per cent of the total plantings of the Shenandoah belt are Yorks, according to census estimates.

Growers, fearful earlier of unfavorable prices in marketing the anticipated bumper crop, are encouraged by preliminary reports from the Northwest that this year's yield there probably will be light. The heavy tree loss from winter-killing in New York State orchards is another considerable factor in reducing the national crop this year, they note.

While Yorks apparently will be a short crop, most other varieties will be plentiful in the Shenandoah-Cumberland-Potomac belt. Several growers are already starting to thin their Yellow Transparents, which will start to market probably within seven weeks. Most of the other varieties, Staymans, Delicious, Winesays, Ben Davis and Rome Beauty are heavily set.

3d Corps Area Seeking 41,587 Men for CCC

Quotas for June 12 Enrollment Announced for D. C. and 3 States.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, May 23.—Procurement quotas for the new enrollment period of the Civilian Conservation Corps begininng June 12 show that a total of 41,587 men will be needed in the Third Corps Army Area to bring 322 companies to full strength.

These figures are based upon expansion requirements of 31,350 juniors and veterans plus the 10,000 due to normal losses to outside employment and expiration of 18 months of service.

New enrollees will not be sent to conditioning camps for final examination as has been done. All men certified by the various agencies will be sent to the nearest Army recruiting station for examination and those accepted will be sent direct to their companies in the field.

This change is made possible by subdivision of the old companies so that half of the veteran personnel will be assigned as the nucleus for the new company.

Procurement quotas assigned to the various subdivisions of the Third Corps Area are:

District of Columbia—1,344 juniors, 200 veterans, 16 local enrolled men, 1,560 total.

World Agency To Be Discussed At Labor Forum

U. S. Affiliation With Geneva Office to Be Topic at Institute.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 23.—A forum designed to explain the significance of American membership in the International Labor Office is 1 of the 10 on national and world affairs scheduled for the annual two-weeks' session of the Institute of Public Affairs, which will open at the University of Virginia June 30.

Speakers at the conference, which will be held during the second week of the institute program, will include Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor; John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and other officials and leading authorities on labor problems.

U. S. Now a Member.

An agency of the League of Nations, the International Labor Office has it headquarters in Geneva. Membership in the organization was accepted last year by President Roosevelt after authority had been granted by a joint resolution of Congress.

The forum will be led by Spencer Miller, jr., director of the Workers Education Bureau of America, who will open the labor discussions with a summary of the International Labor Conference which he will attend in Geneva within the next several weeks.

Two special addresses will be given in connection with the labor forum. Dr. James T. Shotwell, of Columbia University, will speak on the International Labor Office as an agency of international cooperation on July 8, and Miss Perkins will discuss American membership in the world organization July 10.

Others who will speak at the daily sessions are Dr. John B. Andrews, of the American Association for Labor Legislation; Thomas G. Spates, an industrial relations counsel of New York; Dr. Leland Rex Robinson, president of the International Securities Corporation of America; Leifur Magnusson, of the Washington office of the International Labor Organization; Dr. Samuel McCune Lindsay, of Columbia University; Dr. Isador Lubin, of the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington, and Dr. William Lonsdale Tayler, secretary of the International Labor Organization Committee.

Divorces Sped By New Statute In West Virginia

10 Decrees, a Record, Are Handed Down in Day at Martinsburg.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 23.—The new divorce law of West Virginia, in which separations are eliminated and litigants permitted to file suit for absolute divorce on legal grounds, has speeded up procedure in domestic relations section of the local circuit court.

There was a record number of divorce decrees handed down in court yesterday, most of them representing suits instituted several years ago, and reopened as direct applications for absolute decrees. Wives were the plaintiffs in the ten suits, as follows:

Mary Louise Hett vs. Frank H. Hett, plaintiff to resume maiden name of Young; Elsie G. Fey vs. Ray S. Fey, plaintiff to resume maiden name of Martin; Mary C. Miller vs. George W. Miller, she to resume the name of her former husband, as Mrs. Mary C. Hockenberry; Violet V. Dick vs. Charles M. Dick, she to resume maiden name of Shimp; Gladys Ryan vs. Charles R. Ryan, she to resume maiden name of Wigginton; Ruth E. McCasland vs. Harold A. McCasland, she to resume maiden name of Wageley; Lula Corbin vs. Frank Corbin, she to resume maiden name of Armel; Leona Keedy vs. Luther A. Keedy, she to resume maiden name of Barnes; Laura C. Johnson vs. Earl H. Johnson, and Margaret A. Rauch vs. Roscoe Rauch.

In each instance neither party is permitted to rewed, except one to the other, within 60 days. No alimony exactions were noted; in most cases none being asked. Several decrees recited that parties had come to an arrangement on property rights and allowances.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Keyser, W. Va., May 23.—C. Y. Everhart was renominated for mayor at the primary here yesterday, receiving 645 votes to 297 for Joseph Nowatski. Karl Seiver and J. E. Aronhalt also are candidates. A. J. Boor, incumbent, and John C. Freeland, jr., were nominated for councilmen over C. E. Byrd and Harry Castle.

Calvert County Fixes Tax Levy $1.35 on $100

Increase of 25 Cents Made Necessary by Highway Improvements.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Prince Frederick, Md., May 23.—The county commissioners met yesterday and fixed the levy for Calvert County for $1.35 on $100. The State rate of 22 cents is additional.

Some of the larger items are:

Health officer, $900; health nurse, $1,500; extension work, $1,775; circuit court, $2,000; courthouse, school and road bonds, $14,025; sheriff's account, $3,441; State hospitals for the insane, $3,100; out pensioners, $2,279; elections' cost, $3,733; treasurer's salary, $2,000; public schools, $29,223.98.

The total assessment of real and personal property, including automobiles on which the full rate is laid, is:

First district, $1,543,190; second district, $1,367,667; third district, including North Beach and Chesapeake Beach towns, $2,669,336; automobiles, $130,000.

On the following assessments, special rates are provided by law: Bank stock, $182,990; securities, $12,000; corporation, $47,000.

While the rate is 25 cents above that of last year, some of the increase is caused by certain items, such as road funds, school expense, sheriff's account, police commissioner's court, health nurse, extension work, out pensioners and court expenses.

Kate T. Payne, Federal Court Employe, Dies

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., May 23.—Mrs. Kate Todd Payne, 47, first woman deputy clerk in the United States District Court for Western Virginia and the oldest deputy in the district in point of service, died at the hospital here last night after several weeks' illness.

She was named deputy at Harrisonburg in 1925 by the late Judge Henry C. McDowell after serving a number of years in the offices of Harrisonburg attorneys.

Mrs Payne was the daughter of Mrs. Henrietta Sprinkle Woodson and the late A. Dyer Woodson. She was a granddaughter of the late Judge John Woodson and a niece of the late R. Lee Woodson, for many years Harrisonburg commissioner of revenue.

Besides her mother, she is survived by her husband, William Payne, son of the late Capt. W. W. Payne; a son, by her first marriage, Writ Todd, of Norfolk; a sister, Mrs. M. C. O'Donnell, Harrisonburg; two brothers, Frank Woodson, Philadelphia, former Mayor of Harrisonburg and a former United States deputy marshal, and George Woodson, also of Philadelphia.

Byrd Attacked On Labor Bills

Senator Has 'Zero Record,' Bowden Says in Reply to Defense.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., May 23.—R. T. Bowden, Richmond printer and author of the Virginia Federation of Labor resolution criticizing the labor records of Senators Byrd and Glass, said today Byrd "apparently misunderstood the full scope of the resolution" when he made his reply yesterday.

Reviewing the resolution which he drafted and which R. K. Smith, another Richmond printer, sponsored and which the federation adopted without a dissenting vote, Bowden said:

"Mr. Byrd replied to that portion of the resolution that applied to one of his votes: The vote on the McCarren amendment to the public bill, but did not explain why he opposed labor on the most vital bill on the program, the Wagner labor disputes bill.

"The basis of the resolution not only was his vote against the McCarran amendment but his vote against six different bills sponsored by the American Federation of Labor since he entered the Senate in March, 1933. Our records show that he failed to vote upon two others, and that he has not voted favorably to labor a single time. He has a zero record."

Wheat Growers Voting On AAA Plan Saturday

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., May 23.—County Farm Agent Ralph F. McHenry yesterday issued a bulletin to all wheat growers in Allegany County announcing that a referendum on the proposed extension of the crop-reduction program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration will be held Saturday. The polls will close at 8 p. m.

The referendum in this section will be conducted by the Allegany County Wheat Production Control Association, and all wheat growers, whether or not they signed previous AAA agreements, are eligible to vote.

The purpose is to obtain the views of the wheat growers throughout the United States on the proposed continuance of the wheat-production control program, according to County Agent McHenry, who said the future of the AAA plan will depend upon the vote of the growers.

Accident Injury Abroad Is Fatal To Dr. Johnston

He Was Long Rector of St. John's Episcopal Church Here.

The Rev. Robert Johnston, who for years was rector of historic St. John's Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and H streets northwest, died yesterday at Canterbury, England, according to a cablegram received here by the present rector of the church, the Rev. Dr. Oliver Hart.

Injured seriously last December in an automobile accident near London, Dr. Johnston never fully recovered. In the same crash his sister-in-law, Mrs. Florence Crow, was killed.

Dr. Johnston resigned from his Washington pastorate in November, 1933, because of ill health, and went to England more than a year ago. There he hoped to regain his strength.

The career of Dr. Johnston in the church was distinguished. He was the son of Richard Johnston and Anne Guthrie As a churchman he was widely known both here and abroad. He received honorary degrees from King's College, Nova Scotia, and from the University of Pennsylvania.

In 1895 he was ordained a deacon, and in 1896 a priest. He came to the United States in 1909 from Edinburgh, Scotland, to occupy the pulpit in the Church of Our Saviour in Philadelphia. He came to Washington and St. John's in 1922.

Dr. Johnston was chosen candidate for bishop coadjutor of Pennsylvania. His friends asserted he did not desire this advancement, preferring to remain here.

He was a member of the Chapter of the Washington Cathedral and headed several committees at the Dicesan House, on Thirteenth street, during his residence in the District. Church magazines often reprinted his scholarly sermons.

Dr. Johnston was born in 1871 at Berwick-on-Tweed, England. He was educated for the ministry at St. Augustine's Theological School at Canterbury.

He was married in 1896 to Miss Frances A. Gaywood who, with their four children, survive. A chronic invalid, Mrs. Johnston makes her home in Haverford, Pa., with Miss Margaret Johnston, her daughter.

The other children who survive are Mrs. Brinton Colfelt, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Frederick Morrison and Richard Johnston, of Baltimore. Mrs. Morrison sailed for England last Saturday to go to her father's bedside.

No information regarding funeral services for Dr. Johnston was contained in the cablegram.

All Walks of Life Pay Tribute At Jane Addams Funeral Rites

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 23.—Chicago bade farewell today to its most beloved citizen—Jane Addams.

Two thousand persons—from the social register, the telephone book, the relief rolls—crowded into the open courtyard of world-famous Hull House for the simple funeral service. They sat and stood, this cross-section of the city's population, with heads bared and bowed while two ministers pronounced the nondenominational rites. Others peered from windows and balconies and roofs.

A mound of flowers on a roofless portico was the cynosure of all eyes. Beneath it reposed the casket. Above it towered a cross of white roses.

Dr. Gilkey Speaks.

Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago Chapel, delivered a brief eulogy. A poignant wave of drama swept the assemblage when he said:

"If you would see her monument, look around you. Look at this company of her neighbors, brought together in common sorrow."

The company included:

Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, a Mexican woman hugging a babe to her breast; President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago, a group of Negroes, Chief Justice J. J. Sonsteby of the Municipal Court, a gray-bearded rabbi.

John J. "Bathhouse" Coughlin, dean of the city council, and Sewell Avery, called Chicago's busiest business man, sat in the first row. Near them stood a husky youth in a football sweater, an urchin in ragged attire. The silks of the Gold Coast rubbed against aprons of the Ghetto. Prof. Arthur Todd, of Northwestern University, listened attentively. An aged woman of foreign extraction listened, but apparently understood no word as Dr. Gilkey continued:

Choir Sings Hymns.

A choir of Hull House girls sang a soft hymn. A Hull House ensemble played a muted dirge. Handkerchiefs were raised to moist eyes. A dozen mothers paid touching tribute. They stood for an hour with infants in their arms.

Dr. Graham Taylor, 81 years old, delivered the benediction. His words were carried by a loudspeaker system beyond the courtyard to hundreds of listeners gathered in the streets outside the block-square settlement.

And the funeral of Jane Addams, social worker, peace advocate, humanitarian, whose fame had girdled the globe, was over.

Tomorrow she will be laid to rest in the family plot at Cedarville, Ill.

Steinmetz Sobs At Murder Trial, Pleads 'Lapse'

Divinity Student Accused of Slaying Priest, Wife; Case Near Jury.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 23.—Women spectators dabbed at their eyes today as a curly-haired young divinity student told a general sessions jury how he burst drunkenly into a hotel room and found his bride—"the most beautiful girl I ever saw" being kissed by a middle-aged priest.

"I don't remember—I don't remember," he sobbed when asked what happened next.

The State says he seized a pistol and shot them. It demands that he pay with his life.

Pounded by a barrage of questions, Joseph L. Steinmetz burst into tears as he faced his cross-examiner.

Mind "a Blank."

"My mind was out, sir," he sobbed. "My mind was asleep."

"But you shot your wife," thundered Assistant District Attorney Alexander H. Kaminsky.

"I didn't have my mind."

"You don't remember standing over the prostrate form of your wife and firing shots into her body?"

"I don't remember," wailed the defendant.

"——stop this bellowing at the witness," broke in the defense counsel, Samuel S. Leibowitz.

"It was all right for you to bellow at the cops for five days," retorted Kaminsky. Then turning to Steinmetz, he resumed.

"You shot that priest, you put bullets into that priest?"

"I don't remember."

"Isn't the reason you shot them that you saw them partly undressed?"

"The last thing I remember is Father Leonard kissing my wife."

To Reach Jury Monday.

The defense rested late in the day and indications were that Steinmetz, accused of killing the former Ruth Armstrong, his bride of two weeks, and the Rev. Joseph J. Leonard, may see the case go to the jury Monday.

Tomorrow there will be rebuttal testimony by Samuel H. Armstrong, of Knoxville, Tenn., father of the dead girl, who is expected to tell of events that preceded the couple's marriage.

These were hinted at today when Kaminsky questioned the defendant about what happened in a Los Angeles bungalow the night before they were married. When they told Armstrong about it, Steinmetz testified, the girl's father said: "You can get married now."

1,000 Pupils Give Circus Tomorrow

20 Acts on Program at Central Stadium.

The 20 colorful acts of the Children's Festival Circus tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. in Central High School's stadium will be announced by Melvin D. Hildreth, the Community Center Department, under whose auspices the show is to be held, said yesterday.

A number of Government agencies and bureaus are co-operating in the presentation. More than 1,000 children of the public schools will participate.

Frank Portillo, the "children's clown," will lead a group of 20 young clowns through their paces, interspersing the comedy and acrobatic stunts among dainty dancing numbers by girls. Ten ringmasters, headed by Harold Snyder and Miss Alice O'Connell, will officiate in costumes of red, white and black.

The Washington Boys' Independent Band and the Washington Elks' Boys Band will furnish the marching music and the interlude and orchestrations of the circus.

4 Society Women Get Reno Decrees

Gillets of Baltimore Among Latest Divorced.

By the Associated Press.

Reno, Nev., May 23.—Society matrons from four Eastern cities were included among the 14 persons who obtained divorces at private trials in Reno today.

F. Warrington Gillet, socially prominent in Baltimore, was divorced on grounds of cruelty by Mrs. Louise Harris Gillet. They were married September 10, 1929, and have one son, F. Warrington Gillet, jr., aged 4.

Mrs. Mary Mirkil, Philadelphia social registerite, won a decree from William Mirkil on grounds of cruelty. They were married in June, 1931, at Westchester, Pa.

Mrs. Isabelle Trenchard Arnold divorced Edward W. C. Arnold, New York socialite, on a charge of desertion. They were married December 11, 1921.

Van Ness H. Bates, a Boston society leader, was divorced by Mrs. Elinor B. Bates, who charged cruelty. Their marriage took place in Dedham, Mass., June 14, 1930.

U. S. Prepares For Direct Aid Through June

Works Allotment Board Fixes $131,000,000 for Next Month.

Preparations were made by the Administration yesterday to carry on direct relief through June on virtually the same basis as the past, indicating little expectation that any considerable number of persons will be put to work under the works program before July.

The Works Allotment Board, meeting at the White House, allotted $131,000,000 for June direct relief. The direct relief cost during May is estimated at about $140,000,000. There normally is a small reduction in the load between the two months.

With Secretary Wallace in the chair in the absence of Secretary Ickes, who is out of the city, the board recommended a total of $155,360,600 in allotments. This contrasted with more than $1,000,000,000 allotted last week.

The making of allotments is expected to slow down considerably for several weeks while low-cost work relief jobs, designed to put many to work at a minimum investment in materials, are found. It was announced that a policy as to the maximum percentage of grants to be allowed on public works projects will be made public today or tomorrow.

FERA Gets $9,000,000.

In addition to the relief allotment, the board transferred $9,000,000 from the rural resettlement fund to the FERA, to be used in carrying on rural rehabilitation work until the resettlement division gets under way.

Other allotments were:

Six million dollars to the General Accounting Office to pay for auditing the accounts of the works program. This is expected to cover the bookkeeping cost of the entire program. Virtually all of this fund will be spent in Washington.

Eight millions, six hundred and ten thousand and six hundred dollars for general repairs and construction of navy yards and docks. It was said that almost all of this amount will go into direct labor. None of the navy yard money will be spent in Washington.

Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to the Department of Agriculture for eradication of the Dutch elm disease. This will be almost entirely a labor charge.

Five hundred thousand dollars for the payment of wages in the Forest Service until June 1. Heretofore these wages had been paid from Emergency Conservation Work funds.

Although it has received no allotment, the Rural Electrification Administration, called in managers of rural electrification plans for conference today. Morris L. Cooke, the administrator, said this would be the beginning of a series of general conferences with representatives of the electrical industry.

Labor Protests Scales.

With organized labor still objecting to the wage scales for the works program ordered by President Roosevelt, Secretary Perkins came to their defense. She said solution of the wage problem would be found "within the proper and sound administration of the exceptions to the regular pay scale."

Miss Perkins reported that for the fifth consecutive month employment showed a slight increase in April. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that more than 120,000 persons returned to work, but that payrolls were down about $300,000. This was accounted for by a sharp falling off in the bituminous coal industry.

Durable goods industries, while still lagging behind, are showing a steady increase, Miss Perkins said. She also said there had been 150 per cent more private building in the first quarter of 1935 than during a similar period last year.

Factory employment was shown to be up seven-tenths of 1 per cent, while the increase in durable goods employment was 1.5 per cent.

Prisoner Not Karpis; Just a Braggart, He

Chicago, May 22 (AP).—A garrulous prisoner who had kicked up a flurry while being rushed across the West in a plane by claiming he was Alvin Karpis, Public Enemy No. 1, was identified by authorities as Jack Loague, a burglary suspect, when he reached the Chicago Airport late today.

Detective Sergt. A. O. Clark, of the Memphis (Tenn.) police department, identified Loague as his prisoner and dispelled rampant rumors that the notorious Karpis has been captured. Clark said he had gone to Vale, Oreg., to get the suspect and was returning him to Memphis for trial on burglary charges.

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

Broadway Jungle

New York, May 23.

Directly west were the skyscraper apartments of Central Park West, and directly east was the jagged stone skyline of Fifth avenue. To the south towered the stone parapets of the St. Moritz, the Essex House and the New York Athletic Club. But here at Sixty-third street, in the very heart of New York, I was standing in front of a live tiger. It was only 10 feet from me, and the yellow eyes burning into mine were loaded with hot hatred, hatred of me and hatred of the iron bars that detained it in the Central Park Zoo. "Here, girl," said Headkeeper Bob Hurton. The hatred faded from the eyes of the big cat, and to my amazement, she wagged her tail at the sound of his voice. "I'd like to help you out with a story," he said, the sunlight flashing on the green metal maple leaves attached to his olive-green lapels, "but there's not much to write about here. Nothing very unusual in the Central Park Zoo."

"Animals are pretty much like human beings," the veteran remarked, philosophically. "Take this buffalo bull, the male, for instance. We have him in a separate pen right now because the females are carrying their young. The male would kill the babies if he could. The thought was horrible. "I thought you said they were pretty much like human beings?" I asked indignantly. "That's right," he said. "I read in the papers yesterday about a man murdering his two sons. The only difference is that the buffalo doesn't know any better." There was no answer to that, and I kept still. But 24 hours later, I still can't get his answer out of my mind.

In front of the camel pen, the headkeeper asked me a question: "Do you think Braddock can whip Max Baer?" Instead of answering, I asked him about the camel. "Four years old," he said, "and time certainly flies. I remember the morning we dragged him into the world. They called me at 5 o'clock and it was a dark, cold morning. He turned to me: "I suppose you know Peggy Joyce and all those people?" We had reached the pen where the llamas were. "That's a young llama," he answered my question. "We just got him down out of a sling. He broke his leg, pawing at the bars, and we thought we'd have to destroy him, just as we had to destroy his mother. We took a last chance and hung him in the air to keep him off his feet. Now he's just as good as new." We moved down the aisles where the big cats live, hundreds of pounds of slinky death. "A lady brought that lioness here when it was a cub," he said. The dun-colored giantess moved to the bars as he spoke to her, but her face changed to a sullen death mask when she stared flatly at me. "The lady, her name was Leary, brought this one in on a leash, but you're too big for a leash and collar now, aren't you, girl?" The lioness, as if in answer, sailed through the air to the upper ledge of the cage on which it sleeps. "It must get pretty dull here Mr. Hurton," I said, jokingly. "It is," he said, seriously, "not half as exciting as writing a Broadway column."

MacDonald to Quit In Baldwin's Favor

By the Associated Press.

London, May 23.—Informed political quarters today regarded as certain the resignation of Ramsay MacDonald, the rugged Scot who emerged from poverty in bleak Moray Firth to enjoy the power of prime minister of Britain.

The elevation of Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, to the post of prime minister, which he has held before, was expected before Whitsuntide, June 9.

The 68-year-old MacDonald, whose eyes have caused him much trouble in recent years, has received a new and urgent warning from the specialists that he must not continue to subject them to the strain his office demands. This led to the widely circulated report that he quickly will step away from No. 10 Downing street and will take over the post now held by Baldwin.

Sources close to the government said a general election probably will be held in the early autumn. It was believed that Baldwin, in taking the prime ministry, would shuffle the cabinet about in order to present the strongest line-up possible in the coming elections.

Milk at Home and Abroad

MILK sold for local consumption must comply with local health requirements. It must be produced locally.

Milk in excess of the community's fluid requirements is used for making by-products—butter, cheese, ice cream, milk powder, and the like. It is in considerable part shipped out of its home territory and competes in its finished forms in distant markets.

Because it must take its chances on strange ground, the price the milkman pays for it is not based on local supply, or on the cost of technical control required to meet local health regulations.

The going price which the milkman can get for his by-products in a remote market determines the figure he can pay the local dairyman.

Under the "classified plan," the milkman pays and the producer gets the best prices which can be paid for the use to which the milk is finally put.

What the public wants—and the quantity in which it wants it—is the decisive arbiter of price in bottle and in by-product.

Shrine Parades To Be Lighted By 60,000 Bulbs

1,500,000 Feet of Lumber to Go Into Stands; 20 Miles of Bunting.

Robert P. Smith, director general of the Shrine convention, reached down into his statistics grab bag yesterday and came up with the announcement that 1,500,000 feet of lumber is being used in construction of those grandstands which have already taken shape along downtown Pennsylvania avenue.

This figure, he said, includes the Pavilion of Omar as well as the stands. Then, as if to offset this concession, he proclaimed that 60,000 electric light bulbs will illuminate the night parades and pageants on June 11, 12 and 13.

Twenty miles of bunting will be hung along the parade route, between John Marshall place and Washington Circle, exclusive of 10,000 flags.

Racketeers Print Program.

The official program, which has been completed and is now at the printer's, is being closely guarded, Smith disclosed, to prevent its falling into the hands of "racketeers."

"These racketeers already are giving us some trouble," he said, "by publishing programs purporting to be the official ones. They are soliciting and obtaining advertising with their spurious claims that theirs is the official program."

The convention director, who is also potentate of Almas Temple, said the following events will be the highlights of the sixty-first annual conclave:

June 9—Divine services on Temple Heights, Connecticut and Florida avenues, with the Rev. John C. Palmer officiating. Water sports carnival in the Georgetown channel.

Closes June 15.

June 10—Pilgrimage to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington and to Mount Vernon. The Canzoneri-Klick fight at Griffith Stadium.

June 11—Escort parade in honor of the imperial potentate, Dana S. Williams, of Lewiston, Me. Opening of imperial council session at the National Theater. Imperial potentate's banquet at the Willard Hotel.

June 12—Council session in morning and afternoon. Massed band concert in the Ellipse, 3,000 musicians participating. Army and Navy displays. Parade of uniformed units.

Dead Man Here Believed To Be From Berwick, Pa.

Police last night continued efforts to identify the body of a man found Wednesday in the Tidal Basin. It was learned that an automobile, abandoned near the spot where a passerby discovered the body, belonged to John Heavner, of Berwick, Pa.

Investigators believe the unidentified man may be Heavner. Arrival of relatives is awaited. Heavner, according to reports from Berwick, left home May 2 and failed to return. The man's body was found floating in the water by Leo Harlarson, of 328 Seventeenth place northeast.

"WHAT PRICE should I pay for GOOD WHISKEY?"

MAY
1934.
Everybody was wondering
Just one year ago there were many whiskies on the market—at many different prices. And people were puzzled, confused. "How much should I pay for good whiskey?" was a question on every lip. Many, many experiments were made.
MAY

Everybody-sure
Experiments over! Today America is saying: "The Price of good whiskey is the Price of Seagram's." Seagram's Crown Whiskies are first in sales—with 40,000,000 bottles in less than one year. Seagram's costs a little more . . . —the difference in price is slight —the difference in taste is great.

Finished Business.

The influence of President Roosevelt's emphatic message is clearly evident in the vote by which the Senate sustained his veto of the Patman bill. Republicans and Democrats alike were impressed by the convincing logic and the admirable political courage of the President's words. Three Senators changed their previous affirmative votes in order to uphold the executive position. Four others who were not present when the Patman bill was initially approved joined in the chorus of "noes." As a result the victory of the Administration was far more decisive than had been expected.

Perhaps the most significant aspect of this vote is that it puts the bonus out of the legislative picture at this session of Congress. A move is already under way to attach the Vinson bill to pending appropriation measures that could not easily be vetoed. But it does not appear that the bonus advocates will be able to command enough votes to carry out this indefensible threat of sabotage. The irrefutable arguments which killed the Patman bill run with almost equally devastating effect against the Vinson proposal. There are other indications that the Senate's vote was a final disposition of an issue which should never have been raised.

Administration leaders cannot be indifferent to the President's reasoned opposition to upsetting the generous settlement already in force. They could not countenance a move for the enactment of a "compromise" measure without risking an open split with the White House. For a new bonus fight would throw the legislative program into confusion. It would delay the work relief projects and accentuate the difficulties of the New Deal. It may be assumed that Senate leaders will use all the influence at their command to avoid such a squabble.

Too much time has already been wasted by congressional maneuvers resulting, as the President said, from "political coercion by minorities." Congress must now go forward with a program already unduly delayed. The bonus has been killed. It is finished business. If Congress feels even in slight degree the moral obligation to consider the national welfare, so pointedly manifested in the President's address, it will now turn its full attention to more constructive issues.

Beside The Point.

In his attempt to discredit the report of the District sub-committee on crime, Representative Werner makes a number of sweeping statements that may well be carefully examined by the full House District Committee. "Crime conditions in Washington," he says in a minority report, "are not abnormal." If that is true, the drastic action recommended by the majority of the investigators would seem to be unwarranted. But the supporting evidence assembled by Mr. Werner is singularly unconvincing.

"It is my experience," says Congressman Werner, ". . . that residents of Washington can go about the streets without fear of molestation." That much could generally be said of every village in the heart of China's bandit-ridden areas. What the record shows is that in proportion to population Washington has two and a half times as many murders as New York and 40 per cent more than Chicago. Washington is one of the most lawless big cities in the United States. Would the Representative from South Dakota suspend action until it becomes actually unsafe for citizens to venture on the streets?

The minority report flatly contends that "crime is decreasing in the District." But to arrive at that conclusion Mr. Werner has used a special comparison between the fiscal years 1932 and 1934. He is well aware of the fact that the disgraceful conditions which gave rise to the crime investigation developed during the last half of 1934, which period is curiously excluded from his statistics.

Mr. Werner disposes of all accusations against public officials by saying they are trivial and by trying to show that "the trend of enforcement is distinctly upward." Even if these points could be sustained, we would still be confronted by the fact that the criminal who commits a felony in the District has 15 chances of escaping a jail sentence to one chance of being punished. If this reflects an "upward trend" of law enforcement, something infinitely better than an upward trend is needed.

The chief reason for this shameful neglect in the protection of life and property is the apathy of Congress and some officials who are directly responsible for the public safety. They have taken much the same let-it-slide attitude that is now expressed by Congressman Werner. Today, however, the Department of Justice is conducting a courageous and effective campaign against crime. The purpose is to point the way whereby the States and municipalities can strengthen their law enforcement machinery. It would be intolerably ironical if Congress and the Administration should ignore the increasing inroads of crime into the only section of the country over which they have exclusive jurisdiction.

Relief And Other Workers.

Leaders of the American Federation of Labor are disappointed because the wages established for work-relief projects are far below prevailing wage scales. They fear that this will produce "great social unrest" and possibly lead to widespread strikes among relief workers. Such comments betray a startling lack of understanding of the essential difference between work relief, offered by the Government as a substitute for doles, and wages paid by a private employer for self-sustaining labor.

If prevailing wages were paid on relief projects, workers would have no incentive to find other jobs. In some cases they would undoubtedly be attracted from present employment, as was the case under the hastily organized—CWA. To avoid further economic demoralization, and to prevent unnecessary squandering of a severely limited borrowing capacity, it is essential to keep relief-work payments below the earnings obtainable for similar work in private employment. The only legitimate issue is whether the announced scale is higher than that of the dole in comparative areas. Relief Administrator Hopkins says it is.

There is, moreover, another compelling reason for refusing to pay prevailing wage rates on relief work. That is the stupendous cost involved. Even by spending billions the Government can not provide work relief for all of the millions of idle men and women in the country. And the great increase in the budgetary deficit from the present effort shows only too clearly that even low work-relief wages can not be paid by the Government out of current income.

Private employment, on the other hand, usually results in profits out of which high wages can and should be paid. The $6 per diem wage which the Ford Co. has reintroduced, for example, is not a burden either upon that company or upon the taxpayers. It is a payment out of a surplus fund which the workers themselves have largely created. The Government, in hiring men and women merely to remove them from relief rolls, will probably have no surplus to show for the activities of those employed. Its books reveal only a mounting deficit, which outstrips increases in current revenue resulting from improved business and larger incomes of taxpayers.

To suggest that men put to work under such conditions ought to strike in order to obtain the higher wages ruling in private employment is to reveal an absolutely unreasoning and reckless attitude. Work-relief wages would have to be paid out of national income, instead of by mortgaging the national future, before there could be any possible justification for attempts to force a higher scale.

For Bifocal Readers?

In the great abundance of bonus discussion currently available it may not seem worthy of mention, but in thumbing through yesterday's Congressional Record there appears a point that merits momentary attention.

In that section of our meticulous contemporary which reports the business of the House there naturally appears the full text—nearly three pages—of the President's veto message. And then the same three pages appear again in full under the proceedings of the Senate.

Assuredly, every legislator should absorb to the last word that notable document. But is it not flagrant provocation to Mr. McCarl to print it twice, in its entirely, within the space of eight pages, at a cost of some $50 a page?

Fleet Problem XVI.

In the terse euphemism of a Navy Department bulletin, it is announced that a seaplane with a crew of six has "failed to rendezvous with the squadron at the completion of exercises." Wreckage near the last-known position of the bomber indicates that it plunged suddenly into the sea while in full flight. Eight men in all have now died during the Pacific war games, the adjective here being used to describe the locale rather than the spirit of the maneuvers.

Few reasonable citizens ever criticize the activities which are desirable for maintenance of a high efficiency in the Navy. Yet, in regard to the current exercises, questions of time, place and magnitude have arisen in many realistic minds. It seems to the layman particularly unfortunate that this very serious "game" should have been ordered by our Government at a moment when the entire world is looking for leadership away from the maelstrom of war. Also, the coincidence of locating the theater for the maneuvers in the northern Pacific, in the direct vision of the highly-strung Japanese, was not the happiest gesture for a "good neighbor" to indulge in. Finally, the unprecedented scope and magnitude of the exercises partake of a belligerency somewhat paradoxical in the case of the country which sponsored the Kellogg pact.

The ill-starred seaplane is reported to have been engaged in a bombing flight as part of Fleet Problem XVI. Whether the solution was reached in spite of the death of six men has not been vouchsafed. One may at least hope that the sacrifice has had this constructive end, and that No. XVI is not the sort of problem where the answer only raises other issues.

Another Economic Conference?

Senator Tydings has laid before the Senate a proposal for an international conference dealing with such separate but intimately related problems as settlement of war debts, reduction of armaments, stabilization of currencies and removal of trade restrictions. He believes that the United States ought to take the initiative in putting an end to the present "deadly drift toward ruin." Secretary Hull's address indorsing Foreign Trade Week suggests that the State Department is thinking along the same line.

There is no questioning the force of the arguments which the Senator advances. As he says, we have made no progress toward collection of war debts by indulging in threats. So it is to our interest as a creditor to settle with our debtors and thereby remove a major obstacle to friendly intercourse. Obviously, armament races can not be stopped except by international agreements which make it safe for the individual nations to reduce the present enormous outlays. Stabilization of exchanges and removal of tariff barriers likewise depend upon joint action, if they are to be effective and beneficial to all.

Since the United States is generally held responsible for the collapse of the London economic conference at which the world hoped for tangible progress on these still unsettled issues, it is only fitting that we should take the initiative in proposing another conference. Such action would do much to dissipate skepticism regarding its outcome, especially if it were called by the President at the urging of Congress.

Various signs indicate that the isolationist policies which at one time seemed to be gaining the upper hand have lost favor in Administration circles. Secretary Morgenthau has hinted that an international stabilization agreement need not be indefinitely postponed. The State Department is actively engaged in negotiating reciprocal tariff agreements which involve a general lowering of trade barriers. Our growing budgetary deficit should help to make Congress more receptive to proposals to cut armament costs, even if there is an inadequate perception of the wastes and dangers of competitive outlays for so-called defense purposes. Finally, the rebuff to inflationary elements resulting from current efforts to cut relief payments, as well as the bonus veto, are both calculated to inspire confidence abroad and to make other countries more willing to enter into negotiations with us.

Although the Tydings proposal may seem somewhat premature, in view of the uncertainties which still surround our domestic policies and those of many other countries, it is none too soon to call attention to the evils of doing nothing at all. Ultimately, settlement of the vexing problems he has enumerated is essential, if the all but universal tendency toward lower living standards and sharper international antagonisms is to be reversed.

"Knowledge Is Given Thee."

Reports made at the thirtieth annual meeting of the American Association of Museums, now in session here, are in refreshing contrast to the general tenor of business statements in recent years. While so many industries have declined, so many institutions of learning sickened, the museums have steadily increased in numbers, activity, usefulness and popular appeal.

Local organizations, the separate commonwealths and the Federal Government, have all aided them. Nor has generous individual support been lacking. Old institutions have been preserved, new ones have been created. There are now something like 2,000 museums in the United States—a far larger roll than is found in any other country.

Of course, cases of budget reduction have been frequent, but have not been allowed to lessen the educational activities. Historic house museums have broadened their scope from memorials of an individual to tangible records of his epoch. The National Park Service, if it has not evolved a fresh type of museum, has at least amazingly developed an old idea at places like Washingtons Crossing, on the Delaware; at Yorktown and at Chicamauga. That same service, thanks largely to the initiative of the American Association of Museums, has instituted a program of trailside museums on its Western reservations. Everywhere the museums have extended their courses in art, history, science, pedagogy.

This growth is encouraging. No more than a glance overseas is required to recall the role of the museum in the spread of specialized knowledge and entertaining enlightenment. The Deutches Museum has been an outstanding force in German education. The Museum of the Vatican is a reservoir of culture. The British Museum is one of London's outstanding institutions. It is good to hear that the greater museums of America look forward to at least equal usefulness for our own people. Their survival, their spread, their advance in this period of depression has proved not alone their good management, but, even more, their social value.

Siam And Japan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With reference to the article entitled "Nations Roused by Fear Tokyo Will Rule Siam" by the Associated Press in your issue of May 13, 1935, may I draw your attention to my apprehension that the dissemination of such news might create a misunderstanding in the mind of the American public.

On inquiry from Bangkok, I am informed that there is no truth whatsoever in the Associated Press reports that Siam has signed a special treaty with Japan, that a Japanese adviser sits on the board of education in Siam, and that the Siamese government has placed an order for 30 warships with a Japanese shipbuilder.

I assure you that the declared policy of the Siamese government is to strengthen the bonds of friendship with all the treaty powers alike and not with any single one in particular.

I, therefore, venture to submit to you these corrections in the interests of the excellent relations which have always existed between the United States and Siam. We highly value American friendship, respect and appreciate the cooperation of the American citizens, and should not like to see those friendly relations and excellent understanding jeopardized by the propagation of inexact information such as recently appeared in the columns of the various newspapers.

DAMRAS,
Siamese Minister.

Corrected Statement.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I noticed that in the issue of May 20 of The Post I have been reported as "assailing the TVA rates as too high." This statement does not conform with the actual text of my speech, which runs as follows:

"But the lowest income groups will not benefit by this policy (of TVA to lower the rates), because even TVA rates are still too high to make their demand effective . . . There is no denying the fact that the rate policy of TVA and the work of EHFA have already made effective potential demand which hitherto had to remain unsatisfied."

I should be only too grateful if you could see your way to correct the wrong impression which has been conveyed by the report in your paper. BERTA ASCH.

Utilities Bill Dangers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The increasingly frequent exhibitions of irritable sensitiveness on the part of the most pampered Administration in the history of the United States are not without their significance. Nothing raises stronger presumption against methods and measures proposed in a democracy than the attempt so to invest them with sacredness as to place them beyond the pale of criticism and discussion.

The Wheeler-Rayburn utilities bill is such a measure. The inescapable consequence of that bill would be expropriation—just so much cold-blooded filching of American citizens who, by the exercise of foresight and sacrifice, have attempted to insure their self-support and fortify their self-respect. Nevertheless, public protests against this bill were recently met by the Administration with a blast which fell far short of nice democratic urbanity.

We, in the United States, would do well to recall that a democrary functions not through rulers but through agencies which are created by, and are subject to, the people. If the past two years have revealed nothing else, they have revealed the danger of supinely permitting ourselves to be sacrificed upon the altars of the stupidity and vanity of partisan vested interests.

AN OBSERVER.
Washington, May 17.

Banking Bill Favors.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Enactment of the pending banking bill would open the way to another orgy of speculation in land values, such as that of the boom period ending in 1929, which ruined thousands of banks and caused the loss of billions of dollars to bank depositors and stockholders. It was the locking up of bank funds in "frozen assets" of speculative real estate promotion schemes that was the chief cause of the financial collapse in 1929.

Do the American people want the little money that they have left used in boosting prices of land far above its real values? If not, they should vigorously protest to their Senators and Representatives in Congress against the special favor for land speculators provided for in the banking bill.

TVA Check-Up.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Representatives Pettengill, of Indiana (Democrat), and McLean, of New Jersey (Republican), are entitled to the nonpartisan thanks of all taxpayers for putting the searchlight on the financial affairs of the TVA in the recent hearings before the Military Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives.

As the TVA assumes to be a "yardstick" for all private utilities, it is only right that Congress should apply to the TVA itself the usual yardsticks of proper and honorable accounting for funds and keeping expenses within appropriations.

Strange New Deal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The psychology of the New Deal seems to be evolving itself into something strange, indeed, for the social security, agricultural and other measures are being mapped out on a basis of an imitation which, while it may be a sincere flattery, nevertheless involves practices which ought to be eliminated from fields in which they occur instead of becoming a pattern for future developments.

While the practices of exploitation by special interests are complained of by the apologists for labor and agriculture, they nevertheless seem to be proceeding on the theory that two wrongs will make a right. But when this snipe-hunting expendition in the cold, gray dawn of depression is over, the farmer and laborer will be found holding the bag.

ALDEN A. POTTER.
Bethesda, Md., May 20.

Taxpayers' Tocsin.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There are many lobbies in Washington; many people come here in the interest of special legislation, but so far as I know, no one looks out for the interests of the taxpayer. He is the sucker who pays the bills.

I am one of these suckers. I pay—not in large amounts, but I pay—city, county, State taxes and Federal income tax. And I'll be darned if I like the bonus or the $5,000,000,000 expenditure. But since we taxpayers are not organized, who cares what we think or like?

Come on, taxpayers, let's organize! We're the ones who must pay, sooner or later, so let's see what we can do to stem the rising tide of expenditure. Let's make the New Deal remember the forgotten man—the taxpayer. Where can we find a leader to tell us when to telegraph our Congressman to vote against more raids on the Treasury?

"That They May All Be One"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos of your editorial in today's Post a very fair and impartial statement, to say the least, yet permit me to add the Church of England is already in the Catholic Church, it does not need to reenter as pleaded by the head of the Roman Church.

During 1534-1570 millions were born baptized, confirmed, shriven, had received their communions regularly at Anglican altars; had finished their course, and fortified by the last sacraments, had gone out into the other world; and Pope after Pope had regarded it as a thing to be permitted without question that all these faithful souls, hungering for the bread of life, should be fed by the shepherds of a church which Rome now declares to be the evil device of the most wicked king who ever sat on England's throne.

Seven Popes reigned contemporary with this early reformation period. They knew what was going on, and they were well content to leave their people to the spiritual mercies of a church which we are now told was Henry's creation.

The claim of the Roman Church is that these men were infallible rulers of the universal church, with the responsibility for the world on their souls. And yet not one of them had addressed himself to the work of rescuing England and English Catholics from the pretensions of this church which they now claim had been conceived in iniquity and born in sin.

Nor did the lower clergy think so, for, on the accession of Elizabeth, out of 9,400 priests, the majority of whom had served under papal authority in Queen Mary's reign, only 192 were found who refused to take the oath of allegiance, and serve the reformed Church of England.

This was what the English clergy and people did; and for modern Rome to assert that the Anglican church had its beginning with Henry VIII is to assert that seven Popes considered it right and proper for their spiritual children to ally themselves with what they now declare to be the schismatical and heretical creature of a rebellious secular power. Is Rome prepared to make such an acknowledgment? EPISCOPALIAN.
Washington, May 21.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: Permit me a word regarding the editorial "That They May All Be One" in your issue of May 21, in which you suggest that cultural, temperamental and political differences are factors in preventing the return of the Church of England to the Catholic Church.

The Catholic Church, while making no concessions in essentials, is broad enough in nonessentials, to have embraced peoples of all cultures, temperaments and political views. Ancient Greeks and American Indians, Australian farmers and Polish noblemen, Chinese and Irishmen have been at home in it. Intellectual giants like St. Augustine and St. Thomas Aquinas, and unlettered servant girls; the utterly poor, like St. Francis of Assisi, and potentates like St. Louis; artists, like Dante, Michaelangelo and Palestrina; and scientists like Copernicus, Pasteur and Mendel; monarchists like Charlemagne, and republicans like Terence McSwiney and Chief Justice White, all have accepted it as their mother. In our own time, careers as different as those of the Little Flower and Marshal Foch, Cardinal Newman and Father Damien, St. Bernadette Soubirous and Al Smith, have been sheltered by it.

The fundamentals of Christianity are matters of more importance than culture, temperament and political views.

A Whale Of A Business.

Post Office, Friday.

THE larger Cetaca are in danger of extermination—again. That is to say, they have already been dangerously depleted in Northern waters and now they are being mopped up in Southern. So the Norwegian government, through its Whaling Council, is asking the British government, through its Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, to see what can be done to put the whaling industry within safe limits.

In the time of Moby Dick, whaling was romantic, difficult, dangerous. There was the battle of the boat with the monster: the latter had a chance for life, the boat crew shared a remarkably good chance of death. There was the long voyage in the little ship: the vessels averaged a mere 400 tons, and, before they could secure a satisfactory cargo—4,000 barrels of oil, six barrels to the ton—they might be three years absent from the home port.

Then, in 1868, Sven Foyn invented the shell harpoon. The sporting element that belonged to the hand-flung weapon vanished. The nineteenth century had not ended before the whales themselves were almost ended in the North Atlantic, even the Arctic. It remained only for the so-called "Pelagic System" to transform whaling into "industrialized slaughter."

With the decrease of prey—well, call it "raw material"—in Northern waters, explorers turned to the Antarctic. Navigators, among whom Norway's Larsen was a pioneer, found an abundance of whales in the neighborhood of South Georgia. By the time the World War started, whaling stations flourished on that island: a settlement of huts and factories.

But what had happened elsewhere happened also in those seas. The supply was reduced far below the demand. When news came of fresh fields in and about Ross Sea, the industry prepared to exploit that region.

Here, however, a new problem presented itself. Those waters offered no harbors—and this lack evolved pelagic whaling.

It is quite the last word in industrial efficiency afloat.

Big steamers are built which are really sea-going oil plants. Mobile, they follow the fleet wherever it may lead. They are so equipped that the carcasses can be taken aboard and then and there converted into trade material.

The job is worked thus:

As soon as a whale has been dispatched by a whaler, it is dragged alongside that boat. A pipe forces air into the stomach until the body is buoyant; a marking flag is placed upon it, and it is cast adrift, while the whaler pursues more game.

When the number of the catch has mounted to a sufficient figure, the inflated whales are collected and towed to the floating factory always hovering close at hand. There, tail first, carcass after carcass is worked into a hole in the bows. By steel hawsers, the monsters are lifted to the foredeck; on that deck the flensers at once begin to strip the blubber.

Those "mother ships" have enormous tanks. These filled, they steam for home—to deliver their cargoes "direct to the buyers."

A scientific business!

The introduction of the Sven Foyn shell harpoon did wonders. In the succeeding 35 years the whale catch of all the seas totaled 20,025.

But pelagic thoroughness has made this seem a trifle. In a recent single season, and in the Antarctic fields alone, 29,410 blue whales were converted into whale oil and 10,017 fin whales: just 39,427 in all.

Of course, the entire breed is threatened.

Norwegians being the chief offenders, the government of Norway has done what it could to limit the offense and control the destruction. Norway has twice induced her whalers to promise a restriction of their catch—in the seasons of 1932-1933 and 1933-1934. Moreover, in 1929 she enacted a law prohibiting "the killing or taking of immature whales or female whales accompanied by sucking calves"—decreeing, too, that "the fullest use" be made of all whales killed. And this law she sent to Geneva, where it was used to form the basis for an international convention of the League of Nations.

The Oslo government is willing to go even further by the imposition of more restrictions upon its nationals. But a great deal further it can not safely go unless the governments of other countries express a willingness to go as far. And the Geneva convention, though it came into operation some months since, is neither sufficiently broad nor sufficiently supported.

What the Norwegian Whaling Council wants of the British Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries is a bilateral agreement that will become multilateral through pressure of world opinion—and that will make the ocean, if not altogether safe for whales, at least as safe as it ought to be.

Poor Mr. Chavez.

IF the veterans have that sickly feeling which comes with the day after, they should consider Senator Chavez, the successor of Bronson Cutting from New Mexico. When that man voted "no" on the roll call to override the President's bonus veto he could scarcely be heard. Apparently he could hardly get the word out of his throat. It was as weak as the condemned man when he responds to the executioner's query "Are you ready?" or the "I do" of the fellow who has been led to the altar against his will.

Mr. Chavez is in trouble. He has been in trobule, in fact, ever since he retired from the House to run for the Senate. Even the brief happiness that came with his being ushered into the Senate was marred by the action of several Progressives in walking out on him. Now the trouble he has been having is nothing as compared to what is ahead. It looks as though the Administration deliberately threw him to the wolves.

• • • •

With the aid of the Democratic national committee, Chavez, who had foresaken his House seat, made a hot race against Cutting last year. For days it looked as if, like the rest of the Democrats, he had won. Then Cutting forged ahead by just enough votes to win. The Progressives were already enraged because of the Administration's assistance to Chavez, and their heat was so intense when he filed a contest for the seat on the grounds of fraud and corruption that the Senate Administration forces quietly assured them that Chavez didn't have a chance.

My personal opinion is that Chavez got a bad deal on this. No one had a higher admiration for Cutting than I and the indignation which the Progressives felt against the Administration for aiding in the fight against him is easily understood. But it seemed a most natural thing for Chavez to file the contest he did in a race which was so close. And it is not easy to understand the indignation against his charges of fraud and corruption. The terms are right loosely used in a political campaign, of course, but it is a fact that Washington observers have long understood that money flowed very freely in the New Mexico campaigns.

A man does have to be pretty self-centered, however, to want to remove a man like Bronson Cutting from public life. That was the Chavez crime.

• • • •

The fates would not have been so unyielding against him, perhaps, had he entered another election after Cutting's death in an airplane accident. Had he done this he would have missed the bonus vote. But he insisted that the Governor appoint him to Cutting's place. The consensus in the press gallery yesterday was that that was the beginning of his end.

After his appointment he came running here like all fire, apparently afraid he would miss a day. He seemed greedy about the whole thing. He comes from one of the strongest veteran States, in proportion to population, in the country. It was assumed he would be with the bonus forces and undoubtedly this is what he planned to do.

The Administration forces took him in hand immediately he took the Senate oath, however, nad as the boys around the Capitol describe it, put the screws on him. They told him that unless he voted with the President the Administration would run Representative Dempsey against him.

• • • •

Well, the question is whether that isn't what the Administration intends to do anyway. Because a man against the bonus in New Mexico is pretty weak politically. The impression is it would take a big hunk of the $4,000,000,000 to pull him through.

And his vote wasn't needed. The Administration turned out to be eight votes to the good. Just why, then, would they pick out the hapless Chavez to put the heat on when he had just landed in town and had not had time to get his feet on the ground?

It looks as though when they third-degreed him and said, "Chavez, if you don't vote with us you are sunk" they meant he was sunk regardless of what he did.

Bulwarks Of Democracy

British Commentator, Reviewing Silver Jubilee, Sees Democratic Ideal Depending On England And United States In Face Of Rising Tide Of Totalitarianism.

By Commander Stephen King-Hall.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

London.

ON May 6, 1935, I spent four hours in a lookout position above the main entrance to St. Paul's and watched my King and Queen come to the Metropolitan Cathedral to return thanks to God on the occasion of the Silver Jubilee. I was broadcasting an account of the proceedings, and when it was all over I slipped away from the cathedral feeling dead beat from the strain, and went to my flat for a few moments' rest. I had just closed the door when the bell rang, and I received a cable from New York telling me that a group of friends had been listening in and had heard a full account of the scene. This was the first news I received as to the success or failure of this world-wide broadcast. I was very glad that it should come from the U. S. A., and when three days later I was again broadcasting a world-wide transmission of the ceremony in Westminster Hall, I had a feeling that for those few minutes I was privileged to be the servant of both countries, and that I was describing an event which was of equal interest to Americans and British.

The scene in Westminster Hall on May 9, when both houses of Parliament presented loyal addresses to their majesties, was very impressive, but the most moving thoughts arose from the reflection that the ceremony about to take place was the common heritage of the English-speaking peoples. Above my head the wonderful oak roof, which was the supreme achievement, in 1394, of Hugh Herland, master carpenter to King Richard II, flung its great beams upwards over the massive stone walls and red-carpeted floor. For five and a half centuries this roof has looked down upon some of the greatest events in England's history. Here a king stood his trial, and here a nation paid its last tribute to some of its most famous sons.

On the floor of this hall the parliamentary system of Great Britain first came to life. The hall was built by a king—William Rufus—in 1097; he was a man of large ideas, for it is said of him that when he first visited his new hall and one of his retinue, who happened to be in the grocery business and was also an eleventh century apostle of economy, complained at the expense of the building, the king, in his stammering voice, exclaimed that it was a mere bed-chamber compared with what he intended to build. It would be interesting to have William Rufus' views on the present-day controversy as to the validity of public works.

IT was on the floor of this hall that in 1265 a Parliament assembled at the instance of Simon de Montfort—an assembly remarkable for the fact that for the first time the Knights of the Shires and the Burgesses of the cities and boroughs sat with the Peers and Prelates of the Realm.

That was 670 years ago, and on the ninth of May last, a thousand members of both houses of Parliament were once more assembled on the floor of the hall. But the most significant feature of the recent scene was that in two tiers, rising high up on either side of the Royal Dais at the south end of the hall, were to be seen six prime ministers representing British Commonwealth of Nations Parliaments, and also representatives of United Kingdom Legislatures, such as the House of Keys (the Parliament of the Isle of Man), and the two Bailiffs of Guernsey and Jersey. Furthermore, the company in this part of the hall included representatives of the Indian Princes and of British India. It was an impressive demonstration of the world-wide spread of parliamentary institutions since 1265.

I found myself wishing that in some way Representatives from Congress might have participated in this ceremony. After all, unless my eyes deceived me, I saw present the high commissioner for the Irish Free State, although Mr. De Valera had seen fit to refrain from giving any other official recognition of the jubilee celebrations.

• • • •

I LAY stress on the special interest which the ceremony at Westminster had for our American friends, for they share with us a great responsibility at this time. There can be little doubt that upon the English-speaking peoples depends the continuance of democratic government as a force in the world. In writing these words I do not forget that in France and the Scandinavian countries there is freedom of speech, and a man may still call his soul his own. But from a world point of view the free institutions of the British Empire and the U. S. A. are the chief fortresses of liberty.

The importance of Parliament and Congress lies not in the machinery by and through which they function. Indeed, it is very likely that in the course of the next decade or two we shall see considerable alterations in the outward appearance of the parliamentary system. The importance of representative institutions lies in the fact that they are devices for insuring that the individual is not swallowed up by society so that he becomes not a man, but an ant.

The pernicious doctrines of the totalitarian states, the Fascist and Nazi paganisms, have spread enormously during the last few years, and it cannot be too clearly understood that in the last analysis no compromise is possible between dictatorship and democracy, for the former subordinates the individual to the state, whilst the latter insists that the state is made for man and that in the last resort a man is answerable not to a party, but to his God.

• • • •

PEACE is a great blessing, but freedom of conscience is beyond price and is more important than life itself. If the U. S. A. and the Empire stand side by side, linked not by political alliance, but by the ideal of preserving the liberty of the individual, all the forces of the authoritarian states will hesitate long before they put their own principle of "might is right" to the test.

Two New Detectives

By William Lyon Phelps.

THE trouble with most murder mystery novels is not that they are too exciting, but that they are not exciting enough. All this depends, of course, on your object in reading them. If you like to try to solve puzzles yourself, then is is well to read a story where there is a murder on the first page, and you are not told who did it until the last page. You can follow the clues and make your own guesses. I confess I care very little about this. My object in reading a mystery novel is not to use my mind but to divert it. Hence, I never waste a moment or an ounce of effort in trying to discover who is the criminal. I want things to happen and then more things to happen.

• • • •

Now, then, if you share my feeling in this matter, I should like to recommend a new novel by a new author, introducing two new detectives, father and son. Chief Inspector Cardby and his son Mick have their office in that quiet backwater off the Strand, in London, known as Adam Street. They are a grand pair, and I hope to read many more novels about them. The quiet, reflective power of the father is equalled by the headlong daring of his son. They are introduced to the public in a new novel called "They Called Him Death," for the arch-criminal, cool and unscrupulous, is known only by the name he has chosen, Mr. Death.

The author is, or at least his writing name is, David Hume. Two London newspapers have already ranked him with Edgar Wallace; and his methods are sufficiently similar to those of the late Mr. Wallace to make this comparison not at all exaggerative.

• • • •

We are assured by the publishers that for 13 years the author has lived in the underworld so that his knowledge of criminals will be sufficiently accurate for the purposes of narration and characterization. I am quite willing to believe this.

Now, then, do you want to read a novel that has no dull spots? Do you want to read a story where your attention is firmly grasped on the first page and held as in a vise until the book is finished?

If you do, I confidently recommend this new story, "They Called Him Death," by David Hume. Don't read it in bed; it will keep you up too late. (Published by Appleton-Century Co.)

DYSPEPSIA is the real reason for our architectural trend toward the brisk, rectangular, ascetic modern house. Almost everyone, of course, speaks of "functionalism"—but beyond a better economy of layout, a greater use of electrical gadgets, and a disposition to allow the sun to come in the window upon a place where you like to rest your bones, I can not see so much in this notion of "functionalism." Le Corbusier called his pioneer modern house a "machine for living"—and a winter or two ago a lot of rich people up in back-country Connecticut, endowed with the neatest of modern houses, were nearly frozen to death when a storm took down the electric lines and snowed them in. A fireplace in a modern house, or candles? Well hardly! But isn't the purpose of "functionalism" to function?

No, we have come to these bare clean surfaces and prim industrial outlines through nothing more than indigestion. And the editors of Architectural Forum, in this ample portfolio of small house designs—"The House for Modern Living" (Harcourt Brace, $1.50)—make the point clear enough. Before we enter upon the 107 desgins, we're shown a typical house of 1876 peaked and decorated roof, ornamental dormers, frilled porches, all gaudy enough to make your stomach quiver—best seen in San Francisco) and another of 1905 (blocky stucco and brick, cased all over with ginger-bread frosting—Pittsburgh has some nice specimens, and so have we out Sixteenth street). Looking at this pair, it becomes plain why a drink of cold water is quite the best thing after an evening of lobster thermidor and crown of lamb and mustard pickles, and ice cream. We're all set, then, to enjoy the Adam's ale of the trim modern designs.

The portfolio stands as the report of the jury on the 2,040 small house designs submitted this spring in the General Electric Architectural Competition. Eleven experts walked up and down the mile and a half of drawings, picked out the winners of the several top prizes of $2,500, $1,500 and $1,000, awarded a large number of mentions. What we have here are the 54 winners and some 48 selected entries—a mass of collected ingenuity and taste which should speed up the pulse of any man or woman who hopes for a modern house, wants to know what it can be like.

And if you are still "a little Conservative," there are a few designs in the back from the Better Homes in America Competition—houses which have chimneys and roofs you can recognize, and living rooms which won't make you feel like a movie star on parade.

ON THE POST'S page of photographs the other day there was a view of the portrait of John Reed which is to be hung, after lo these many years, at Harvard. A strange thing, that, if you think it over, and yet admirably broad-minded. For here is a university with over $100,000,000 of invested endowment, which surely puts it in no flighty class, giving this small token of honor to one of its most amazing sons.

John Reed grew up in Portland, Oreg., the son of a United States marshal and Roosevelt Liberal, came East to Harvard where he worked on the Lampoon, wrote the Hasty Pudding play and graduated in 1910—something of a playboy—went out into the world, helped found the Provincetown Players, became editor of the Masses and ended up as a hero among the Soviets. In 1920, at the age of 33, he died, and he lies buried in the Red Square at Moscow under the shadow of the Lenin Mausoleum.

Some said a first-rate poet was spoiled by becoming a fourth-rate revolutionary. But Reed, as Granville Hicks writes, was not a first-rate poet; he might have become one; but what he did become was a first-rate revolutionary writer. He left as his legacy the best account of the Soviet revolution in print—"Ten Days That Shook the World," now out in the Modern Library (95 cents). Left-Wingers find it a classic work; Right-Wingers might read it to see what actually happened, might in their admiration for this sterling account show the intellectual tolerance which is Harvard's.

THERE wasn't one of us whose mother did not think we had superior mentality as we grew up. When we come to the point ourselves there isn't one of us who is not given considerable pause.

John Potts, a Texan doctor, has set down 100 axioms of the superior mind in his pithy little book—"Know Thyself: A study in Mental Qualities" (Dorrance, $3). The s. m. can see and solve problems; it is regular in its habits; it does not vaunt itself; it can learn easily—that is the sort of thing set forth. Dull by itself, but Dr. Potts comments on each axiom with the most ingratiatingly kindly wisdom. He believes that with these axioms at the back of our heads we can get a bit nearer to the s. m. than we are.

Very much worth trying when you're at your most self-critical.

Virginia Oyster Project Requested by ERA

By the Associated Press.

The Emergency Relief Administration said yesterday that Col. Joseph H. Pratt, of its engineering section, had asked Richard Armstrong, Virginia fisheries commissioner, to submit an oyster repletion project for inclusion in the works relief program.

Armstrong and fisheries commissioners of other Southeastern States were urged to hasten their requests so that the Bureau of Fisheries may formulate a Southeastern States project for presentation to the director of applications and information, Frank C. Walker.

Montgomery Graduate List Is Announced

Number Finishing at High Schools Is Slightly Below 1934 Classes.

Names of approximatley 300 students of the Montgomery County high schools who will receive diplomas in June were announced yesterday by Dr. Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent of schools.

The number is slightly smaller than last year. This is due largely to the change in the school plan to provide for six years' elementary, three years' junior high and three years' high school. Most of the high schools have smaller graduating classes as a result.

Miss Bernice Virginia Woodfield is the only graduate for Damascus High School and exercises at which she will receive her diploma will be held during the day, with no formal class exercises. Poolesville High and Sherwood High, at Sandy Spring, also have extremely small classes.

Academic.

Joseph Bayard Devilbiss Kenneth Scarborough Karr, Milton Myers, John Frederick Stang, Elizabeth Clark Barber, Dorothy Virginia Benson, Dawn Rosalie Boyer, Christine Louise Cross, Elizabeth Grey Freeman, Margaret Carter Grose, Margaret Aline Nicol, Catherine Gloyd Slicer, Clara Ellen Thomas, Margaret Vivian Wells.

General.

'Protect Game' Idea Originated In Clarksburg

Dr. Haynes' Move Recalled as Conservation Week Is Observed.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 23.—As West Birginia sportsmen are observing conservation week, proclaimed by the Governor it is recalled that Dr. H. H. Haynes, of Clarksburg, originated the idea in 1911, when he called a meeting of sportsmen at his office here and pointed out the waste of West Virginia's forests and wild game.

So much interest was created at that meeting that an organization was perfected which had for its object the protection of game by various means. As later he became a conservation crusader, visiting all sections of the State and spreading the doctrine of saving the forests, game and fish.

By 1921, as a result of his work and the cooperation of others, he saw a new organization taking widespread form, and the West Virginia Wild Life League was created.

Much State legislation has been enacted since for the preservation of the forests and wild game, and only a few years ago the custom of observing a week each year as a conservation period began.

Pork Firm Blames AAA for Large Loss

U. S. Court Hears Complaint in Tax Contest.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, May 23.—The loss in gross profits due to application of the hog-processing tax imposed by the Federal Government reduced the working capital of the John A. Gebelein Pork Packing Co. from $36,000, as of December 31, 1932, to $2,800 on last April 20, it was testified today in Federal court here in hearing of a suit attacking validity of the agricultural adjustment act.

The Gebelein company brought injunction proceedings in an effort to restrain the Government from taking any action against the company to collect arrearages in hog-processing taxes levied under the AAA.

John H. Schenck, auditor for the company, testified as to losses of the concern due to the application of the taxes. He testified that the tax totaled $139,219.05 during 1934 and that the books of the company showed a loss of $15,192.73.

In the petition filed by the company, the constitutionality of the act is contested and it also is contended that the present $2.25 per hundredweight rate of the tax has been invalid since the first of the year through failure of the Secretary of Agriculture to comply with the formula prescribed in the act.

Venus stepped down from her pedestal at the Corcoran Art Gallery and sighed enviously. There was a wistful look in her eyes as she patted her hair back into place.

"You don't know what breaks these modern women get," she moaned. "Now, in my day, things were different."

We leaned against a glass case and listened to her plaintive tale.

"Why," she continued, "when I wanted vanishing cream or a new lipstick I had to send that flighty daughter-in-law of mine, Psyche, over to Proserpine's house across the River Styx to get it and, would you believe it, I tramped all the way from Olympus to the Parthenon without finding a single decent Beauty Shoppe! And you know how catty those Athenian newspapermen could be. That awful Aristophanes, who had that scurrilous column in the Daily Gazette, actually said that if I got another wrinkle my face would look like a prune skin.

"But these modern women have all their beauty and personality problems solved by Frances Mangum, of The Washington Post, and she knows ever so much more about beauty than I did." She smiled shyly. "But then, I had my moments. There was that dear boy, Praxiteles . . ."

Well, since Beauty is Truth, Venus was right: Miss Washington does get a break. All she has to do to keep her nose from being shiny or her chins from doubling is to follow Frances Mangum's advice in The Post. Navy Budget's Restrictions Likely to Fail Administration Objections Override Senate Amendments.

By the Associated Press.

Efforts to surround the $460,000,000 naval appropriation bill with restrictions to curb profits on the one hand and on the other to keep future Navy maneuvers out of what were called "dangerous" waters yesterday fell before Administration objections in the Senate.

The measure moved toward almost certain passage today.

Members of the Senate Munitions Investigating Committee, armed with evidence of husky profits for shipyards and describing what they termed "gruesome" efforts by arms manufacturers to stir up new munitions business, sought vainly during the day to attach a cluster of amendments to the record peace-time appropriation bill.

One after another the amendments were beaten by what Senator Bone (Democrat), Washington, described as "parliamentary thunderbolts" in the form of points of order raised by Senator Byrnes (Democrat South Carolina, in charge of the bill on the floor. Byrnes' contention that the amendments were obvious attempts to attach legislation to appropriation measures was sustained.

One minor amendment proposed by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, was accepted, requiring shipbuilders to submit to the Navy Department full estimates on which they base their bids for warship construction.

Traces Designs.

The Senate quickly turned thumbs down on a proposal for State Department supervision over where the Navy Department will hold its maneuvers, and what Navy officials may be permitted to say in public addresses. The latter was aimed at curbing what Senator Clark (Democrat), Missouri, termed "inflammatory" statements by military officers affecting international affairs.

In proffering the amendment requiring State Department approval for the scene of naval maneuvers, the Missourian declared the present operations in the mid-Pacific were "dangerous," with possibilities of giving affront to Japan.

An amendment by Senator Pope (Democrat), Idaho, to prohibit sending missions or naval instructors to foreign countries was defeated without a record vote, even after the Idaho member of the Munitions Committee related that one naval official had helped sell munitions to Colombia, in South America, at the same time the company he aided was stirring up trade with the rival republic of Peru.

A similar fate befell an amendment by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, prohibiting any naval design being employed by a private shipyard in a vessel to be sold to foreign governments, but not until the Michigan Republican declared there was a "general world-wide trafficking in improvements made in our own naval equipment."

Furious in his denunciation of such exchanges, Vandenberg declared that "the designs of submarines used in the Navy became the property of the Electric Boat Co., of this country, and through them the property of a manufacturing company in Austria before the World War."

"From there they went to Germany and in all probability the torpedo that sank the Lusitania came from a submarine manufactured from American patents," he asserted.

Chairman Nye (Republican), North Dakota, of the Munitions Committee, said no further effort would be made to delay passage of the bill. He reiterated, however, that all the rejected amendments would be combined into a bill for presentation during the present session.

countries," Lord Londonderry said, "nor a race in armaments.

"We welcome Herr Hitler's offer of limitation—but at the same time we are carrying out our declared policy not to accept inferiority to our neighbors in the air."

His rallying call was a major development in peace and arms movements which included:

1. Enlargement of recruiting depots and an order for establishment of others throughout the islands.

2. Rushing of final arrangements for the long-delayed Anglo-German informal conversations in London.

3. British government leaders' conference with Dominion premiers and ministers on imperial defenses in the far-flung empire.

The air secretary's call to arms for 3,500 new pilots and 20,000 enlisted men was followed by an announcement the air ministry had opened and enlarged its recruiting depot at the headquarters in Kingsway, in the heart of London, to facilitate enlistments.

Ten other depots are to be opened shortly, in Glasgow, Newcastle, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Cardiff, Plymouth, Portsmouth, Belfast (Ireland) and Leeds.

The present R. A. F. strength is 32,000 men, which includes 2,700 pilots. The ministry wants its additional men in service not later than next April.

The government hopes to get the naval talks with Germany, frequently postponed, started soon. Capt. Erwin Wassner, German naval attache in London, left today for Berlin to complete final arrangements for the parleys, possibly opening next week.

The air and naval issues presumably were discussed by the government's conference with dominion leaders in Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald's offices this afternoon. Another similar meeting is to be held shortly, to insure a common plan of action throughout the empire in the event of war.

flashed to vessels of the fleet a short time later.

The cover of darkness, which had shrouded the movements of the great naval force, was immediately cast aside and searchlights of the "White" fleet in the vicinity pierced the night.

Not until shortly after daylight yesterday did patrol planes sight the oil and wreckage on the surface and direct the Southampton to the position. The search was continued until last night, when all hope for the missing fliers was abandoned.

The other deaths during the maneuvers were those of Lieut. Mathias B. Wyatt, of Easley, S. C., who was killed when his plane crashed while taking off from the aircraft carrier Saratoga, and Gunner's Mate Richard Chadwick, of Blissfield, Mich., killed in a collision of the destroyers Lea and Sicard.

Night Hearings Called to Speed NRA Extension

Doughton originally had indicated that it might report this week. It is considered certain that it will recommend a two-year extension, in direct contradiction to the resolution passed by the Senate providing for an extension of 9½ months. Unless the present alignment is changed, a long and bitter fight, probably extending beyond June 16, appears inevitable.

Added to other worries of friends of the NRA is the expected Supreme Court ruling on NRA constitutionality. This ruling is expected either next Monday or June 3, the last date on which the court meets before recessing for the summer.

Legislation being demanded by labor includes not only NRA extension, but enactment of the Wagner labor relations bill, which has been passed by the Senate and is pending in the House.

Small business men have joined with labor leaders in asking NRA extension. Many times smaller than the huge labor meeting in New York, but just as determined, the group of small business men who met here Wednesday continued to importune Congress to act. Many of their number remained in Washington yesterday talking with members of Congress.

Cite NRA Benefits.

A number of small business men went before the Ways and Means Committee yesterday telling of NRA benefits to their businesses. The prediction was made that discontinuance of NRA would put many small merchants out of business and that it would mean "civil war" in the bituminous coal industry.

Eugene McAuliffee, Omaha coal producer, told the committee that the Senate resolution was "another attempt at murdering the act." George H. Cherrington, of Pittsburgh, told the committee that business had improved greatly in the Pittsburgh - Youngstown - Wheeling area.

Q. Forrest Walker, of R. H. Macy & Co., New York department store, objected to price fixing. He declared there are "rings and combines" under codes which keep prices higher than under free competition.

Meanwhile, confronted with a situation in which many identical bids are submitted for Government supplies and materials, the National Industrial Recovery Board moved to change drastically conditions under which bids are submitted.

The new plan will have a tendency to encourage open competition and possibly to permit the Government to pay lower prices. The impending purchase of huge quantities of supplies for the works relief program was one of the impelling motives for the change, Donald R. Richberg, board chairman, said.

Under an NRA order issued last year, concerns doing business with the Government were allowed to bid as much as 15 per cent below open prices filed for other transactions. The board will recommend to President Roosevelt that this provision be eliminated, and that bidding be placed on a purely competitive basis, allowing bidders to offer goods to the Government at any price they see fit.

Richberg said it might be recommended that bidders make known to their competitors their prices to the Government at some time between the date of submitting bids and the date they are opened. Observers believed this situation might result in a considerable lowering of prices, as under the present arrangement a virtual "bottom" is fixed by the 15 per cent rule.

The new plan, Richberg said, is not intended to ban open-price filing, but to obtain "full competitive secret bidding."

Simplified Compliance.

Richberg said the board also is working on plans for simplifying code compliance requirements for Government bidders. At present every one doing business with the Government, including sub-contractors and parts manufacturers, is required to show compliance with NRA. Richberg said this has led to a confusing situation. He said changes had not been fully worked out, but that the board's intention is to improve the competitive situation."

Meanwhile, controversy over Government purchase of trucks hinged on a ruling of Comptroller General McCarl that specifications for 3,950 trucks were improperly drawn by the War Department.

These trucks already have been ordered from the Chevrolet Co. and some of them have been delivered. The War Department said it contemplated no action as a result of McCarl's refusal to approve the contract.

McCarl ruled specifications, calling for 205 cubic inches piston displacement, were so drawn as to prevent the Fargo Motor Co., Dodge sales agency, from bidding.

McCarl declared that "the specifications appear to have been drawn for the purpose of purchasing Chevrolet trucks without any real competition as contemplated and required by law."

Air Hunt Locates Wreckage of Plane

By the United Press.

Dallas, Tex., May 23.—Wreckage of an Army plane missing since Sunday was sighted by a squadron of searching planes in the Miamichi Mountains in southeastern Oklahoma, Hensley Field officials said tonight.

The missing plane was piloted by Lieut. Wendell Holliday. Private Ira Hicks was a passenger. A body was seen at the wreckage.

Pilots in the searching squadron were unable to land because of the ragged terrain. The wreck was near Pine Valley, about 50 miles southeast of McAlester, Okla.

Holliday and Hicks failed to arrive at Barksdale Field in Shreveport, La., on a training flight which began at Brooks Field, San Antonio, and which was to include a stop at Hatbox Field at Muskogee, Okla.

der any circumstances, agree to, approve or subscribe to a plan which provides for a discontinuation of the national recovery law."

Green asserted that labor construed the Senate action against the proposed two-year extension recommended by the President as a "complete surrender to the United States Chamber of Commerce, the Manufacturers Association and the reactionary forces of the Nation, all of which have steadfastly opposed both the law itself and its application."

Hoover Name Booed.

He ridiculed the "voice from California, from he who had no right to speak for the United States, Herber Hoover," who recently indorsed the Senate step.

Hoover's name brought boos from the trade-unionists.

"We will follow Roosevelt and not Hoover," Green shouted as loud cheers broke forth.

"I assert that the American Federation of Labor, speaking for millions of workers, would rather see the national recovery act abandoned and terminated than continued for a brief period of ten months."

"We would be less disappointed with its complete abandonment than its continuation for such a brief period of time."

The demands of labor were summed up by Green:

"In addition to the extension of the national recovery act for a period of two years, as recommended by the President of the United States, labor is calling upon Congress to enact the Wagner disputes bill into law, to pass the Black 30-hour work week bill, the Guffey coal regulation bill and the social security legislation which provides for unemployment insurance and old-age pensions.

"Congress will fail to meet the urgent requirements of the New Deal if these measures, espoused and supported by labor and its friends throughout the Nation, fail of enactment into law at this session of Congress."

Mrs. Vidal at Ranch Pending Divorce Suit

Reno, Nev., May 23 (AP).—Mrs. Nina Gore Vidal, daughter of Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, has established residence on a "dude" ranch near Reno and will file suit to divorce Eugene L. Vidal, director of the Commerce Department's Bureau of Air Commerce, at the end of a six-week stay, it was learned from her attorney today.

George Springmeyer, the attorney, said Mrs. Vidal arrived by train Tuesday and went directly to the ranch, in the isolated Pyramid Lake region, about 45 miles northeast of here.

Clean Out Kidney Poisons
Wash Out Your 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes
If kidneys don't pass 3 pints a day and get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters may become clogged with poisonous waste and the danger of acid poisoning is greatly increased. Bladder passages are difficult, which often smart and burn like scalding water and cause discomfort.
This acid condition, brought about by poor kidney functions is a danger signal and may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.
Most people watch their bowels which contain only 27 feet of intestines but neglect the kidneys which contain 15 miles of tiny tubes and filters. If these tubes or filters become clogged with poisons, it may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't run any risk. Make sure your kidneys empty 3 pints a day.

ligious principle, which would have to be organized into a creed if it were to get anywhere. He also realized—and was frank to admit—that he and Reed, both of whom were without regular income at the time, needed to earn a living.

The Nation which produces Elks and Masons, Red Men, Odd Fellows and Ku Kluxers, knows how to organize in the territory north of the Rio Grande and west of the Alleghenies. Kennedy suggested that Reed write a ritual that would dramatize the evil power of the present money system based on debt and portray a new and higher order of life, with money based on production. In the meantime, Kennedy ran across another Technocrat, Walter H. Rosseau, a real estate promoter, who had written a little play called "Miss Technocracy," which had been produced by amateurs in Los Angeles. When Reed was taken ill, Rosseau finished writing the ritual for the new society, which was launched in the fall of 1933, on the heels of the plow-under campaign, the slaughter of the piglets, and the collapse of Hugh Johnson's ballyhooed "Blue Eagle" re-employment drive.

The distinguishing feature of the U. S. A. is its secrecy and its ritual—two formulas which have insured longevity to many less worthy enterprises. The ritual is divided into "cycles" and makes a profound impression on contemporary middle-class Americans, although its future appeal may not be so great. The first two "cycles" are held in the homes of members or in small halls.

At the outset, the candidates for membership raise their right hands and pledge allegiance to the Constitution of the United States, and swear to uphold the legal processes of the city, State and Nation, to observe the Golden Rule, to refrain from hatred, malice and all uncharitableness against any man in power, and to work for the overthrow of evil conditions, not of individuals. They are then asked certain questions—rhetorical in character—which reflect sharp criticism on the present economic system, such as, "Do you believe necessities of life should be destroyed while people are allowed to suffer want and privation?" "Do you believe that poverty can be abolished without the abolition of profit?" and "Do you think the NRA members in your district are living up to their codes?"

Then the play begins. Into the darkened room come a band of ragged persons representing dispossessed humanity, led by "Forgotten Man." They approach the house of a grain merchant whose warehouses are overflowing and offer their labor for food: the offer is rejected. They go on, seeking clothes from a clothing merchant, and so on, but are informed that they can get nothing without gold. So they go to the money-lender, who says he will let them have money on interest if they can give "security." Then as they argue, men leap forward and put chains on their legs, to get the money. The money-lender puts money into their hands, but they soon discover that it is not gold, but only paper and as they move along, they are arrested and fined for failing to pay taxes. That takes away their money. Then, as they proceed on the economic Via Crucis, they meet two men whom they recognize as the grain and clothing merchant, who, in self-defense, shout that they also are penniless now. This ends the first and second cycles.

Smacks of Huey Long And Townsend's Plan.

The third and fourth cycle, given on another night and usually in a larger hall, show the pilgrims, with their ex-capitalist friends, meeting a hermit named "Reason." After hearing their troubles, Reason guides them to the Land of Plenty for All. He explains that the "profit system" is as absolete as monasteries and despotic kings, that times have changed and that when everybody works to produce for use, everybody will have all he can use. They suddenly arrive in Utopia, which bears certain physical resemblances to Washington. The Department of the Interior is distributing needed commodities to all, instead of worrying about petty graft on PWA projects; the Department of Industry is regulating the supply of needed goods on the principle of perpetual surplus; the Department of Commerce is abolishing competition; the Department of Labor is working to maintain production at the peak of efficiency; the Department of Education is assuring every child full development of his natural faculties (page Huey Long!); foreign trade is bartering surplus goods with foreign countries; National Defense is striving to promote international peace.

In this Technocratic Utopia the people own all the means of production. Each citizen gets a certificate of production entitling him to an equal share of all the necessities and luxuries of life that are produced and this certificate must be spent within a year (page Doc Townsend!). Up to the age of 25 every boy and girl is educated and given physical training. For the next 20 years everyone follows self-chosen occupations. After the age of 45 anyone who wants to retire can do so, but there is no obligation. Crime has disappeared; there are no debts and no individual savings. It is all very nice. Reason rips the chains off the pilgrims and says to the Forgotten Man, "Now you are the Man Who Found Himself!"

At this point the initiates are full-fledged members of the society, liable to pay a fee of $3 plus dues of 10 cents a month (though few of them do so). There is a fifth cycle, which is still secret (as the first four cycles originally were), but only those who keep up their dues and bring in enough new members are allowed to see it.

By this system the U. S. A. proposes to "educate the American people along economic lines so that by the ues of reason and the ballot, rather than by the use of hate and bomb, it may bring about a readjustment in national economic thinking, placing human values before bond values, by stressing production for use rather than for profit." The movement urges a letter-campaign directed to President Roosevelt, praising the New Deal but urging a production-for-use system, based on nationalization of the productive plant, assignment of labor and substitution of "effort money" for the metallic-backed currency and bank-credit of the present system.

Despite the vagueness and educational character of its approach, the U. S. A. is no inconsiderable force. Its first meeting was held early in the summer of 1934, when 25,000 jammed the Hollywood Bowl and many more were turned away. The movement spread like wildfire amid the ruined or badly battered lower middle class of Southern California. Its reliance on secrecy, symbolism and religion marks it as a genuine expression of their aspirations. At first it was helped by the myth that it had been started by Roosevelt himself, or by his Brain Trust. Then it was charged that Upton Sinclair had started it, and it is a fact that Sinclair sought and received U. S. A. support. Late in 1934, it spread more rapidly, getting as many as 5,000 new members a day, until in last November, when national headquarters opened in New York, it had 600,000 members, acquired by an ingenious "snowball system" in which each member has to bring in two more persons to each meeting. Since then, however, its drive has slackened, partly as a result of Sinclair's defeat and partly because of its lack of dynamic leadership. Another factor may be its lack of definition. It can't be packed into a single bill and its real importance seems to lie in its educational quality and its ability to indoctrinate the principle of production for use as a semireligious injunction.

Aside from this, its chief significance in current politics is the fact that it demonstrated the vitality of the purpose to abolish the "profit system" among wide sections of the American public. It picked up where the technocrats originally failed and, under disinterested and sincere if rather sapless leadership, took the technocratic religion and made it a semipolitical force sufficiently powerful to be an important element in the dramatic campaign of Upton Sinclair for the governorship of California.

Sinclair Nomination 'Miracle' of Politics.

The Sinclair campaign was the most sensational political development of 1934.

This former Socialist reformer, muckraker, pamphleteer, author, motion picture producer, dreamer, had accepted at face value the more liberal interpretations of the New Deal. Previously he had run, on the Socialist ticket, for Congressman, Governor and Senator, but had never scraped together more than 60,000 of California's 2,200,000-odd votes. Then, in the summer of 1933, he decided to become a New Deal Democrat. Sinclair, it should be noted, is fundamentally a preacher, a reformer on the order of the Old Testament prophets, a Protestant and lay Father Coughlin.

His campaign began with the publication of "I, Governor of California" and the outline of his EPIC plan. It was received with deafening silence. He kept on, speaking and writing and organizing EPIC clubs until the late spring of 1934, when he announced himself as candidate for the Democratic nomination. The official New Deal Democrats—the McAdoo outfit—nominated George Creel, Wilson's war-time chief of propaganda, a liberal who had been one of the little bands of aids to McAdoo at Chicago in 1932. The old-line native son of Democrats (McAdoo's strength was in southern California) put up Justus Wardell, who had unsuccessfully but gallantly led the effort to deliver the California delegation to Roosevelt at Chicago in 1932. Sinclair was a rank outsider who didn't have a chance.

By the middle of the summer, however, the rest of the country suddenly realized that a political miracle was being "passed" in California. Gen. Hugh Johnson had indorsed Creel, and Jim Farley and his gang had done everything they could do, discreetly, to let it be known that Creel was the Administration candidate. Then, on August 28, 1934, Sinclair carried the Democratic primary with a whoop. He beat all his opponents—there were several minor candidates in addition to Creel and Wardell—decisively and with a clear majority over their combined votes, getting 438,000 ballots, the largest number ever received by any Democrat in a California primary. The former Socialist, the man who had awakened the country to the meat scandals thirty years ago with "The Jungle," had captured the Democratic Party in the State which assured the election of Woodrow Wilson in 1916.

This aroused the Nation, made no end of trouble for Big Jim and F. D. R., and touched off one of the most ominous and explosive campaigns in American political history.

The campaign was bitter and vindictive in the extreme. The conservatives represented Sinclair as the dynamiter of churches and forged "Communist" manifestoes urging the "Comrades" to vote for Sinclair. In an article written after his defeat, Sinclair remarked that, according to the "lie factory:"

I am a Communist, an advocate of free love, an enemy of religion, a jackass, a nut, a self-advertiser out for personal gain . . . About the kindest and gentlest thing they could say of me was that I am a dangerous and impractical visionary who would lead the State to destruction."

In return, Sinclair's EPIC News struck back at these lies as "obviously the products of nitwits, psychopathics with a persecution complex, disgruntled racketeers, low-grade crooks, third-rate Hessians, defiated megalomaniacs." This exchange of compliments reminded the country that Upton Sinclair, now aged 56, is still the Nation's most expert muckraking pamphleteer, and that he shows no sign of let-up in his long crusade for social justice.

T. R. Invited Him To White House Once.

In 35 years he has turned out 49 books, as well as innumerable pamphlets and articles, all flaming with moral indignation, and nearly all containing a good deal of inaccuracy and exaggeration. He became a national figure as long ago as 1906, with the publication of "The Jungle," when he was invited to the White House by Theodore Roosevelt. Since then he has functioned as a sort of socialistic Tarzan, swinging rapidly out of the reach of the great reptiles and carnivores which haunt our jungle economy, rebuking the manifest iniquities of American life and seeking perfection by nearly every kind of cult known to the fertile brain of man.

He entered the California primary as an exponent of New Deal theories, and his EPIC plan contained no elements which were markedly out of tune with the Rooseveltian policies. He proposed, in brief, to put the unemployed to work in vacant factories and on unused land, in order to produce their own goods and to raise their own food. He argued that this system was the most logical and most economical and could be reconciled with capitalism by paying rent to the owners of the land and factories, at a gigantic saving over current relief costs. (He apparently underestimated the vested interest that the capitalists claimed in a right to be paid for feeding and clothing the unemployed, out of relief funds, and their right to rely on the potential labor of the workers as a basis for existing wage scales.) Under EPIC, the land-colonies would be established and directed by the California Authority for Land (CAL). The factories would be operated under the California Authority for Production (CAP). A public body called the California Authority for Money (CAM) would finance CAP and CAL.

The costs of this and of a system of old-age pensions of $50 a month, and of relief for the blind and the physically disabled, were to be borne by a State income tax, steeply graduated on incomes from $5,000 a year up, and by an inheritance tax taking 50 per cent of every individual bequest over $50,000 and 50 per cent of every estate over $250,000. While taxes on privately-owned utilities and on unimproved land (here there is an echo of the single tax) were to be hiked, all homes and ranches assessed at $3,000 or less would be tax exempt. Until this tax system could start functioning, Sinclair proposed to finance EPIC by issuing scrip, on the basis of economic production in his socialistic colonies, which scrip could be accepted by railroads, etc., and turned in to the State government for taxes.

He also proposed to make a clean sweep of vigilante prejudices by pardoning Tom Mooney, still serving a life sentence in San Quentin prison for the Preparedness Parade bombing in 1916, despite ample proof of his conviction on perjured testimony.

Council Votes To Suppress Trade Reports

Business Executives Claim Function Is Only to Give Advice.

By the Associated Press.

The half-a-hundred business chiefs comprising the Administration's business advisory council decided yesterday in a special meeting not to publish their reports on Government activities, be they critical or favorable.

The decision was made in the face of published statements that reports unfavorable to Administration activities were being suppressed, while favorable reports were published—especially those on NRA and the social security program.

Harry P. Kendall, Boston, head of the council and president of the Kendall Co., said the business leaders had agreed that since the council's work was of an advisory nature it was unwise to employ publicity.

Not a "Combat Group."

Another member, who declined to be quoted by name, said:

"We are either going to be a combat group or an advisory group. If it's battle we are looking for we shouldn't pose as advisers. We are now presenting a sound business viewpoint and our arguments have been effective in changing some Roosevelt plans. We can serve business and the country better in this manner than by yelling our heads off in the newspapers.

"We have not the slightest objection to employing publicity to sell the business viewpoint and that job is being done ably by business associations."

Reports still persisted, however, of disagreement with this opinion by some members of the council. So far as could be learned, this was a minority group.

Criticism Voiced.

The executive quoted above emphasized:

"Don't you get the idea we are patting the Administration on the back. We are severely critical about some things, and our criticism counts."

The council yesterday studied the Doughton resolution to extend NRA for two years, and acted, as interpreted by one member, in a way generally favorable to the resolution. The Wagner labor disputes bill was vigorously attacked because, among other things, it was charged with failing to protect employes from coercion by other employes as well as by employers.

Two major council reports that apparently will not be published are those on the banking and holding company bills. These were said to be more emphatically critical.

County Urges State Remove Rail Crossing

Road Commission Hears Plea to Oust Tragic Rockville Junction.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, May 23.—Representatives of the Montgomery County Board of Commissioners today conferred with the State roads commission over plans for elimination of the Rockville, Md., grade crossing where 14 high school pupils were killed in a bus crash last April.

Nathan L. Smith, chief engineer for the commission, conducted the hearing for the Montgomery County group but no definite plans for elimination of the crossing were announced.

The crash occurred when a bus carrying Williamsport High School pupils was struck by a Baltimore & Ohio train.

Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Schedule Ready

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 23.—Frank B. Sherman, general manager of the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Lines, has announced the summer schedule of boat operations, effective next Wednesday. The number of trips between Annapolis and Matapeake, the shortest route, will be increased from six to ten, while operations over the Claiborne route will be reduced from three to two.

Departures for Matapeake will be at 8, 10 and 11 a. m. and beginning at noon boats will run hourly until 8 p. m., except at 5 and 6 p. m. On the Claiborne route, boats will leave at 7:25 a. m. and 5 p. m. From Matapeake departures will be at 7:25, 9, 11, noon and 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 7 p. m. Leaving Claiborne, the schedule will be 9 a. m. and 7 p. m.

Petersburg Budget Kept at 1935 Level

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Petersburg, Va., May 23.—Petersburg's budget for the fiscal year 1935-36 will not vary materially from that of the present fiscal year which is $349,895 and will be presented to the public at a hearing to be held the night of June 27 in the council chamber at 8 o'clock.

The new budget is to be predicated upon the same tax rate of present year, $2.35 per $100 assessed valuation on real estate and personal property. Actual figures will not be released until after it has been presented to the city council by City Manager Henry A. Yancey.

Steel Chiefs List Aims of Labor As Big Danger

Wagner Bill, Closed Shop, 30-Hour-Week Plan Lashed by Grace.

plan, and said of the Wagner bill, "Now we are faced with a vicious legislative proposal that seeks to discredit these plans, gives legislative backing to national irresponsible labor unions and invites the closed shop."

In the midst of the meeting, Schwab, the 73-year-old dean of the industry, beamed on the steel men:

"I think we ought not to be too blue about some of our troubles as they come along, when we stop to realize that our industry is still very young."

On the blue side, however, Grace listed the Wagner bill, the 30-hour week bill, Administration proposals for social security, the curb on utility holding companies, the banking bill of 1935, the Guffey bill applicable to marketing of coal, high taxes, Government in business, heavy Government expenditures, dormant private capital and other developments.

No Definite NRA Stand.

A definite stand on extension of the national industrial recovery act was not taken. "Whatever the future of this act may be," said Grace, "if any at all, the problems with respect to the successful management of the steel industry are still before us and must be met."

He saw progress, however, since August, 1933, when the steel code was formed.

"The results are tangible," he asserted. "The industry is employing 420,000 workers, almost a peak-time force; wage rates are above the 1929 prosperity levels. An unbelieveable degree of self-government has been attained within the industry.

"Yet in spite of these efforts we have failed to achieve the desired goal—namely, recovery."

William A. Irvin, New York, president of the United States Steel Corporation, in a review of 1934 business said losses were about one-quarter of 1 per cent on the total steel investment. He saw recovery ahead "unless checked by further burdens and restrictions on industry."

A number of officials of leading steel organizations voiced their opinions on recovery and the status of the industry informally, the tenor on the optimistic side.

The directors later in the day reelected Grace as president; Irving and Girdler, vice presidents; William J. Filbert, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation, treasurer, and Walter S. Tower, executive secretary.

The following new committee appointments were announced: Hook, committee on foreign relations; Roemer, committee on membership, and B. F. Fairless, vice president of the Republic Steel Corporation, committee on tariff.

Teachers College Asks New Building

Virginia Education Board Approves Request.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., May 23.—A plan to secure PWA funds for a new administration building for the Fredericksburg State Teachers College, to cost at least $170,000, was approved this afternoon by the State board of education at its May meeting.

Following the meeting, a board committee comprising Dr. M. L. Combs, president of the college; Dr. Sidney B. Hall, State superintendent of public instruction, and Virginius Shackleford, of Orange, member of the board, broached the matter to Gov. Peery, who invited the board to submit details of the plan to him for study.

The new building would include offices, classrooms and an auditorium and would add a third new structure to two dormitories recently built at cost of $272,000.

Victim of Fall Dies In Clarksburg Hospital

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 23.—Injured when he fell down a flight of stairs at a rooming house here, Eugene Latstetter, 26, an auto salesman, died a few hours later in a hospital.

Injuries suffered in an automobile crash in 1928 are believed to have contributed to his death.

Charles Town Reelects Four Councilmen

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., May 23.—Despite strenuous activity upon the part of several new candidates, all former councilmen voted upon were returned for another term in Charles Town's municipal election here today. In the First Ward, T. D. Webster, incumbent, defeated Jack Luxenberg, 385 to 202.

In the Second Ward, E. G. Henson, unopposed, received 465. W. L. Anderson, incumbent, in the Third Ward, beat H. M. Beller, 392 to 175, and in the Fourth Ward A. B. Link was returned by defeating J. Henry James, 365 to 188. The total vote, 567 votes, was somewhat heavy for an off-year election.

Two 4-H Camps In Blue Ridge Are Announced

Vacation Outings to Be Held in Albemarle County in June-July.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 23.—Two 4-H Club camps will be held this summer in Sugar Hollow, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, in western Albemarle County. The senior camp will be held during the last week in June and the junior camp the first week in July. A minimum of 50 members in each class will be necessary to the success of the project, it was said.

It is planned to give the campers three classes a day in outdoor life education, after which they will be free for hikes and other outdoor recreations. Instructors for the camp are now being selected.

Those on the committee are: Mrs. A. H. Sizer, of Schuyler; Mrs. Bennett Marshall, of Stony Point; Mrs. Mary E. Adams, of Free Union; Miss Mary Betty Rodes, of Greenwood; Mrs. W. R. Napier, of Red Hill; Mis. Lucille Fray, of Advance Mills; Miss M. Ruth Burruss, assistant county home demonstration agent, and T. O. Scott, county agricultural agent.

Plans have been under way for the camp since the middle of last April, and were furthered by an offer of use of the city-owned camp in Sugar Hollow.

Italo-Ethiopian Deal Reported Near at Geneva

Optimism Among Powers Mounts Despite Continued Confusion.

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, May 24 (Friday).—The outlook for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute changed early today from despair to one of bright hope when Italian quarters reported that a compromise had been reached.

While British circles failed to confirm a compromise and said the situation was still confused, there were indications that the outlines of such a compromise have been approved, in principle at least.

The French delegation said the changed situation looked promising and that the negotiations were likely to result satisfactorily.

The sudden change in the atmosphere came after British and French negotiators had admitted failure of their efforts to induce Italy to accept mediation of her dispute with Ethiopia.

A projected secret session of the council was canceled owing to Premier Benito Mussolini's reported rejection of the Franco-British mediation proposal, details of which were not divulged.

So serious was the situation considered that Mussolini was understood to be keeping constantly in touch by telephone with the Italian delegation.

League circles said Il Duce would approve the council's mere recording that efforts were being made to solve the dispute and the fact that direct negotiations were continuing.

He would reject the council's appointment of a rapporteur to follow up the conflict, however, as well as the appointment of a frontier delimitation commission, it was asserted.

24 Girls Seek Beauty Award For Strasburg

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Strasburg, Va., May 23.—Competing for the title "Miss Strasburg, 1935," 24 young women throughout this section have entered the second annual Strasburg Beauty Pageant to be held here May 27, under auspices of the local American Legion post.

In charge of actual direction of the pageant is Mrs. W. H. Ellifrits, who is being assisted by Miss Christina Artz, winner of last year's contest.

Aside from being awarded a large silver loving cup inscribed, "Miss Strasburg, 1935," the winner of this year's contest of pulchritude will be further honored by a dance at Crystal Caverns tea room following the pageant.

Those entered in the contest are Miss Sarah Lee Painter, Miss Janett Rickard, Miss Lauve Keister, Miss Mildred Funk, Miss Faynelle Crabill, Miss May Lou Stover, Miss Betty Maphis, Miss Frances Keister, Miss Kitty Ellis, Miss Virginia Ann Willey, Miss Elizabeth Funk, Mrs. Harry Lambert, Mrs. Thomas Neathery, Miss Nancy Campbell, Mrs. Katherine Bly, Miss Agnes Crabill, Miss Mary Frances Barr, Miss Mabel Sparks, Miss Pollyanna Hamman, Miss Annie Sue Boles, Miss Frances Marshall, Miss Estelle Hottel, Miss Helen Pollard and Miss Helen Little.

City and County Call Relief Parley

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., May 23.—City and county officials and a group of civic leaders will confer tomorrow night with the Washington County Welfare Board in an effort to find a solution of the city and county relief problem.

The welfare board has invited Mayor and City Council, members of the Board of County Commissioners, officials of the Chamber of Commerce and Dr. Homer L. Tabler, chairman of the State Roads Commission, to the conference.

The welfare board found it necessary to make a drastic cut in relief when the Federal allotment for May was reduced $10,000 and the board was given to understand that another reduction may be expected in June.

The conference has been called to prepare a program of projects under new works program.

Because of failure to receive definite indication of requirements for projects, the board has been unable to draw up any plans.

Count Him Out Of 1938 Race, Gov. Nice Says

Wants to Retire After One Term, He Tells G.O.P.; Raps New Deal.

Gov. Harry W. Nice, Maryland's new Republican chief executive, announced last night that he would not be a candidate for re-election in 1938, and said he wanted to retire after putting in "four years of constructive work as governor."

At the same time, speaking at a testimonial banquet given in the Congressional Club at Bradley Hills, Md., by the Republican State central committee of Montgomery County, the Governor asserted that, nationally, "it is high time we cease experimenting and come back to fundamental business principles if we are to have recovery."

"This being Governor is not all it is cracked up to be," he said. "I was elected for four years last November, and I've served all four of them already."

Then he made his announcement, asking the people of Maryland not to think of him as a Republican or as in any way connected with politics. He said he wanted no one to think he was building a political machine or seeking re-election.

"I would not seek nor accept renomination to this office again," Nice went on, "not even if it were offered to me on a golden platter."

Meets Central Committee.

Four hundred persons crowded into the club, where places had been set for only 300, and scores more drifted in after the banquet to listen to the speeches, attend the Governor's reception, and join a dance.

Earlier, the Governor and Mrs. Nice had met the members of the county central committee at the home of Secretary of State Thomas L. Dawson in Rockville. As sirens of a police escort shrieked warnings, he drove to the club by automobile.

Wilton T. Allen, secretary of the county committee and chairman of the banquet committee, opened the addresses by introducing Mayor Frederick L. Lewton and the members of the Takoma Park Town Council.

Attacks Debt Rise.

Then Walter W. Dawson, the county Republican chairman, introduced Gov. Nice, noting that Maryland had long been under Democratic domination, but that finally the people had "looked around for a man who would put Maryland first and party second."

Rousing applause interrupted Nice's address. Calling for business methods in National Government, he warned of the sharp rise in the national debt. He said it had increased by $18,000,000,000 under the New Deal without 1 cent's being provided for repayment.

However, he continued, he wanted no one to think he opposed feeding the hungry and clothing the needy.

"My Mistakes Honest."

He said his ambition was to give Maryland four years of sound constructive government, that he might leave that record as a legacy to the people of Maryland, to Mrs. Nice, and his son. He asked for moral support and the prayers of the people.

He noted that he had been severely criticized for seeking appropriations to repair the Governor's mansion at Annapolis. His only desire, he went on, was to make the mansion worthy of the State.

"I have made mistakes," Nice added. "I will probably make many more. But let me assure you that none have been made with ulterior motives. Such as there have been, they have all been honest."

United Jewish Appeal Lists $25,000 in Gifts

Contributions reported yesterday at a meeting of drive workers in the United Jewish Appeal brought the total of money raised in the two-week canvass to nearly $25,000. Drive workers were urged to intensify efforts to reach the $35,000 before the drive closes Tuesday.

The final drive luncheon will be held Monday. The workers will be guests of the Hadassah Organization at a social get-together in the Jewish Community Center Wednesday night.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

"HOW dark, oh Lord, are Thy decrees . . . All our joys to sorrow turning . . . as the night succeeds the day."

Music for these words, strange as it seems, was being written by the great composer Handel when blindness interrupted his work in 1751. A few months later his eyesight almost completely failed him.

The composition that was interrupted was called "Total Eclipse"—a work based on a story written by the blind poet, Milton, about the blindness of the Bible character, Samson, who was betrayed by his wife and blinded by the Philistines.

In this the character Samson laments his blindness, saying "Total Eclipse! No sun, no moon . . . All dark amidst the blaze of noon."

Strange as it seems, mountains of frozen steam are formed in the antarctic regions where volcanic action brings intense heat and bitter cold together. Volcanic steam, issuing from craters, is thrown into the intense cold of the atmosphere, where it quickly condenses and freezes into ice which builds up strange ice fumaroles.

Many of these formations exist in the active crater of Erebus. They assume weird and fantastic shapes as more and more vapor from the volcano is condensed and frozen by the cold.

200,000 Auto Registry Seen.

Automobile registration in the District may reach 200,000 in 1935, the Keystone Automobile Club predicted yesterday on the basis of a study of official statistics. Last year's total was 170,000, and the club believes a record will be reached this year. The club called attention to "growing congestion" and urged the cooperation of all motorists in curbing it.

Commission Lists Police Examination

Applications for Vacancies Must Be In by June 1.

Examinations to fill vacancies for class 1 privates in the metropolitan and park police departments were announced yesterday by the Civil Service Commission. Applications will be received by the commission at Seventh and F streets northwest until June 1.

There are 10 vacancies to be filled in the metropolitan department, with a bill in Congress to provide for 55 additional appointments. Six vacancies are to be filled in the park police force. Entrance salary in each department is $1,900. A private's pay ranges up to $2,400 at the end of five years' service.

The examination will be the first held in nearly five years. Applicants for the metropolitan department must be residents of the District and upon appointment must remain here. For the park force, appointments will be made from Alexandria, Arlington, Fairfax, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Applicants must be at least 22 years old, but not more than 32.

Cabinet Wives Assist Mrs. Roosevelt in Receiving.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt entertained at a tea yesterday afternoon for members of the Women's National Press Club and the Newspaper Women's Club of Washington, of which she is an honorary member.

The invitations were for a garden party, but the heavy rains early in the afternoon made it advisable to have the party indoors. Guests assembled in the east room and were ushered into the red room, where Mrs. Roosevelt was receiving, assisted by the ladies of the Cabinet. The rooms were decorated with tall vases of pink roses and snapdragons, and lighted by candles, while the late afternoon sun poured in through the long windows.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore a frock of deep rose crepe printed with blue and fashioned with a short jacket, the sleeves of which were banded with fox fur. Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, was in black, with a wide-brimmed black hat and a corsage of Belmont gardenias. Mrs. Henry A. Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, was in a gown of red, white and black printed crepe with a redingote of black, and a small black hat, and Mrs. George H. Dern, wife of the Secretary of War, wore a black and white printed gown with a bleak hat.

Mrs. Swanson Wears Blue Frock.

Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, was there in a navy blue frock with a hat to match, and Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce. The former was in pale gray crepe with a scarf of gray fox, and Mrs. Roper wore a gown of black crepe polka dotted with white, and a large black straw hat trimmed with cherries.

In the dining room, the tea table was spread in the center of the room, and decorated with tall candelbra and masses of pink roses. At one end, almost hidden by the huge silver tea service, was Mrs. Donner Roosevelt, who is visiting at the White House from her home in Philadelphia. She wore a navy blue frock with reveres of printed crepe in a dull gold color.

Guest in Indian Costume.

Mrs. Roosevelt always has a surprise in store for her guests, and yesterday afternoon she introduced Mrs. Walter A. Hendricks, of Rochester, N. Y. Mrs. Hendricks, who is with the publication division of the Rochester Museum of Arts and Sciences, appeared in the costume of the Seneca Indians of the Revolutionary period, a brightly colored costume of red and blue, with several pieces of native jewelry in hand-wrought silver. She had presented to Mrs. Roosevelt, earlier in the afternoon, a map of the five Indian reservations of New York State beautifully illustrated and framed. Mrs. Hendricks explained briefly some of the work done by and for the Indians in New York, and then told one of the many beautiful legends of their people.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt have issued invitations for a dinner at the White House June 4. They will entertain a company at dinner tonight preceding the dance they will give for newspapermen.

Tour to Include Old Jockey Club Of Alexandria

Included in the tour of historic houses in Alexandria Saturday, June 1, are several not before shown, the Alexandria Association, sponsor of the expedition, announces.

Among these is an interesting landmark, the Jockey Club, now the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stevens at 814 Franklin street. The club was founded soon after the town was incorporated and continued its existence until 1782. The race tracks were in front and to the right of the dwelling. George Washington and Benjamin Dulaney, members of the board of governors, raced their horses there. About 1784 the Jockey Club became the first golf club in America. This club lasted until 1845 and since that time the house has been a private dwelling. Many changes have been made in the interior, but the house still retains its well proportioned rooms. The mantels, strangely, are French, of Louis XVI inspiration, perhaps a gift from Lafayette.

The Swope house, the home of Mrs. Garland Lambert at 210 Prince street, according to a former owner, dates from 1776, when the Revolutionary patriot, Col. Michel Swope, purchased it. As a child, the former owner adds, she often heard her father tell the story of the old house. It was built in 1756 and during the Revolution was seized by the British and used as their headquarters. A captured American spy was tried and executed so the story goes, in the attic. There are those who firmly believe his spirit haunts the house. The house recently has been restored by Mrs. Lambert, and contains fine old furniture and notable woodwork.

Patronesses for the tour, which includes 18 houses, are Mrs. Eliphalet Andrews, Mrs. Mark Bristol, Mrs. Otis Bland, Mrs. Wilbur Carr, Mrs. Malin Craig, Mme. Cantacuzene-Grant, Mrs. George H. Dern, Mrs. Alfred I. du Pont, Mrs. P. H. Drewry, Mrs Colgate Darden, jr., Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis, Mrs. Wade Ellis, Mrs. Carter Glass, Mrs. Cordell Hull, Mrs. Harold Ickes, Mrs. Kenyon Joyce, Lady Lindsey, Mme. Lombard, Mrs. A. J. Montague, Mrs. Lucile Foster McMillan, Mrs. Keith Merrill, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mrs. John Garland Pollard, Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson, Mrs. David A. Reed, Mrs. Willis Robertson, Mrs. Aurelius R. Sands, Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Mme. Sokolowska, Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, Mrs. George Simonds, Mrs. Richard Southgate, Mrs. Howard Smith and Mrs. Oscar Underwood.

Tandem Event Also Planned in Fort Myer Fete Memorial Day.

Lieut. Col. J. L. Devers, commanding officer of the Sixteenth Field Artillery and director of the annual Fort Myer Horse Show on May 30, announces two innovations this year, a spectacular "musical drill" by Troop E, Third Cavalry, under the command of Capt. James T. Duke, Third Cavalry, and the "tandem drill," by Troop F, Third Cavalry, under command of Capt. Frank A. Allen, jr.

The "musical drill" will be presented in costume similar to that worn when the exhibition was presented at Atlantic City Auditorium before 60,000 spectators.

The "tandem drill" presented by Troop F is familiar to all who witnessed the exhibition drills at Fort Myer last year. Thirty-two horses, one ridden and one driven in tandem, engage in an intricate jumping drill in twos, and then in teams of fours, through various maneuvers at the gallop in the small area of the show ring.

Col. Kenyon Joyce, commanding officer of Fort Myer, announced that proceeds of the Memorial Day horse show would be devoted to the Army Relief Society. The show will start at 10-a. m. Luncheon will be served on the grounds. Parking space is available for the spectators.

Children Plan Festival Circus For Tomorrow

Notables Will Attend Fete in Stadium of Central High School.

Senator and Mrs. William H. King and their children, Representative Virginia Jenckes and Miss Jenckes, and their guests; Gen. F. C. Keefer and a party of guests; Mr. Melvin Hildreth and his children; Mr. Albert Clyde-Burton, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Whitwell, Mrs. Frank Ballou, Col. Wallace M. Craigie, Maj. Ernest Brown, Mrs. Louisa S. Roberts, Mr. Edward Kelly and party will be among those who will attend the Children's Festival Circus as special guests of the Community Center Department, which is presenting this event tomorrow afternoon in the stadium of Central High School.

It will be the first time that a city-wide children's circus will have been held in the Capital City. The acts will be presented by children from all parts of the city, who have been preparing for the event for many weeks.

A limited section of the vast stadium will be reserved for special guests, and the remainder of the seats will be open to the thousands of children who are expected, accompanied by parents or guardians; three sections of seats at the far end of the stadium will be occupied by the gayly clad "circus" participants, 1,000 in number, making the audience as colorful as the circus itself.

The gates of the stadium on Thirteenth and Eleventh streets will be open for the audience at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Boys and girls who will take part in the 20 kaleidoscopic acts will be admitted at the west Clifton street door of Central High School at the same hour. The big circus parade around the track will start at 2:30 o'clock and there will be banners, bands, clowns, ringmasters and the accompaniment of peanuts, popcorn, ice cream cones, candy and balloons.

Mrs. Allan Davis heads the circus committee, which comprises Mrs. Lucretia Walker Hardy, Mrs. John Albert Hunter, Mrs. George W. Irving, Mrs. D. E. Middleton, Mrs. Alfred Wynne, Miss Edith Shannon, Mrs. Mabel Clarke, Mrs. Walter Scott, Miss Bess Davis Schreiner, Mr. Harold Snyder and others. The committee is acting in cooperation with Mrs. E. K. Peeples, director of the Community Center Department.

Children, accompanied by their parents, will be the guests of the occasion, but their elders will be expected to pay their own admission fee of 25 cents, and children unaccompanied by either parent or guardian will likewise be expected to pay their own admission. The plan was decided by the committee in the hope that most of the children will be accompanied by older folks on this occasion.

Should the afternoon be inclement, the children's festival circus will be held indoors in the big Central High School auditorium.

Doody, Miss Ruth E. Parker, Miss Alma Wolking, Miss Vivian Barr, Mrs. Frank Berarducci, Miss Regis Boyle, Miss Charlotte A. Gartner, Miss Agnes Marceron and Mrs. Mildred C Bennert. Presiding at the tea table will be Mrs. Aubrey E. Landry, Miss Ora Kerby, Mrs. Ernest A. Valade and Mrs. John B. Parker.

Prominent on the list of guests will be Archbishop Michael J. Curley, Bishop James H. Ryan, the Rev. Francis J. Haas, Dr. Roy J. Defferrari, Mgr. Patrick J. McCormick, Mgr. David T. O'Dwyer, Mgr. Edward A. Pace, Mgr. William J. Kerby, Mgr. Peter Guilday, and the heads of the several departments of the University Graduate School, the Catholic Sisters College, and the National Catholic Social Service School.

Lane School Holds Exercises Sunday

Charlottesville Pastor Will Preach to Graduates.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., May 23.—The final exercises of Lane High School will begin Sunday with the sermon to the graduates at the Presbyterian Church by the pastor, the Rev. Dwight Moody Chalmers.

A banquet will be given in honor of the senior class Wednesday. Members of the school board, city council and principals of the elementary schools will attend. The senior dance will follow.

Graduation exercises will take place in Cabell Hall at the University of Virginia. This program is scheduled for next Friday. Principal features will be the address of welcome by the class president, Joe Disque; oration by Marjorie Herring, and valedictory address by John E. Manahan, son of Dr. John A. Manahan, dean of the School of Education at the University of Virginia.

Diplomas will be awarded to a class of approximately 80.

Lieut. Allen to Wed Agnes B. Fitzgibbon

Bride-Elect Is Niece of Admiral and Mrs. Bass.

Admiral and Mrs. I. E. Bass announce the engagement of their niece, Miss Agnes Bass Fitzgibbon, to Lieut. Keith Nichols Allen, formerly of Charlotte, Mich. and now stationed at Langley Field. Miss Fitzgibbon is a former student at the Adelphi Academy in New York. Lieut. Allen is a graduate of the University of Michigan.

The marriage is planned in June.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Burmeister of the marriage of their cousin, Miss Jessie Agnes McCormick, of Stark, Kans., and Mr. Cecil Cook, also of Stark. The ceremony was performed May 4 at the Burmeister home, 1702 Lamont street, by the Rev. Russel J. Clinchy, D. D., of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church. The mantel in front of which the bridal couple stood was banked with lilacs and apple blossoms and lighted by tapers in silver candelabra. A musical program was presented by Mrs. A. P. Chamberlain, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Grace Chamberlain. The bride, who was given in marriage by her cousin, Dr. E. Ray Ballinger, wore a frock of green crepe and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony, an informal reception was given for members of the immediate families and a few close friends. Mr. and Mrs. Cook will make their home in Washington for the present.

Mrs. Eric St. Clair Purdon, 2125 Leroy place, announces the betrothal of her daughter, Miss Mary Brownson Purdon, to Mr. Frederick A. Gutheim, son of Mr. and Mrs. August G. Gutheim, of Chevy Chase, Md.

The marriage is being planned for early June. Miss Purdon is the granddaughter of Col. George H. Morgan, retired.

Announcement is made of the betrothal of Miss Cherie LaForge Seaman, daughter of Mrs. Mildred L. Seaman, 2109 Sixteenth street northwest, to Omer S. Hoebreckx, son of Mr. Charles Hoebreckx, of Wisconsin. The marriage will take place in June.

Mrs. Cass Gilbert Returns to New York

Mrs. Cass Gilbert, who for the past few days had been a guest at the Mayflower, returned late yesterday to New York. Her son, Mr. Cass Gilbert, jr., and daughter, Miss Emily Gilbert, accompanied her home.

On Tuesday Mrs. Gilbert was a luncheon hostess with her daughter. Her guests were Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, Mrs. George Sutherland, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Owen J. Roberts and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss.

Mrs. Herman Glade, of Los Angeles, has arrived at the Martinique for a short visit.

Iowans Visitors At Club Meeting

Mrs. Thurston Hostess to Mrs. Towner and Others.

Mrs. Lloyd Thurston, wife of Representative Thurston, of Iowa, was one of the hostesses at the luncheon at the Congressional Club yesterday. She entertained in honor of Mrs. Horace M. Towner and other Iowa ladies in the Capital. Mrs. Towner has been attending the meetings of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association.

A program of songs will be given at the Congressional Club today by Mrs. Chester C. Bolton, the wife of Representative Bolton, of Ohio. The artist is well known in the musical world.

The last dinner bridge of the year will be given next Wednesday evening.

'Sunback' Frock Is Paris Decree

Backless Dresses Make Bow as Chanel Displays Her Summer Sports.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 23.—Backless "sunbath" frocks for resort and country wear were launched as 1935 summer sports styles when Chanel showed her new midseason collection.

Without a stitch of fabric in the back between the halter neck strap and the waistline, the frocks make it possible for "Old Sol" to bronze backs to match faces this summer. Most of the dresses were topped by little jackets, making practical costumes for restaurant and casino wear.

Cottons, linens and shantungs in all the light summer shades, some plain and some figured, fashioned the outfits. One had a skirt and jacket of natural colored linen flecked with green threads and a backless blouse of green crepe de chine, while another combined a "sunbath" dress of navy cotton patterned in small white figures with a white pique jacket.

New "three-in-one" frocks ready for the races, cocktails and dinner afterward, were other outstanding designs in the collection. All of them had long instep-length skirts. The smartest was fashioned of sheer black mousseline with long sleeves slit from shoulder to wrist trimmed with a pointed white pique collar and mannish white pique cuffs held with gold cuff links. Others were made of figured surah silk.

Evening gowns appeared in all the pastel shades in satin and organdy designed with waistlines and hemlines which lifted a little in front and skirts which molded the figure fairly closely to the kneeline, spraying into fullness below. Many of the satin frocks were topped by big tulle collarettes which stood around the neck like a ruche, fastening in front.

White pique evening gowns and accessories also were shown. A white pique frock with a decollete encircled in white pique flowers was accompanied by white pique gloves.

A new beige and brown "tweed" velvet made a dashing suit for early fall wear, while others were fashioned of wine red and black wools. Blouses of soft silver and gold cloth accompanied some of them.

Visitors From Cape Town Are Guests at Luncheon

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Precious and their daughter, Miss Sheila Precious, of Cape Town, South Africa, who are spending several days at the Mayflower, were luncheon guests yesterday of the Minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close.

Mr. Precious and his family are making a trip around the world. They plan to spend four months in England. Mrs. Wilfred Mann, daughter of the Minister and Mrs. Close, is a lifelong friend and schoolmate of Miss Precious.

Women's Group Hears Address By Miss Roche

Education Committee of Democratic Club Ends Season Here.

The education committee of the Woman's National Democratic Club brought the season to a close with a luncheon yesterday with Miss Josephine Roche, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, as speaker. She spoke to the crowded drawing rooms, urging the women to support the efforts to eradicate human waste, which she contends is "worse than financial deficits." Stressing efforts that are being made for the prevention of child labor and a better living standard, she cautioned against failure to see the job that has been done because there is so much yet to be done.

Seated at the speaker's table were Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, chairman of the committee, who introduced Miss Roche, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, Mrs. Basil Manly, Miss Mary Dewson, Mrs. James H. Wolfe, Mrs. Robert Nelson and Mrs. Ellis Meredith.

Among those at the luncheon were Mrs. Huston Thompson, Mrs. George Earle, wife of the Governor of Pennsylvania; Miss Pauletta Guffy, Mrs. Samuel Herrick, Mrs. John Allen Daugherty, Mrs. Emil E. Hurja, Mrs. Harry Baxter, Miss Guffy, Mrs. Thomas Reed, Mrs. Mark Bristol, Mrs. Luke I. Wilson, Miss Mary E. Bakewell, Mrs. Wilbur Hubbard, Mrs. Harry B. Mitchell, Mrs. Louise Greene, Mrs. William J. Price, Miss McKenna, Mrs. C. E. Riorden, Mrs. R. K. Noble

Mrs. A. A. Jones, Mrs. Royal Brassel, Mrs. E. R. Martin, Miss Laura Williams, Mrs. Dora Haines, Mrs. Glenn Gifford, Mrs. A. F. Busick, Mrs. Thomas Settle, Miss Marguerite Rawalt, Mrs. George F. Becker, Mrs. Lloyd Fletcher, Mrs. W. R. Satterfield, Mrs. Seth Thomas, Miss Mary Brush, Mrs. Catherine Morse, Mrs. M. H. Tighe, Mrs. William Aspinwall, Mrs. O. W. McNeese, Mrs. M. A. J. Markley, Miss McKenzie, Mrs. E. A. Stuart, Mrs. Bulkley Griffin, Miss Caroline Reilly, Mrs. Dumas Malone, Mrs. Albert Belyea, Mrs. George Eckels, Mrs. Charles Brough, Mrs. Rufus Weaver, Mrs. David Tucker Brown, Mrs. Clarence I. Miss Myerly Becomes Bride

Brother Reads Ceremony Uniting Sister to Alfred Holman.

A wedding of wide interest took place Wednesday at the Methodist parsonage in Westernport, Md., when Miss Marguerite Myerly, only daughter of Mr. J. G. Myerly, of Poolesville, Md., became the bride of Mr. Alfred Holman, of Winnipeg, Canada. The marriage ceremony was performed by the bride's brother, the Rev. H. S. Myerly, of Westernport, assisted by her uncle, the Rev. N. L. Myerly, of Brucetown, Va.

The bride wore a frock of pink, flat crepe and a straw hat of the same hue with white accessories. She carried a shower bouquet of pink snapdragons, blue dephinium and baby's-breath.

After the ceremony a luncheon was given for the relatives and a few close friends who were received by the bridal couple assisted by Mrs. H. S. Myerly and her sister, Mrs. George Chiswell.

Mrs. Mae Holman, mother of the bridegroom, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, was among those present.

Coup.

The word "coup" in the languag. of Bridge and Whist has a specialized meaning. This word, a French one, originally meant a strategem or unusually brilliant play, but not all brilliant plays at the bridge table are "coups," although many of the coups are brilliant in their planning and require exact timing to assure success.

When used without qualification, the term coup commonly means a trump coup. A typical opportunity arises when the declarer finds the opponent on his right with an honor in trumps which, because the dumy holds no more trumps to afford another lead through, is apparently uncapturable, and when the declarer himself holds so many trumps that unless he uses them for ruffing purposes he will in time be forced to lead up to the adverse honor and thus concede a trick.

A Well-Planned Coup.

West, Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	♠ A K J 6 ♡ 6 5 ◇ A K 8 2 ♣ 6 4 3
♠ Q 10 ♡ — ◇ J 10 9 7 ♣ A K J 10 8 7 2	N W E S	♠ 8 7 3 2 ♡ Q 9 8 4 ◇ Q 4 ♣ Q 9 5
	♠ 9 5 4 ♡ A K J 10 7 3 2 ◇ 6 5 3 ♣ —

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

West	North	East	South
1♣	1♠(1)	Pass	3♡(2)
4♣	4◇(3)	Pass	5♣(4)
Pass	5♡(5)	Pass	6♡(6)
Pass	Pass	7♣	7♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—As the simple overcall, when vulnerable, shows a strong hand, and as North is not well prepared for a heart response, he does not double.
2—This jump bid by South shows a long and strong suit.
3—North decides to show his second suit.
4—In view of North's two bids in his own strong suit, South rightly decides to try for a slam.
5—North, of course, must bid, and since he can not rebid spades or diamonds, returns to the hearts.
6—An obvious and correct call.

The Play.

West's opening lead was the club King, which South ruffed. He then laid down the Ace of trumps, and learned the worst. At this point many players would concede defeat, but South thought he could see a chance of victory, slight though it was. For this he proceeded to play.

He led the spade four, and won with the Ace in dummy. The finesse, if needed, could be deferred. Next a trump was led from dummy and East's eight was won with the ten. The spade five was now led, and when West's Queen dropped under the King, South could see victory in sight, provided East, as appeared from the bidding, had three clubs. A club was led from dummy and ruffed. The process of trump shortening was under way. The spade nine from the closed hand won the next trick and then a diamond was led and won in dummy. The spade Knave permitted the discard of the losing diamond in the closed hand. The last club was now trumped and the success of the coup assured. A diamond was led and won in dummy. The last two tricks were then won wit the King and Jack of hearts in declarer's own hand, capturing the Queen and nine in the East hand.

Perhaps the contract was overambitious, but its fulfillment was assured by the perfect plan of play adopted.

Facial Cream Used as Mask Aids Relaxing

By Ruth Anne Davis.

IT LOOKS as though wonders will never cease! Now comes a new mask which is little short of miraculous. The chances are you won't believe that it will do all that's claimed for it until you've tried it, and then there'll be no doubting! You can see with your very eyes!

This mask is a real cream which dries on the skin and forms a light, satiny coating. Unlike other masks, it doesn't feel heavy and gritty. Instead, you'll almost believe you have a silky film on your face. You can even allow it to remain on your throat overnight without experiencing the slightest discomfort.

You apply it after you've cleansed your skin and patted it with skin tonic. The mask should be smeared over face and neck, and left on from 15 minutes to an hour. It reacts almost immediately. You'll feel the relaxed skin begin to tighten and you may know then and there that your sagging contour and crepy throat are being well taken care of.

New Soap Recommended.

A certain large beauty concern took these facts into consideration and decided to prepare a soap which could be safely used on both face and hands without a drying effect. The result is the delicately scented cold cream soap sold in a large downtown store. This soap is 50 per cent cold cream and as delicate and dainty as any soap you could wish for. It costs only 25 cents a cake—and is well worth the price!

Summer vacationists who are planning to brave the sun and salt water will find this a boon during the hot weather months.

Beware of the Sun.

Remember that when the sun smiles on you it leaves a lovely, golden bronze! But remember, too, that when it frowns, it leaves wrinkles, and all manner of other sun ills! One of our chief grudges against the good old summer sun is the number of tiny wrinkles it imparts to the fine skin around the eyes. The glare causes us to squint — and the squint results in the fine furrows!

Why not guard against these by wearing a pair of sun glasses which will not only protect your eyes, but ward off the onslaught of crowsfeet! You may purchase a delightful little sun-kit in a downtown store, which includes the glasses with either amber or dark glass and also a comb and mirror.

You can imagine what a smart little accessory this will make for motoring trips, beach parties and picnics. It's small and compact enough to fit easily into your bag or swagger coat pocket.

There are hundreds of women who maintain that nothing makes their faces feel quite as clean and refreshed as a good old soap and water washing. And yet, they fear that soap may prove drying to the skin.

Good for Tired Eyes.

Query: After a hard day's work at the office, or even after the movies, my eyes are often red and sore. I do not like to use eyedrops. Do you know of any other treatment that might help? ANNE.

Answer: There is a certain eye bath which is especially for such eye conditions. It is safe to use with an eye cup or an eye dropper but is equally efficacious when applied over the eyes. Simply dampen pads of cotton with it and allow these to rest over your closed eyes. Write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and we'll be glad to give you the trade name of this excellent product.

Natural Bleaches.

Query: I would like to know if raw cucumbers are good for the skin. I have heard of using them for bleaching. L. T. D.

Answer: Fifty years ago cucumbers were frequently used on skins to soothe as well as to bleach. Undoubtedly, cool cucumbers, cut in half, do feel refreshing, but it is doubtful that they are particularly beneficial. They are not harmful, however.

If you are interested in natural bleaches why don't you try buttermilk or raw tomatoes? They work slowly, but there are many who say they work surely, too.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4200, Extension 305, for further information, or write, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

Sign of Progress Is Noted As Women Plan to Discuss Moot Issues at Convention

By Malvina Lindsay.
Woman's Page Editor.

A HOPEFUL SIGN of the times is that women's clubs seem to be losing their rabbity attitude toward public questions. The forthcoming convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at Detroit promises to be a mental Armageddon at which will be fought out such national controversies as birth control, lynching, universal finger printing and the World Court. Political and economic forums at which speakers will voice opposing views will be held.

• • • •

Only a few years ago the all-important thing in a club convention or even a club meeting was to avoid anything that savored of controversy—excepting, of course, an election row. It was all right to fight over personalities, but not over ideas. Program committees carefully avoided discussion of any topic that might offend any group or any individual. The successful presiding officer was one who saw to it that all embarrassing resolutions were tabled, that the fights all occurred in committee rooms and that all public sessions moved in a well oiled and innocuous manner.

• • • •

As a result, club conventions degenerated into rounds of receptions and automobile tours, committee reports and the passing of resolutions that profusely thanked everybody from the town mayor to the station baggage master, but which remained cautiously aloof from most of the disturbing problems of the day.

NOW, HOWEVER, at Detroit, controversial topics are not only to be discussed but to be acted upon. What resolutions, if any, are passed, is beside the point. The important thing is that the federation is grappling in the open with tough social and economic problems without too much regard as to whose toes are stepped upon.

• • • •

Women are the logical ones to take the lead in promoting frank and free discussion of these problems and in passing on all the enlightment possible concerning them. For one thing, they have the organization machinery to do this. For another, they have the temperament.

• • • •

Women, being realists, are more courageous than men in wading into a forthright and practical discussion of a problem. Men are the champion "sush-shush"-ers in the world when their traditions or pet sentimentalities are involved. Moreover, they are the high priests of euphemisim. If there is any possible excuse to call a spade an implement for planting roses they will do so. The ladylike behavior tradition that for years has prevented women's groups from discussing matters that ought to be discussed has been nothing compared with the gentlemen's code of free action but fettered speech.

THE TRADITION that nothing should be discussed if it had any embarrassing political, economic or social ramifications has long handicapped the effectiveness of women's organizations. But surely women in club life are mature enough mentally by now to cast aside that tradition. Surely they have progressed to the point where they can discuss national controversial issues without hair pulling. But if they have not, then they had better pull hair than evade the issues.

• • • •

It is particularly urgent that women's groups should carry on the tradition of free and fearless speech at this time when the Fascist threat hangs over the womanhood of the world. One of the chief tenets in the creed of dictators is that women should be seen and not heard. The more women talk now, even in the face of "good form," the more they may be able to talk later in the face of political decrees.

• • • •

By taking a strong stand for fearless speech women may not only strengthen their own position but also the cause of democracy. The open forum of thought and speech in women's groups is in a way a return to the town meeting idea out of which this country's government was evolved. Women's clubs could serve no greater patriotic purpose than to preserve this tradition, to make of themselves the Hyde Parks of femininity.

What TODAY Means

"GEMINI"

IF MAY 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m., from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m. and from 7:15 to 9:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a. m., from 4:15 to 6:15 p. m. and from 9:15 to 11:15 p. m.

It will be wise to avoid running the chance of offending a friend by making adverse comments of a personal nature. You will have to be diplomatic in both business, as well as social contacts today, if you would keep from giving offense. There may be a trend for people in general to make extravagant statements on this date, so it may be good judgment to discount sensational statements.

Business competition is likely to be very keen, so in price quotations it will be wise to use a sharp pencil. Unless the guests, at social affairs, exert themselves to cooperate with their host by being entertaining, there is danger of entertainments dragging. Through procrastination money is likely to be lost, so do not neglect atending to financial matters.

Married and engaged couples, as well as those hoping to become the "one and only," will avoid a world of trouble if they exercise self-restraint, especially where control of ill temper is involved.

If a woman and May 24 is your birthday, you probably have a great deal of dramatic ability. It will be good judgment not to give vent to any form of emotionalism in home or social contacts. Your sympathetic, as well as generous nature, may be taken unfair advantage of by friends, unless you develop a practical streak, to protect your own interests. You will find it advantageous to set aside a certain amount of time in which to do some substantial reading, for it is important that you keep yourself well informed.

If you will learn to live your own life, and not depend too much on the guidance of others, your success is likely to be gratifying. Be cautious in financial matters. Avoid entering into verbal contracts, remembering that only written ones are legal. If you will not mix friendship up in business transactions, you may keep out of complications. Cashiering, bookkeeping, hostessing, stenography, as well as selling, and dramatic work are among the suitable lines of employment for you to engage in. You should be very happy married.

If a man and May 24 is your natal day, you should be mentally well equipped to succeed in the legal, medical or theatrical professons, and have the qualifications essential for good salesmanship. You will be far more contented married, than single.

Background Held Vital For Commercial Artists

Among the speakers at the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the College Art Association, now in session, is Dr. Eleanor Shepherd Thompson, above. She is especially interested in young commercial artists.

They Must Be Versed in Social and Cultural Pursuits to Draw Authentically, Dr. Thompson, of Toronto, Observes.

A GOOD SOCIAL and cultural background is almost as necessary as talent for the girl who wants to be a commercial artist, Dr. Eleanor Shepherd Thompson, art instructor at the Toronto Normal School, Toronto, Canada, learned when she made a survey of New York employers of fashion artists and interior decorators.

The employers' theory, according to Dr. Thompson, is that the girl who hasn't been accustomed to attending fashionable gatherings has only a vague idea of the way fashionable women really look.

"The same thing applies to interior decorating," she explained yesterday. "The girl who hasn't been familiar with well-planned homes isn't likely to be much good at planning attractive places. At least that's the way the employers look at it."

Lack Authentic Style.

Dr. Thompson, here to attend the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the College Art Association, has known cases where talent triumphed over impoverished social and cultural background. The girl from a commonplace Swedish family in Minnesota, for instance, who has become a top-notch fashion artist in New York.

"But as a rule the young woman from the Middle West has a hard time making the grade," said Dr. Thompson, who is an artist in her own right. "She doesn't know how to slant a hat at just the right provocative angle. She doesn't know about hemlines or correct gloves. So her fashion drawings lack dash and authentic style."

Dr. Thompson, first person to receive a doctor's degree from Columbia University in the double field of fine arts and education, learned from her survey that the majority of employers of commercial artists believe most schools give impractical training.

"They think the courses often are too short; not enough emphasis is put upon creative work; too many pupils with no ability are permitted to go through the schools," Dr. Thompson said.

She herself believes entrance requirements should be more stringent because "art is so highly competitive in the commercial field that only the gifted can succeed."

Opposes Too Much Technique.

Dr. Thompson also believes teachers in art schools should have professional experience in whatever subjects they teach and that less attention should be given to technique.

"Many schools," she said, "burden their students with so much technique the creative gift is damaged. The New York employers emphatically said they'd rather have a quick worker with ideas than someone whose craftsmanship is perfect. The girl with ideas may not draw so well, but at least her work will always be interesting."

Dr. Thompson left the commercial art field three years ago when she joined the faculty of the Toronto school. Now she trains young people who intend to teach art in public schools. Most of them will teach children, and so Dr. Thompson is especially interested in planning courses for boys and girls from the primary grade up.

She declares she has never known of a child who did not like art; believes almost all children have a natural good taste in judging pictures and lets even the youngest pupils select those they like best.

Gain Esthetic Sense.

"I always have them tell me why they like a certain painting," said Dr. Thompson. "In groping to express their likes and dislikes they gain an esthetic sense. In fact, art as it is taught today develops children in three ways: Psychologically, sociologically and esthetically."

Psychological development comes about through creative work, she explained, adding that class projects with all the pupils uniting their efforts are responsible for sociological growth.

Every child can do a certain amount of art, even if he is color blind, Dr. Thompson is convinced. She also believes creative and imaginative work can be carried right through high school.

What about the study of the Old Masters?

Science Curbs Malaria Peril

Quinine Effective Remedy; Symptoms Recede Rapidly After Taking Atebrin.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

FOR years malaria has been masquerading under numerous names such as ague, chills and fever, intermittent and remittent fever, marsh fever, jungle fever, swamp fever, and many others. For a long time the exact cause of the disease was not understood, although its symptoms were known and the quinine treatment has been used for centuries.

All mosquitoes do not spread malaria. Those that breed in water strongly contaminated with sewage are not malaria spreaders. Neither are those that sing loudly. To develop malaria one must be bitten by a particular sort of mosquito known as the anopheles that has sucked the blood of a person infected with malaria. The parasites drawn into the mosquito's stomach undergo development and are then inoculated into a human victim from the salivary glands of the insect. The anopheles breed in clear, fresh water along marshy river lands, fresh water lakes, ponds and ditches. They usually bite at night and have a peculiarly soft hum.

Chills and Fever Follow.

After the bite of an infected mosquito symptoms develop in from 2 to 30 days and vary somewhat with the type of the disease. In general, however, we may say that chills, fever and profuse sweating follow each other with fair regularity. During the chill the temperature may rise to as high as 106 degrees F., although the skin temperature may be below normal. In this fever period children may become delirious or be seized with convulsions. As the surface chill of the body recedes the skin becomes intensely hot and the face flushed. There is usually extreme thirst. Within an hour or two sweating begins, following which the patient feels greatly improved—there is a sense of comfort, and sleep often ensues. It requires about 12 hours for the patient to pass through the chill, fever and sweating stages.

Quinine is of the highest value in this disease and the routine treatment is well known to people living in malarious areas.

Chair Maker Hired Women in Old Days

Cutting Stencils Was One of Their First Jobs.

One of the first jobs for women outside the home in this country was the cutting of stencils for chairs made by Lambert Hitchcock near Hartford, Conn.

Stencils for Hitchcock chairs were made exclusively by women. The decorations were applied with the fingers which were dipped first in oil then in dry bronze or gold powder before the part to be decorated was entirely dry. Fingers of the women which rubbed over the stencils became as hard at the tips as boards.

Hitchcock was the first person to make genuine rocking chairs according to a tradition in the family. Previously, rocking chairs had consisted of straight chairs with rockers added as a separate item.

Visit to Open Market Cures Menu Blues

Post staff, courtesy of Union Market.

If you are having menu trouble, take a trip to the open market. Just the sight of spring's glowing array of fresh fruits and vegetables will snap you into consciousness of such new arrivals as corn on the cob, cantaloupe, Spanish grapes and watermelon.

Rich Strawberries, Firm Grapes, Crisp Greens Banish Indecision.

By Dorothea Duncan.

MENU BLUES? Then just take a trip to the open market. If you aren't cured in 15 minutes, you aren't worth curing. Carry a small basket on each arm, one for fruit and the other for vegetables. If you can't muster up a bit of restraint, you will come home with everything in sight and an empty pocketbook. The array of fresh fruits and succulent vegetables are just that tempting.

Surely something in this array of fruit will appeal to you—gleaming pale green and red grapes hanging in thick clusters, firm red apples, large seedless oranges, grapefruit, pears, pineapple, the most perfect red strawberries of the season, small sweet cantaloupe and the first of that summer favorite, watermelon.

The display of vegetables is hard to equal. Salad ingredients are at their best. You will find crisp radishes, cucumbers, celery, lettuce, both the iceberg and Boston varieties, perfect avocadoes and luscious red tomatoes, not to mention round onion discs or the green spring ones. Spring echoes again in the fresh turnip greens, the new beets, asparagus, small carrots, sweet turnips, plump pods chock full of emerald green peas, summer squash, both the flat greenish white ones with scalloped edges and the bright yellow ones, bottle-shaped and crooked of neck, slender green beans with a ready snap, plenty of spinach and the first good sweet corn of the season.

It isn't so much what to buy as when to stop buying that creates a problem. Today's suggested week-end menus are given to help you. The anchovy canapes may be made up quickly just before serving time, if round, crisp, salty crackers are used instead of toast. Simply spread the crackers with anchovy paste and top each with a sprinkling of chopped hard-cooked egg white and sieved egg yolk. A lot of red pimiento or a slice of stuffed olive may be used to add a bit of color to the center of each canape.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: My husband died and left me with three children and no means of support, so I am very much in need of employment. I have no training except as a housekeeper and can sew very well. Before I was married I was employed as a clerk in various places.

• • • •

I would appreciate it so much if you could make some suggestions as to how I could make a living. I have thought of many things, but so far haven't located anything. Yours very truly, VIRGINIAN.

DEAR VIRGINIAN: Are you a really good housekeeper? If you are, there is a strong demand for especially competent ones in a relatively small number of wealthy homes. The pay is good for the highly competent housekeeper—sometimes extremely good. Competent housekeepers are also, as you know, employed by hotels and apartment houses. There, too, the test is ability, in an executive way, to supervise work and probably a willingness to make adjustments with a personnel that needs supervision and study. I have heard lots of persons complain about their inability to get first-class housekeepers. M. H.

Student Wants Work.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am 20 years old and have a fair education, having attended Teachers' College for two years, from which I will graduate in June with a standard normal certificate. I am without a teaching position for next year and feel I am a failure in the eyes of my family, who sacrificed much to educate me. I can not in fairness accept any more help from that source.

• • • •

I would like to get some sort of job during the day and study at a commercial school in the evening. I can type, sew rather well, do housework, cook and take care of small children. Do you know how I could get work in Washington? I must find such a place before next fall. Also, can you give me the names of commercial schools which conduct evening classes? Sincerely yours, MADELINE.

DEAR MADELINE: Among Washington business schools which conduct night classes are the Washington School for Secretaries, National Press Building; Strayer College of Accountancy, Homer Building, and the Temple School of Business Secretaries, 1420 K street northwest.

The first-named school is recessed from June until September, but the other two operate the year 'round.

• • • •

Self-supporting students who matriculate at Strayer College are helped to find places as mothers' helpers in homes where their services are exchanged for room and board. Since this type of self-help is primarily designed for daytime students, you might find it necessary to reverse the arrangement.

• • • •

A capable girl or woman who can and will cook, sew and care for children is hard to find. By advertising your qualifications and your willingness for such a job in the Washington Sunday newspapers, stating your requirements and the minimum salary acceptable, you should easily find such a post. I would advise you to begin looking now, and not put it off until fall.

• • • •

Also, since you type, you might try for a typist position with one of the Federal alphabetical agencies. Your congressional representative Democratic Senators or Democratic county chairman can provide you with the necessary indorsements and information concerning where to apply. Or you can get helpful information by writing Mr. Morgan Baker, editor of The Post's Federal Dairy, whose work brings him into daily contact with Federal employment machinery. M. H.

'Continental,' Newest Spot, Open 24 Hours

By Kay Ware.

A new restaurant—the Continental—has opened at the bus center, Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue. You can get almost any type of service there, from two-minute to the lingering two-hour kind. You may pick up a quick lunch at the horseshoe counter, sip a fountain delicacy at the soda bar; bring your family for dinner at a table just the right size, or have cocktails in a comfortable lounge. There's 24-hour service.

Best news of the day—the Reyes will be back in town for the Shoreham's Terarce opening week, beginning their engagement June 1. Since the terrace begins it's official season June 1, we'll have to weather along over the week-end until the Reyes appear. They are, you remember, the Cuban rhumba dancers who nearly started a riot during their stay last winter.

Ramon and Ruth, Ewen Hail and Toma Genaro fill the bill this week.

Ernestine Gardner, singing star of the Willard's Bamboo Room, is a bit homesick, so they're sending her back to the Eastern Shore until she's well again. Honey Davis will pinch-hit during her absence.

A quiet whisper—that Fritz Maile will see that Ernestine arrives safely.

Local department store will stage a fashion show at the Ambassador Hotel's pool tonight at 8 o'clock. Live models show the latest in beach accessories, including the new "sea-satin" suit popularized in Florida last winter.

The experiment of opera in a floor show and a dance orchestra doing an occasional concerto or symphony number.

The introduction locally of the vodka highball and the Russian sidecar.

And last but not least, Troika boasts of a guest's endurance record—a party came in at 4 one afternoon and left at 3 the next morning.

River Bend announces the addition will be completed Wednesday, May 29. Whereupon the name will be Greater River Bend. New feature will be a dance floor nearly twice the size of the original one. Dancing and music nightly except Sunday.

At the Lotus, the chorus is cavorting around in a special number to the tune of "Every Day." The girls, dressed in long, full pink skirts and bonnets, dance behind Alwin Wilbert Norton (Al to you) as he sings the vocals. Nice effect, that.

And at La Paree they have three full shows daily, with Marie Fowler and Ray Beck singing with Emory Daugherty and his orchestra.

Child's Gingham Club is looking forward to a cool and successful summer season, with an air-conditioning system installed and lots of ideas for shows. A rumor—that Melbourne Christopher, the master magician, will be there next week.

When the Club Habana Roof starts their summer season at Arlington Hotel, you probably won't recognize it as the same roof of some seasons ago. Daniels Brothers, local architects, are installing new, tricky lights, deflected spots and a brand new dance floor. A new band stand for Moe Baer and his Club Habana Orchestra will also greet the old-timers.

Randolph Presents Racket Statistics

Toll 15 Billion a Year in U. S., House Member Says.

Racketeering alone extorts from the American people $15,000,000,000 annually, Representative Randolph, of West Virginia, chairman of the special House Committee investigating crime in the District, told the Washington Junior Baord of Commerce at its luncheon meeting yesterday.

"In the last 35 years America's annual murder rate has increased 350 per cent," Mr. Randolph said, adding: "The gravity of the crime problem in Washington should be of particular concern to its citizens, since the crime rate in this city is abnormal."

In proportion to population, Washington has two and a half times as many murders as New York, and 40 per cent more murders than Chicago, Mr. Randolph concluded.

Fleet Marine Battalion Holds Review Tomorrow

The Fifth Battalion, Fleet Marine Corps Reserve, will hold a review, inspection and escort of the colors tomorrow afternoon at John Marshall place and Indiana avenue.

The 500 members of the outfit will swing past a large audience, terminating their review when the color squad is dismissed at 4:15 p. m.

Wheatley P.-T. A. Honor Boys' Safety Patrol

Capt. Richard Mansfield, of the Ninth Precinct, was the principal speaker at a luncheon yesterday of the Wheatley Parent-Teacher Association in honor of the Boys Patrol of that school. The luncheon was directed by Mrs. F. Touart and Mrs. Jean Starr.

Various exercises to emphasize the character building projects in the school were given by the Boys Patrol.

Others attending the luncheon were Mrs. Alice Brooks in charge of safety; Officer J. Jengham, Miss Florence Mortimer, principal of the Wheatley School; Mrs. Walter D. Fry, Mrs. Walter C. Jones, Mrs. O. Hampkins, all of the District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Maj. Gen. Fries to Read Memorial Day Orders

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries will read Memorial Day orders at services to be held at veterans' graves in Mount Olivet Cemetery tomorrow at 1 p. m. Annual Outing Of Boy Scouts Set for June 8

Games, Swimming, Hiking to Be Enjoyed at Camp Roosevelt.

The annual C. M. O. trip to Camp Roosevelt for Scouts and their fathers will be held this year on Saturday, June 8. Since the railroad no longer operates, the trip will take the form this year of an automobile caravan in which each troop will arrange its own transportation. However, for those desiring to go by bus, arrangements will be made through headquarters to provide buses at a reasonable rate.

The program at the camp will begin at 10:30 a. m. and will include games, contests, boating, hikes and two swimming periods. The Scouts are bringing or cooking their own lunch, but candy, ice cream, sandwiches, etc., will be on sale at the camp. The caravan will leave the camp about 4:30 p. m. About 1,000 Scouts are expected to make the trip.

Tomorrow may well be called "Camporee Day" in District Scouting circles, since 8 divisions, including more than 50 troops, are holding their overnight camp contests then. The Piney Branch and Rock Creek divisions will go into camp at Gulf Branch, near Chain Bridge on the Virginia shore of the Potomac. The Potomac division will camp at Donlops Farm, 4 miles beyond Cabin John and across from the Congressional Country Club. The Cathedral and Chevy Chase divisions will camp at Evergreen, along the extension of Massachusetts avenue in Maryland.

To Meet at D. C. Line.

The patrols will assemble at the District line on Massachusetts avenue. The Capitol Division will hold its "Camporee" at Camp Wilson, across the stream from the campus. The Redskin and Rising Sun divisions will be located at Randle Highlands.

John Amante, of Troop 100, is the new president of the District of Columbia Eagle Scout Association, having been elected May 14. Richard Miller, of Troop 54, is the retiring president.

Troop 36, at the Takoma Park Baptist Church, has announced its annual spring encampment at Camp Rothrock, Micheau Forest, Pa., from May 29 to June 2. Between 40 and 50 Scouts and Scouters will make the trip. Scoutmaster C. L. Boyer will be in charge, with Assistant Scoutmaster F. R. Leaman, as executive officer.

A harmonica contest will be conducted by Station WMAL for local aspirants. Dorothy Stewart, the "Aunt Sue" of the 5:15 program, is conducting the contest and especially invites Boy Scouts to take part. The prize is a chromatic harmonica. Those who play the harmonica should write in to the station for an appointment.

First-Aid Planned.

Eight Eagle Scouts are going to Marshall Hall Saturday morning to prepare the first-aid cabin for the use of first-aid patrols during the summer.

Color bearers from each troop and in addition 100 Scout aids will attend the annual massing of colors at the Washington Cathedral on Sunday at 3 p. m.

On May 30 Scout color bearers and guards will take part in the Memorial Day parade, and in addition to this several hundred Scouts will decorate the graves at Arlington. They leave the zero mile stone by buses at 9:30 a. m.

On June 1 a bus load of Scouts will go to Abingdon on the Mount Vernon boulevard to serve as ushers, color bearers and aids at the unveiling of a tablet in memory of Nellie Custis, who was born at Abingdon. The ceremony will start at 2 p. m.

The regional national jamboree promotion committee is scheduled to meet in Washington on Saturday, June 1, at the Boy Scout headquarters.

Ottenberg Accepts Chest Budget Post

Dodge Announces Lawyer Will Head Committee.

Louis Ottenberg, prominent Washington attorney and welfare worker, has accepted chairmanship of the Community Chest budget committee, Clarence Phelps Dodge, Chest president, announced yesterday.

Last year Ottenberg served as chairman of the sub-committee of the budget committee, dealing with the character building institutions of the organization. In this capacity he insisted on personal reports on every agency in his group.

For ten years he was legal adviser for the Associated Charities, which now is the Family Service Association. He was one of the organizers of the Legal Aid Bureau here.

At present he is a member of the boards of the Northeast Boys Club, the Jewish Community Center, the Hebrew Home for the Aged, the Travelers Aid Society, the Legal Aid Bureau and the Council of Social Agencies.

Motorman Prisoner Tries to Choke Self

Slater E. Elkins, 22, a street car motorman, attempted to choke himself while a prisoner in a precinct station, police reported yesterday. He was being held for alleged intoxication.

Policeman A. E. Fuller, of the Second Precinct, said he found Elkins in his cell with a handkerchief knotted tightly about his neck. The prisoner was sent to Gallinger Hospital, where his condition was reported as undetermined.

Cadets Compete Today.

The annual competitive drill of St. John's College cadets will be held in the Ellipse today at 10 a. m. A silver loving cup will go to the winning company and to the best drilled private or corporal. The Federal Diary

Trade-Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

HOPES of employe organizations, the National League of Women Voters and similar groups, for repeal of Section 213 (married persons' clause) of the Economy Act in this session of Congress are growing fainter daily.

BAKER.

Members of Congress seem more determined than ever that the law remain in effect and that it be enforced more rigidly. Several factors bolster this trend, including the unprecedented pressure upon Capitol Hill for jobs by the "folks back home," many of whom have become destitute during the depression. In the face of this avalanche of pleas from that class, one Representative who is prominent in shaping legislation affecting Government personnel pointed out it is highly improbable that he and his colleagues will vote to repeal Section 213.

The attitude of Representative Ramspeck, chairman of the House Civil Service Committee, on the married persons' clause is regarded as typical of the majority of the members of Congress. Yesterday he told of a scene in his office that was reported to have occurred in a similar manner in many other offices on the Hill.

Interview Cited.

"A married woman," the Georgian said, "who was dismissed from a bureau where the personnel was being reduced, appealed to me to assist in saving her job. I learned that her husband was employed in another bureau at a very comfortable salary. Assuring her that I could not interfere with the law, I suggested that she seek employment outside the Government, inasmuch as she outlined her qualifications which would be valuable elsewhere.

"Becoming indignant, she threatened to go into my district and oppose my reelection.

"Then," Mr. Ramspeck continued, "I reminded her that there are about 40,000 citizens unemployed and many of them destitute in the Atlanta district. Among that army of jobless there are several hundred wives with high qualifications to hold all types of Government positions whose husbands and relatives have been out of work three or more years.

"I asked the lady how could she justify her protest before the depression-scarred electorate of Atlanta. She left, angry and hurt, but returned later and denied any intention of taking the matter up with our folks back home."

Favors Survey.

Mr. Ramspeck believes the married persons clause is popular throughout the country, but readily admits that inconsistencies exist in its enforcement. He deplores those inequities of execution, particularly in the lower salaried class, where the brunt has fallen heavily and, generally, harshly. He declared a survey should have been made before enactment, and indicated such a survey may yet be made.

Federal Diary readers are invited to express opinions on Section 213 as well as on other problems of Federal employes. For each letter favoring or opposing Section 213 that is published, a pair of tickets to one of Loew's theaters will be awarded. The letters will be published in pairs—one for and one against the clause. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters must not exceed 250 words.

A mass meeting of Government employes will be held in Chicago June 2 under auspices of the American Federation of Government Employes, in cooperation with the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, National Association of Letter Carriers, Railway Mail Association and other labor organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Senator Pat McCarran, E. Claude Babcock and William Green will attend.

IF F, P or C follows your name in this column, call in person and see the Federal Diary editor between 4:30 and 6 p. m. today. You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's theaters: F, Loew's Fox (stage, Myrt and Marge and other acts; screen, "Age of Indiscretion," with Paul Lukas and Madge Evans); P, Loew's Palace (Mae West in "Goin' to Town"); C, Loew's Columbia (second week of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy in "Naughty Marietta").

Ten cents a letter,
Ten letters a day,
That makes a dollar.
Who says it doesn't pay?
Then I begin again.
How much is ten times ten?
It gets no better.
Where is that letter?
First cents, then dimes;
Then dollars, then rhymes;
Now it's a "grand,"
And now it's a million.
If I'm a go-getter,
'Twill soon be a trillion.
First hot, then cold;
First timid, then bold;
Maybe it won't work,
Maybe it will.
How can a poor clerk
Ever be still?
Crash goes my brain!

Motorman Arraigned For Fire Truck Crash

Accused of failing to give right of way to a fire engine, George H. Williams, street car motorman, was arraigned in Traffic Court yesterday and charges against him were continued until June 11.

Two firemen, injured in a crash with Williams' street car on May 8, were unable to appear in court, so Judge Issac R. Hitt ordered the trial postponed.

The crash was downtown on Eleventh street while appartus of No. 9 Engine Company was answering an alarm for a minor blaze. Several firemen were thrown to the street. Those seriously hurt and recovering in local hospitals are Private Raymond Creel, 30, and Sergt. George W. Swords, 38.

Adams Race Will Be Seen By Roosevelt

President and First Lady to Attend Regatta at Annapolis Saturday.

Ex-Navy Chief, 68, to Pitt Skill Against Young Middie Star.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., May 23.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt will be on hand here Saturday afternoon when the veteran skipper, Charles Francis Adams, former Secretary of the Navy, hoists sail on a small star boat to race Midshipman David S. Seaman, interclass sailing champion of the Naval Academy.

The race is the result of the desire expressed for Midshipman Seaman to pit his skill against a veteran seafarer. Adams is to be in Annapolis that day to referee the race for the Adams Cup Trophy, for which shells from Harvard, Pennsylvania and Navy will compete.

Today the former naval chief, who is 68, wired acceptance to his young challenger with the terse reply:

"Delighted to meet you in star; with or without crew."

The President and First Lady will have strong interest in the race due to the fact that their son, Franklin D., jr., is scheduled to stroke for Harvard.

Meanwhile, strict regulations for patroling the waters of the upper Severn River, when the crews compete in the regatta, were laid down in an order issued by Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, superintendent of the Naval Academy.

A Coast Guard cutter and similar craft will be assigned to patrol duty. Only boats officially designated will be permitted to follow the crews over the race course.

All other craft bearing pleasure parties will be compelled to remain at anchor toward shores on either side of the course or at the finish line.

President Roosevelt will follow the races in the referee's boat with former Secretary Adams, who will send the rival crews off. The regatta program calls for three races between varsity junior and freshmen eights.

Colored Minister May Be on Jury

One of Seven Summoned for Staunton Service.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Staunton, Va., May 23.—For the first time in the history of Augusta Circuit Court a colored person has been called for service on a grand jury.

He is the Rev. L. B. Goodall, of Waynesboro; one of seven men called to report here Monday. It is the policy of the court to use either five or seven on the grand jury. If seven are used, the minister undoubtedly will serve.

A petit venire will report Tuesday to begin hearing criminal and civil cases.

Other grand jurors will be W. B. Timberlake, J. D. Neff, H. M. Hamilton, H. E. Skelton, Ira E. McCutcheon and U. Scott Hamrick.

Peter Saunders, secretary of the Commonwealth, has announced that the term of Judge Joseph A. Glasgow, who presides over the circuit which embraces Augusta, Rockbridge and Highland Counties, will expire in 1936. He is one of nine jurists whose terms expire next year.

Gov Nice Signs Bill Outlawing Racing 'Books'

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., May 23.—Eighteen bookmaking establishments in Hagerstown and Washington County will close their doors June 1, ending a business that developed after a decision of the Court of Appeals of Maryland four years ago which held that Washington County, through some oversight, had been excluded from the State-wide law which prohibits the operation of bookmaking establishments.

The signing today by Gov. Harry W. Nice of a bill passed at the recent session of the Legislature makes it unlawful for bookmakers to operate in Washington County after June 1, and includes the county in the State-wide law prohibiting them.

The closing of the "bookies" represents a long fight on the part of citizens of Hagerstown, who have declared that the local situation, for the past four years, has had an unwholesome effect upon the community. It was only in the closing hours of the General Assembly that the bill was brought from committee and passed.

Vetoed by Ritchie.

Two years ago the Washington County delegation in the Legislature was successful in having an identical bill outlawing "bookies" passed in the Legislature, but Gov. Albert C. Ritchie vetoed it.

Several bookmaking establishments had operated here behind closed doors for years. Then authorities became active and two alleged bookmakers were arrested and convictions followed in the local courts. Counsel for the two discovered that the State law did not mention Washington County, perhaps by some oversight and carried appeals from the verdicts in the local court, to the Court of Appeals, which reversed the decision of the local courts.

The day following the decision, the bookmaking establishments, then only two in number, opened their doors. From that time on a number of new establishments have been opened here and one in Williamsport. Now there are 18 places operating here, employing approximately 100 persons. Fifteen of the places are operated from three downtown offices.

It has been estimated that approximately 3,000 persons play the races here daily. This includes both women and men. There are two establishments which operate separate betting rooms for women.

Crusade Opened.

Agitation for closing the bookmaking establishments here, one of the few places in the United States where they were legal, was first launched by the court in a charge to the grand jury, later to be taken up from the pulpits and then in the two local newspapers after the county's representative in the State Senate, Ernest W. Miller, introduced a bill early in the session that provided for licensing the establishments.

This bill drew the fire of the churches and newspapers, and it never was brought from the Senate committee for a vote. Later a bill that would outlaw them was introduced by the county delegation in the House of Delegates and was passed with the unanimous vote of that body, with all six of the county delegates, three Democrats and three Republicans, voting for the bill. Senator Miller then consented to pilot this bill through the Senate and it was finally brought from committee and favorably voted upon a few hours before adjournment.

Nice Accepts Bill to Boost Police Force

Other County Measures Include One on Sale of Coke, Coal.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 23.—The bill outlawing bookmaking in Washington County was among a group of nine new laws placed upon the statute books today by Gov. Harry W. Nice as he completed the task of signing measures enacted at the recent session of the General Assembly.

The "bookie" bill passed the Legislature after considerable controversy. In the last several days the Governor had been flooded by requests to sign it.

Bookmaking practices had flourished in the Washington County sector for a number of years, notwithstanding keen opposition from residents. However, the movement to stamp it out only entered the concerted stage within the last year, with the result that legislative action.

Four of the final batch of bills approved by the Governor were legislation affecting Prince Georges County, including the much discussed police bill, which authorizes appointment of four additional county constables, providing for a desk clerk at police headquarters and allows traveling expenses for police officials.

The bill exempting certain organizations from the license fee for boxing, sparring and wrestling matches held in the Ritchie Coliseum at College Park also was approved. Other Prince Georges measures to receive final action were to regulate sale of coal and coke in the county and provide for a general registration of voters in the town of Laurel and changing the registration authorized for 1938 to a supplemental registration.

A bill of State-wide importance approved was that amending existing chancery laws by giving courts discretionary power in allowing alimony and counsel fees to a wife in divorce action when evidence shows resources are insufficient for her needs.

The bill reducing the license fee of trading stamp companies was signed, as was also a measure setting up regulations for examination and licensing paper hangers in Baltimore City.

Other measures approved:

Reducing the license fee on trading stamp companies from $1,500 to $500 per annum.

Providing for a referendum for home rule in Worcester County on the question of holding party conventions instead of primary elections.

Revision of records shows that of a total of 600 bills placed before the Governor, 526 were approved and 74 vetoed.

Beatrice Schmucker To Inherit $100,000

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., May 23.—Information was received here today that Mrs. Beatrice Schmucker, wife of the Rev. Roy F. Schmucker, formerly of Gore, will inherit approximately $100,000 from the estate of her brother, the late Col. Charles Wilson Chase, U. S. A., retired, who died last March in Los Angeles.

Col. Chase, who during the World War was commandant of Kelly Field, Tex., left an estate of $250,000, the major portion of which was bequeathed to his divorced wife, Lillian Rice Brigham, and his sister, Mrs. Schmucker. Mrs. Schmucker is now at Toms Brook, Shenandoah County, where she is the guest of relatives.

Lee, Paid $50, Drove Liquor, Court Hears

Date Given Differs From Earlier Testimony to Grand Jury.

By the Associated Press.

Roanoke, Va., May 23.—Ed Cundiff, 23, McDowell, W. Va., brought here from a State road camp to testify in the trial of alleged Franklin County liquor conspirators, today told a story of T. Roosevelt Smith's paying $50 to C. C. Lee, indicted commonwealth's attorney, and Lee piloting him to the foot of Grassy Hill with a load of liquor to Federal agents at Camp 13, Leesburg.

Cundiff, the 161st Government witness, insisted that Lee piloted the car and that he saw Smith give Lee $50 of the $125 he had just paid Smith for 125 gallons of whisky.

Cundiff, who was convicted in Franklin County for automobile theft said that the events he narrated took place the day before Thanksgiving Day, 1932, and the defense read overt act No. 50, in the indictment, charging "that on or about the seventeenth day of November, 1932, that T. Roosevelt Smith paid the said Charles Carter Lee, then commonwealth's attorney for Franklin County, Va., $50 in Franklin County, Va." Cundiff said that he did not recall telling the date before the grand jury at Harrisonburg.

Couldn't Hear Talk.

Counsel for Lee stressed the fact that although he said he could not hear conversation between Smith and Lee, he did see the denomination of bills which he said changed hands.

Laughingly, Stephen D. Timberlake, jr., defense lawyer, asked if Lee was a pretty good pilot and the witness replied that he "didn't know how Lee would have behaved in a tight pinch."

For 23 days prosecution witnesses have followed each other to the stand to present testimony as to the manufacture, transportation and sale of Franklin County whiskey.

Yesterday witnesses described filling stations that had no oil and little gasoline in stock, but where whiskey deals were carried out.

Went to See Defendants.

The testimony came from Clarence Ferguson, 19, of Roanoke, himself a convicted liquor-car driver. He described a station where he worked at which grease had to be bought elsewhere when a customer wanted his car greased. The witness said that he had been to "see" David A. Nicholson, former member of the Legislature; T. Roosevelt Smith and Clifford Martin, all defendants, but refused to answer when counsel asked him what his business with them had been or what he had brought back from the visits.

Commenting on the youth's testimony, Judge Paul told Special Prosecutor Sterling Hutcheson "If he is just one more witness to testify as to hauling liquor you may as well pass it up." Hutcheson said that was the purpose of his questioning.

Last Survivor of Mosby's Rangers Describes Jackson's Rout of Union Men at Front Royal Northern Infantry Taken by Surprise 73 Years Ago Yesterday.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Front Royal, Va., May 23.—Thornton V. Leach, last survivor in Warren County of Mosby's Rangers, recounted the story of the battle of Front Royal today on the seventy-third anniversary of the opening fight of Stonewall Jackson's famous Valley campaign.

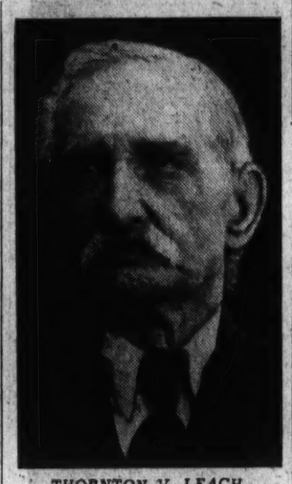
Mr. Leach, one of the county's leading citizens, did not participate in the battle, being only 15 when Jackson opened fire from a knoll on Col. John R. Kenly's First Maryland Infantry (Union), which occupied Front Royal. The knoll is now the site of Prospect Hill Cemetery, where lie many dead of the first Bull Run and other battles.

The former Mosby Ranger, active as a local magistrate until his retirement less than a year ago, has a vivid recollection of the events in which he figured. He recalled unerringly the local personages and topography of this vicinity in 1862.

Arrived on May 23.

"Stonewall Jackson arrived in Front Royal between 1 and 2 o'clock on May 23, 1862," said Mr. Leach. "He and his army had come down from Luray, following the Luray Grade road by way of Rileyville, Overall, Bentonville and Limeton (then known as Allens Crossing), as far as Asbury Church. Here he halted, as he did not wish to disturb the Union pickets, posted on the road about three miles south of the town.

"At Asbury Church occurred an incident which casts doubt upon the traditional story of Belle Boyd's meeting with Jackson," continued Mr. Leech. "Col. Isaac King, a prominent citizen who lived on the Browntown road (the Browntown road paralleled the Luray Grade), had gone to Asbury Church to see Jackson and his army pass. While Col. King was seated on a fence at Asbury Church, Jackson rode up and inquired for a guide to conduct his army to the Browntown road to avoid the Union pickets.



THORNTON V. LEACH, of Front Royal, 88, Company F, Forty-third Battalion, Mosby's Rangers, only survivor of Mosby's men in Warren County.

Col. King informed Jackson that there was a man in his command, Capt. Samuel J. Simpson, a native, who knew the country like a book and could give him all the information he required. Jackson immediately dispatched a courier to find Simpson, who reported promptly and led the army across to the Browntown road at a point about four miles from Front Royal.

Mr. Leach told how, "when Jackson approached the town, he planted a battery on the hill, now Prospect Hill Cemetery, and fired the first gun between 1:30 and 2 o'clock, which was the first intimation that the Union troops had of Jackson's presence." Capt. Simpson then conducted Jackson's artillery around the western hill of Front Royal, by a route concealed by woods, to a ridge on which Randolph-Macon Academy now stands, where the troops took position and opened fire on Kenly's Carson Hill battery, which was covering the retreat of the Union troops. Jackson pressed the fleeing Federals so hard that they did not have time to burn the bridges across the two forks of the Shenandoah River at Riverton.

"Jackson did not bring all of his cavalry into Front Royal," said Mr. Leach. "Gen. Turner Ashby, with the 7th Virginia Cavalry, was detached to attack two companies of Union infantry at Buckton, on the north fork of the Shenandoah River toward Strasburg, and, in this fight, lost two of his best officers, Capts. Sheetz and Fletcher. Meanwhile, Jackson pursued the Federals to Cedarville, 5 miles north of Front Royal, where Col. Kenly rallied his men, but, after a dreadful wound, was captured, with the bulk of his command. He surrendered his sword, which came into the possession of Allie Smith, of Front Royal, and was later presented to the Confederate Museum in Richmond."

Talked to Belle Boyd.

"As to Belle Boyd, I talked with her a number of times," Mr. Leach went on. "She was a nurse in the military hospitals erected by the Confederate Government here after the first battle of Manassas.

"A week after the battle of Front Royal, the Union General Shields brought his army through Manassas Gap to Front Royal, to cut off Jackson who had followed Banks to Harpers Ferry and driven him across the Potomac. Shields camped at Front Royal and had his pickets on the Wapping road near my home, and my mother got $10 or $15 in gold from them by selling various articles and produce."

The story of Belle Boyd's meeting with Jackson, to which she refers in her book, is confirmed by Gen. "Dick" Taylor who was with Jackson in Front Royal, but the meeting doubtless was at some other point along the march than the traditional one, and such information as she gave, Jackson already had possessed for several days.

Soil Erosion Work Planned by CCC

Camp to Be Constructed at Waynesboro Shortly.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., May 23.—A CCC camp will be established near Waynesboro to conduct a two-year campaign against soil erosion, according to tentative arrangements announced yesterday by Civilian Conservation Corps authorities, who accompanied members of the agricultural committee of the Waynesboro Chamber of Commerce to the proposed sites.

Maj. R. B. Ranson, subdistrict commander of the CCC, headed the group of visitors. They were shown about the proposed sites by D. C. Benedict, R. R. Arthur and Secretary R. J. D. Hoover, of the chamber of commerce. From nine sites visited, a site at Glen Furney, 5 miles from this place, was tentatively selected as a site for barracks.

The plan calls for establishment of a camp and development of work through Pennsylvania State College. The work is expected to cover approximately 30,000 acres, with a corps of about 200 men.

Former Official Faces Murder Trial Monday

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., May 23.—William V. Binkley, former city councilman, indicted last week for the murder of David Nichols, will go on trial Monday, State's Attorney Martin L. Ingram announced.

Binkley is charged with shooting Nichols to death in a tavern here several months ago.

Commission Award To Peyser Reversed

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., May 23. — The Court of Appeals today reversed a Baltimore County Circuit Court decision awarding judgment of $87,500 to Julius I. Peyser for commissions claimed by Peyser for procuring an offer from David Lawrence, Inc., of $3,000,000 for The Washington Post. The judgment has been awarded against Edward B. McLean, former publisher.

Pension Plea Leaves Peery Unconvinced

Action Sought to Give Virginia Aged Share in Federal Fund.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., May 23.—Gov. Peery said this afternoon that he remained "unconvinced" of the need of a special session of the Legislature despite new appeals from two sources.

A statement from State Senator Roland E. Chase, of Clintwood, released today by the Virginia Old Age Pension League, called on the Governor to convene the Legislature so that Virginians eligible for old-age benefits under the social security bill could receive payments beginning July 1, if requisite legislation was enacted.

Senator Chase called attention to the appropriation in the bill, passed by the House and pending in the Senate, that would become payable to States that immediately meet requirements by adopting companion measures.

If the Legislature does not meet until the regular time in January, 1936, the Senator said, prospective pensioners in Virginia would lose their benefits for at least six months.

Gov. Peery said Senator Chase was the first member of the Legislature to ask for a special session.

The Governor, back in his office after several days on a State park tour and in Washington, said he had not received a formal copy of a resolution adopted by the convention of the Virginia Federation of Labor urging a special session for the purpose of appropriating relief funds.

Hearing Set on Action To Oust Magistrate

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Danville, Va., May 23.—Judge Turner Clement, of Pittsylvania County Circuit Court, set next Thursday for the hearing of an ouster petition filed by Magistrate J. O. Faison against Charles R. Warren, trial magistrate of Pittsylvania County.

Warren, through counsel today filed a demurrer repudiating the 12 allegations in the petition. Judge Clement sustained the demurrer in three particulars, one that an officer may charge mileage when he is carrying a prisoner under arrest.

"The Unfinished Symphony," at the Belasco, Is Screen Operetta of Rare Merit

Schubert Music Sets Off Story Of His Romance

Is a British Production; New Exchange Opened; Amusement Notes.

Reprinted from yesterday's last edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"THE UNFINISHED SYMPHONY." Gaumont-British picturization of a romantic story of the life of Franz Schubert, with dialogue by Benn Levy and an appropriate musical score of Schubert compositions, featuring Helen Chandler, Martha Eggerth, and Hans Jaray, with Ronald Squire, Hermine Sterler, Esme Percy, Frieda Richard, Beryl Laverick and others. Directed by Willy Forst; musical adaptation by Willy Schmidt-Gentner, introducing the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, the Wiener Saengerknaben, the chorus of the State Opera, Vienna, and the Gypsy Band Gyula Howarth. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon.

Dramatically, a little more judicious in its employment of the "commodities of the theater" than the book of that perennially favorite operetta, "Blossom Time," and no less skillful in its utilization of the most famous of the Schubert melodies, "The Unfinished Symphony," is another feather in the increasingly beplumed cap of Gaumont British.

While this musicalized romance of the master composer, always depicted as one of Cupid's major casualties, probably comes no closer to the truth of the romantic elements in his life than a majority of its predecessors, it does preserve its thesis, however false, with a painstaking fidelity, a picturesque effectiveness and a cumulative interest that stamp it as an intelligent, painstaking and thoughtful contribution to the current vogue of screen operettas that put to useful purposes visual authenticity, serious narrative and splendid acting, singing and instrumentalism.

A Fictitious Premise.

There is nothing in history to suggest that Schubert failed to complete his B Minor Symphony because he died of a broken heart. He lived six years after its first movements were written and completed other symphonic works after its abandonment. But the seemingly fictitious reason for his failure to compose a finale to his most popular work affords a fine supposition upon which to string a series of events that comprise an admirable libretto.

Schubert in this picture is loved by two beautiful young women—one is the daughter of a lowly pawnbroker; the other, the Countess Esterhazy, who interrupts his first court appearance in the palace of Princess Kinsky by bursting into inordinate gales of laughter just as he is inspired to create a new G major movement as a finale to his unfinished work. He storms out of the palace, humiliated and enraged.

Repentant, Countess Caroline induces her father to engage the poverty-stricken young Schubert as music tutor. From this point on it would be better not to disclose the play's developments beyond saying that they represent some courage on the part of the producers in their indifference to the demands of a happy ending.

Principals Well Chosen.

Helen Chandler, the American star, and Marta Eggerth, a golden-voiced Hungarian blonde, who speaks English with scarcely a trace of accent, are the rivals for Schubert's affections. Hans Jaray, a sensitive, poised and appealing young actor, is perhaps a little more ingenuous than any other Schubert the stage or cinema has encountered. His work, however, may not be dismissed with any curt appraisal of "adequate;" it is at times commanding and always believable.

The other members of the cast are little known to American audiences, but Ronald Squire, Hermine Sterler and Esme Percy should be mentioned for the excellence of their Count Esterhazy, Princess Kinsky and Huettenbrenner.

The Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra—although never visible and at times jarringly out of place on that account—the Wiener Saengerknaben, that amazing chorus of boys' voices; the chorus of the State Opera in Vienna, and the czardas of the Gypsy Band Gyula Howarth add tremendously to the effectiveness of the Schubert songs that so thickly punctuate the action.

A travel reel in the "Magic Carpet" series, "One Summer Day," a natural color interpretation of the invisibly sung "Love's Old Sweet Song," and the Pathe News are the auxiliaries of a filmed operetta of the first rank.

So great is the advance interest in the coming of Paul Whiteman and his Orchestra to the stage of the Earle Theater tomorrow that announcement has been made from the Warner executive offices that Whiteman and his revue will be presented five times tomorrow and George Raft, Ben Bernie and "all the lads" in "Stolen Harmony" will be screened six times.

The theater will open at 9:45 tomorrow morning, with the first unreeling of the film at 10 and the first stage performance at 11:20.

It would be our tip to get there early. There is only one Whiteman, although before he lost 100 pounds he did look a little like three!

Harvesting the Flax Seed.

The newest addition to "Film Exchange Row," the Pomander Walk of the wiggle pictures, down in the vicinity of New Jersey avenue and K street, is the new Republic Film Exchange, presided over by the Flax Brothers and formally dedicated on Monday by a rout of magnificent proportions.

Sam and Jake Flax are two of the veteran independent film exchange operators of the National Capital. I have known them for 20 years and the earnest effort they have devoted to their enterprises during that period amply entitles them to the successful realization of a dream they have long entertained.

The new Republic Film Exchange was planned to serve the best purposes for which it is intended. It represents the last word in practical design and by its many modern improvements over the old-time makeshift exchanges facilitates the handling of films and minimizes the confusing details of distribution.

Club Paid Tribute.

In compliment to Sam and Jake Flax the Variety Club of Washington, made up of theatrical and motion-picture executives, operatives and affiliates, transferred their weekly luncheon to the new plant, where they were joined by practically all of the "show people" in the Washington territory. Something over 600 presented themeslves during the period of festivities.

The exchange was banked high with flowers sent in by congratulatory friends and well-wishers and telegrams of similar import were piled high all over the place.

Best wishes, boys, for a multiplication of your success during the coming years!

Division Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, Inc., always on the alert to make the graceful gesture, postaltelegraphs the suggestion that since we have to eat breakfast somewhere, it would be nice to start the day off by dabbling with a little matutinal toast and coffee—and, I hope, an egg—in company with Myrt and Marge, those congenial radio personalities who headline next week's bill on the stage at Loew's Fox next week, in the Variety Club rooms in the Willard Hotel tomorrow morning at 9.

That's a very elegant idea, Mr. Barron, but did you say 9? Ye gods, man! But then, of course, I could stop in on my way home.

Reunion in E Street.

There must have been quite a reunion backstage at the National when Walter Gilbert presented himself for rehearsals with Florence Reed in "The Shanghai Gesture."

With Miss Reed assuming the role of rehearsing guest star with the National Theater Players yesterday, Ethel Barrymore, of course, still is appearing on the stage of the same theater as this week's first of the famous actresses who will appear with the players as guests. When Walter Gilbert left the Players after two years as leading man, it was to assume the role of male lead with Miss Barrymore in the revival of "The School for Scandal," in which she was star. Later, he appeared with her in the same capacity in "Scarlet Sister Mary."

Walter Gilbert is an actor of thorough and wide experience in addition to other Broadway productions, he has played several seasons with the celebrated Elitch Gardens Stock Company, in Denver, and more than 250 weeks with others of the country's foremost stock organizations, including the St. James Players, in Boston; Albee Players, in Providence, and the Jessie Bonstelle Company, in Detroit. He also has appeared in several pictures for Paramount.

He will be welcomed back to E street by many old friends and, as we have intimated, already has been by Miss Barrymore.

June 2 and the National Theater have been set as the time and the place for the presentation of Phil Hayden's 1935 edition of his annual revue intime, this year bearing the title of "Doin' Fifth Avenue." The largest local cast ever assembled, totaling some 250 talented Washingtonians, has been assembled. Scenery and lighting effects are being brought down from New York and a special musical score has been composed for this performance. The program will include every type of dancing known to the stage.

Among the principals will be Margaret Scott, Kathryn Dengler, Betty Raymond, Mary Jane Zernia, Frank Padgett, Lorraine Imley, Robert Morris, Perc Erisman, Thelma Carey, Gladys Gibson, Phil Hayden's Band, Pearl Hauer's Orchestra and many others.

Follow-the-Crowd Note.

When Horace Greeley said, "Go West," he probably knew that sooner or later you'd want to be "Goin' to Town!" There's nowhere else to go to do that.

Mae heaven help us!

Screen Hero and Heinous Monster

He sails through his songs with the greatest of ease, the smiling young man pictured above at the left. He is, as goes without saying, Nelson Eddy, the brilliant young barytone, appearing opposite Jeanette MacDonald in "Naughty Marietta," which still runs merrily along through another week at Loew's Columbia Theater. At right, above, is Henry Hull, the distinguished actor of both stage and screen, who appears in the title role of "Werewolf of London," the new picture opening at RKO-Keith's tomorrow.

Miss Barrymore Will Return to Capital June 3

By Nelson B. Bell.

Ethel Barrymore, one of the most brilliant and most distinguished actresses of the American theater, will not retire from the stage with the close of her present engagement as guest star with the National Theater Players on Saturday night, as has been so persistently published since her arrival here last week.

Having attracted standing-room houses yesterday afternoon and last night, after the most notable first night in the 11 years' history of the National Players on Monday, Miss Barrymore's current engagement in the revival of W. Somerset Maugham's "The Constant Wife"—a play in which she first appeared in 1927—has developed into a sensational success.

So sensational a success that Miss Barrymore agreed last night to return to the National the week of June 3 in a revival of "Declasse."

She first appeared in the role of Lady Helen Haden in this Zoe Akins drama in 1919 and toured in the play through 1920 and 1921.

It proved the most profitable box-office atttraction of all her modern plays.

Inspired by yesterday's demonstration of affection and appreciation on the part of Washington audiences, Miss Barrymore last night readily granted Manager Stephen E. Cochran's request that she return week after next in this play with which her name is so indelibly associated.

So great were the crowds around the National stage entrance after the matinee yesterday that police were required to clear a lane through which Miss Barrymore might reach her car.

Florence Reed Adds Prestige As Stage Star

Will Vie With Whiteman, West, Hull and Others in Rich Show Week.

Florence Reed, second in the newly inaugurated succession of guest stars, will appear in her famous success, "The Shanghai Gesture," as fifth attraction of the current spring and summer season of the National Theater Players. The engagement, limited to a single week, will begin tomorrow night.

To make the occasion doubly interesting to local theatergoers, Manager Stephen E. Cochran announces the acquisition of Walter Gilbert for Miss Reed's leading man in this notable "little season" production. In addition, the complete roster of the Players will be utilized in this John Colton melodrama in four acts.

Florence Reed's last appearance on the stage in Washington was in the role of Christine in Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra." Miss Reed has appeared in the role of Mother Goddam more than 1,000 times since its premiere in the Martin Beck Theater, New York, the night of February 1, 1926.

Mae West, the American cinema's high priestess of quips and curves, will be seen on the screen of Loew's Palace for the week, beginning with a special midnight preview of "Goin' to Town" tonight at 12:01 a. m. In this rousing and, at times, rowdy melodrama of the wild and woolly West, the smart hotels and race tracks of the Argentine and swagger Southampton, Long Island, Miss West is supported by a noteworthy cast, headed by four leading men—Paul Cavanagh, Fred Kohler, Grant Withers and Ivan Lebedeff. Tito Coral, Monroe Owsley, Gilbert Emery and Marjorie Gateson round out the ensemble of principals. Short-reel subjects and new newsreel will augment the feature.

• • • •

An unusual assemblage of attractions is announced for the week beginning tomorrow at the Earle Theater. The foremost screen offering will be "Stolen Harmony," costarring George Raft and the Old Maestro, Ben Bernie, "and all the lads." On the stage, in living opposition to the Bernie screen images, will be Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra and supporting entertainers. It will be an odd experience to encounter both the "King of Jazz" and the "Old Maestro" on the same bill. Supporting Raft and the band boys in "Stolen Harmony" will be Grace Bradley, Irias Adrian, Paul Gerritts and Lloyd Nolan. Universal News, with Graham McNamee, and orchestral prelude by Freddy Clark will complete the program.

• • • •

Half man and half wolf! That is the eerie basis of the thrills that are said to abound in "The Werewolf of London," the new horror picture opening at RKO-Keith's Theater tomorrow. Henry Hull, last seen on the same screen in Dickens' "Great Expectations," appears in the totle role, with Warner Oland, Valerie Hobson, Lester Matthews and Spring Byington leading the supporting ensemble. The story is based upon the legend of the half man-half wolf that becomes a vicious killer during the full of the moon each month. Short sound subjects and Pathe News will supplement the major attraction.

• • • •

Paul Lukas, Madge Evans, May Robson and Little David Jack Holt are cast in the principal roles of "The Age of Indiscretion," which comes to the screen of Loew's Fox Theater as chief film feature for the new week, beginning tomorrow. The stage bill will be headed by those favorites of stage and radio audiences, Myrt and Marge, supported by Vinton Heyworth, of Washington, and the other supporting characters of their popular broadcasts. Jackson, Irving and Reeve, the team of Sammy Lewis and Patti Moore and the Don Costello Revue are the other participants in the vaudeville program. Among those in important roles in the picture are Helen Vinson, Ralph Forbes, Catherine Doucet, Beryl Mercer and "Flush," the spaniel of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

• • • •

It will be interesting to observe with what enthusiasm—or lack of it—that first of the new cycle of musical films, "Forty-Second Street," which is being brought back to the screen of Warner's Metropolitan Theater for a return engagement after more than two years, will be greeted. The revived run will begin tomorrow morning. In the cast are Warner Baxter, Bebe Daniels, Dick Powell, Ruby Keeler, Ginger Rogers, Una Merkel, Ned Sparks and scores of others. It was the hit of its season. A new "See America First" release and full 15-minute newsreel will round out the bill. "Forty-Second Street" was the feature of President Roosevelt's inauguration week.

• • • •

Maintaining its rank as perhaps the finest screen operetta ever filmed, "Naughty Marietta," with Jeannette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, will continue a second week at Loew's Columbia, beginning tomorrow, its third on F street. All of the Victor Herbert melody gems are utilized in the beautifully sung score of this masterpiece. The auxiliary attractions also will be continued.

• • • •

Beginning with the customary Sunday matinee performance, Col. James J. Lake will offer the "Knick Knacks" company of burlesquers on the stage of his Gayety Theater. The troupe is headed by that dynamic and colorful young woman, Georgia Sothern, one of the incinerating ingenues of show business. The comedy will be intrusted to Billy Hagan, of "cheese and crackers" fame. These two will be supported by a cast of new faces and a fast-stepping chorus.

• • • •

The opening of Crystal Pool, scheduled for Saturday noon of this week, will place Glen Echo in high gear as the most enticing amusement park in the vicinity of the National Capital. The pool is one of the most completely and handsomely appointed in the country and will be presided over by practically the same staff as last season, thus insuring a continuance of the high plane upon which it always has been operated. The other 50-odd amusement devices will, of course, continue to please thousands, as heretofore.

Pierce Hall

"THE GHOST TRAIN." The Pierce Hall Players present the mystery drama in three acts by Arnold Ridley, staged under the direction of George Farrington. Settings designed and executed by Mary Foley Benson, assisted by Jessie Harden. Sound effects by K. Hilding Bell and Kenn Romney. At Pierce Hall, May 22 and 23. Reviewed Wednesday evening by W. A. Whitney.

The fire-belching, bell-ringing, brake-screeching phantom flier again disrupted the rural calm of Clear Vale Junction last evening as the Pierce Hall Players reenacted Arnold Ridley's "The Ghost Train," replete with thrills, comedy and drama.

The players were well cast and read their lines with precision. The general aspect of the performance, however, was a bit spotty. Despite the slightly staccato performances, there was no lessening of the dramatic tension inherent in the Ridley script.

No single role stands out in its entirety, although every player at sometime during the course of the action was responsible for some excellent bit of acting. There should be mentioned Elinor Cox Karsten, as Miss Bourne, Yerby Pannill, as Julia Price; Frank Jamison, as station master, and Howard Wentworth, as Teddie Deakin.

Special mention should be made of the excellent sound effects. Mary Foley Benson's setting was excellent.

The play, which can be unreservedly recommended, will be repeated tonight at 8:30.

Auto Passenger Freed In Fatal Crash Case

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westminster, Md., May 23.—Tried before a jury in the Carroll County Circuit Court here yesterday, Leon Swartz, of Northumberland County, Pa., was acquitted of a charge of manslaughter in the death of John L. Nicholson, of New Oxford, Pa., in an automobile accident January 12.

Nicholson was killed near the Pennsylvania State line when a truck driven by Chester E. Reigle, of Northumberland, was in collision with Nicholson's auto. At a subsequent hearing before the local police magistrate, Reigle, being tried on a charge of reckless driving, testified he lost control when Swartz, who was riding with him, turned the ignition switch, automatically locking the steering wheel.

By the Associated Press.

ST. ANNES-ON-THE-SEA, England, May 23.—The American menace in the British amateur golf championship was diminished in manpower in today's gale-swept fourth and fifth rounds, leaving William Lawson Little, jr., of San Francisco, the title holder, and Robert Sweeney, formerly of New York, to carry the Stars and Stripes into tomorrow's quarter-finals against six British rivals.

A pair of invaders from the United States—Richard M. (Dick) Chapman and Dan R. Topping, both of Greenwich, Conn.—survived the morning session, but went down to defeat in the afternoon and joined Capt. A. Webster-Bullock, of Monterey, Calif., who was blasted out of the running in the fourth round.

Little, who has no liking for sweeping breezes and lightning-fast greens, disposed of a pair of local favorites, making H. G. McCallum, of Troon, Scotland, crack on the back nine and then beating out the tenacious little James S. Black on the home green in the afternoon.

Although in neither round did he shoot anything like the magnificent golf which gained him the crown at Prestwick a year ago, Little nevertheless had what it took when the chips were on the table and nobody tonight was willing to wager he'll be stopped short of the 36-hole final on Saturday.

A stiff wind, barren fairways and suicidal, slippery greens have taken the same toll of his game as others but it looks like the burly Californian still has any amateur's number in the clutch. In both matches today his opponents, who were almost solidly backed by rampaging galleries numbering 5,000, held him even going out along the railroad tracks, but his extra distance off the tees finally got them pressing on the crucial holes and wrapped them up in disaster.

In his match against McCallum, who carried Johnny Goodman an extra hole in the 1934 tournament, Little twice belted drives that covered more than 330 yards. His tee shot landed in the rough hole high on the 337-yard tenth, which he followed up with a 12-foot putt for a birdie 3, and three holes later he poled one 335 yards to the front of the thirteenth green, although he flubbed his approach and lost the hole, to go 1 down.

Wins Three Out of Four.

After this he settled down and won three of the next four holes to close out McCallum on the seventeenth green with a 2 and 1 victory.

Against Black in the afternoon Little made a pair of magnificent recoveries from traps to save holes which appeared lost and twice rolled in long putts—one from 40 feet and another from 20—although both were only for halves. He got an attack of the jitters and wobbled badly after getting Black dormied 3. On the sixteenth for instance, he drove into a bunker and his first swing completely missed the ball.

Penned in on the eighteenth green by a partisan crowd which had been wildly cheering the Scot hoping for an upset, Little calmly made his ball disappear from 15 feet for a birdie 3 to win 2 up and end the discussion.

May Meet Sweeney.

There's a strong possibility that the champion and Sweeney, who was born in America but has lived with the British branch of his banking family for many years, will meet in the semifinals tomorrow afternoon. Before that can take

Max Baer Facing Fight Injunction

Texas Oil Man to Take Action in New York.

By the Associated Press.

Tyler, Tex., May 23.—J. Curtiss Sanford, Tyler oil man who says he holds a contract with Max Baer for an exhibition bout at Birmingham, Ala., before his championship bout with Jim Braddock in New York June 13, said today he would file an application for injunction in New York Federal Court to halt Maxie's titular fight.

Sanford said he would leave for New York immediately.

The oil man recently backed Baer in an exhibition at Dallas. He said the Birmingham agreement called for no particular date.

G. W. Accused Of Athletic 'Raiding'

Missouri Coach Asserts Boys Are Lured by Jobs and Money.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 23.—Lantern-jawed Don Faurot, Missouri's young football revivalist, today charged Texas, Northwestern and George Washington universities and Centenary College with raiding his home State for athletic talent.

Faurot declared those four schools specifically and others unnamed have lured Missouri high school heroes away with scholarships, jobs and other financial inducements.

"I'm sick and tired of it," said the successor to Frank Carideo, whose Tiger football teams in three years won two, tied two and lost 22 games. "It isn't the Big Six schools that are guilty—mostly those in the South. I hope Missouri alumni will do something about it."

Flagrant Offenders.

Faurot declared Centenary, Texas and George Washington were flagrant offenders, and added that a Missouri high school gridiron star had received a scholarship from Northwestern.

"I understand that Texas University has guaranteed summer jobs to net $300 to any boy who goes to that school recommended by Kansas City High School coaches," Faurot said, "and promises, in addition, scholarships which will take care of most of their expenses while they attend that institution.

Week's Tryout.

"Centenary takes Missouri boys to Shreveport for a week's tryout in spring football practice. If they make good, offers are forthcoming—if not, they are forgotten. George Washington has lured away a lot of Missouri boys with scholarships and other financial inducements."

Although he excepted other Big Six schools in his general indictment, he pointed out Missouri's weakness in track and field athletics was due to losses of such home State boys as Ed Hall, former conference sprint champion, who went to the University of Kansas from Fulton, Mo., a neighboring town; Jacobsen, sprinter now attending the University of Nebraska, and Jimmy Owens, of Maplewood, now sprinting for the University of Iowa.

Braddock, Gunning for Baer, 'Fights' Toughest Spar Mates

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

EVANS LOCH SHELDRAKE COUNTRY CLUB, N. Y., May 23.—And the last stop on the swing of the great Sullivan County Kosher Kountry Klubs brings us to another enormous vacation plant where the challenger for the heavyweight championship, Master James J. Bradock, is rehearsing for his brawl with Maxie Baer, and when I say rehearsing, in this instance, I mean just that.

For it is my duty to report that James J. has the roughest crew of spar-boys ever assembled at any heavyweight's training camp, and from 4 to 4:45 p. m. every day he amuses himself by prize fighting with them. And when I say prize fighting, that is also what I mean. Because this business that goes on by the bonnie banks of Loch Sheldrake can by no stretch of the imagination be called sporting. It is fighting pure and simple.

From what I observed this afternoon I would judge that Braddock was not training for a boxing exhibition, but rather for something rough, brutal and vulgar. I hope that that will please Mr. Baer.

It is really the screwiest training camp you ever saw. Braddock has four big, strong guys, all of whom can fight, and he stays in there for six rounds and fights them while Joe Gould, his manager, sits back on his haunches and rocks with glee. "Is that something * * * ? Is that a fight? Look at 'em fighting * * *" says Gould while blows thud off the skulls of challenger and hired hands alike. "Look, now is that something, or isn't it? Are HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 23.—Wise Pete, so inconspicuous a member of the horse colony here that his name was announced as "Miss Pete" the first time he appeared in the entries, clinched the sprinting honors to date by equaling the track record for 5 furlongs, running the abbreviated route in 0.59. Yesterday, Wise Pete made a show of his field and today his performance was equally as impressive.

Flying the colors of Mrs. M. R. Waugh, of Brady, Va., Wise Pete made good for his backers among the crowd of 6,000 by having a two-length advantage over Bernard Bond's Small Change in the dash for the finish line. Best Butter, owned by H. J. McArthey, jr., was third in the field of eight starters.

Johnson Releases Myatt; Kamm Is Ordered Home

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, May 23. — Glenn Myatt, veteran catcher of the Cleveland Indians, was given his unconditional release today by Manager Walter Johnson. Willie Kamm, third sacker, was sent back to Cleveland with instructions to report to the club's officials.

Myatt started the season as the regular Cleveland catcher, but for the past week Pytlak has been doing all the work behind the bat. The veteran receiver had been with the club since 1923, going to Cleveland from the Athletics, with whom he spent two years.

Kamm joined the Indians in 1931 after spending eight years with the Chicago Americans. He came to the big leagues from San Francisco in 1923 at a price of $100,000, at that time one of the highest amounts ever paid a minor league club for a single player.

Johnson refused to elaborate his statement that Kamm "has been sent back."

BOSTON, May 23.—The rallying Detroit Tigers, headed by husky Hank Greenberg, slammed their way past the Red Sox into the American League's first division today with a 5-to-3 victory in the series opener.

It was the fifth straight triumph for the 1934 league champions, who dropped clear to the cellar early this spring, and put them a half game ahead of Boston. It also served to bring Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe his third mound victory against as many defeats, although

F STREET AT 10TH

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich

IRISHMEN who have bemoaned the gradual displacement of Celtic champions of the prize ring by the surge to the top of the Jews and the Italians, notably, can take heart from a perusal of the American League baseball rosters, which reveal, that 89 of the 200 managers, coaches and players in the league are of Irish extraction.

POVICH.

I have it on the authority of Henry L. Edwards, official purveyor of information and publicity for the American League, that the Irish outnumber all other nationalities in the league. Twenty-four of the Irish American Leaguers are, moreover, Irish on both maternal and paternal sides, according to Edwards.

Fifty-two o fthe league's players are of English descent, 20 of them full-fledged Englishmen. There are 50 Germans in the league and 51 Scotchmen, of whom only two are full-blooded—Bruce Campbell, of the Indians, and George Selkirk, of the Yankees.

Only four among the list of 200 were born abroad. Jimmy Austin, veteran coach of the White Sox, first saw the light of day in Wales, and Arndt Jorgens, Yankee catcher, was born in Norway. George Selkirk was an immigrant from Canada, and Mel Almada, Boston outfielder, came to the United States with his parents from Mexico.

THE Yankees have a corner on all the Lithuanians in the league—both of 'em. Johnny Broaca and Vito Tamulis, the New York club's two young pitchers, are the lone representatives of their race. The Yankees also boast a third of the six Italians in the league—Infielders Tony Lazzeri and Frank Crosetti. The Italians run to infielders. Oscar Melillo is with the Browns and Zeke Bonura is with the White Sox. In Henry Coppola, the Nats boast half the Italian pitchers in the league. Joe Cascarella, of the A's, is the other.

Rube Walberg, of the Red Sox, is the lone Swede in the league, and Hungary finds its lone representative in Julius Solters, Red Sox outfielder. Behemia checks in with three players and Cleveland has them exclusively—Pitcher Mel Harder, Outfielder Joe Vosmik, and First Baseman Hal Trosky. Vosmik is the only full-blooded Bohemian specimen of the troi.

Joe Kuhel, the Nats' first baseman, is the league's only Slovenian, but three have Danish blood in their veins—George Pipgras and Ellsworth Dahlgren, of the Red Sox, and Walter Brown, of the Yankees. There are two with a Swiss strain—Manager Bucky Harris, of the Nats, and Ralph Winegarner, Cleveland pitcher. Poland is represented by Al Simmons, of the White Sox; Frank Pytlak, of the Indians; Joe Glenn, of the Yankees, and Al Bejma, of the Browns.

An even half-dozen of the league's members are Hollanders, or partially so. They are Roger Cramer, of the Athletics; Bill Knickerbocker and Walter Johnson, of the Indians; Russ Van Atta and Jimmy DeShong, of the Yankees, and Jake Powell, of the Nats. Edwards thus reveals the popular misconception under which the Nation's fandom labored for years—the appelation of Walter Johnson as a Swede.

SEVEN American Leaguers have a trace of Indian blood—the brothers, Roy Johnson, of the Red Sox, and Bob Johnson, of the A's; Elon Hogsett and Leon Goslin, of the Tigers; John Whitehead, of the White Sox; Ben Chapman, of the Yanks, and Sammy Hale, of the Indians.

A half-dozen of the players are of Jewish persuasion, Edwards reveals. They are Moe Berg and Al Schacht, of the Red Sox; Milton Galatzer, of the Indians; Hank Greenberg, of the Tigers, and Freddie Sington and Buddy Myer, of the Nats, the last-named being half German.

Six boast French blood: Herold Ruel, of the White Sox; Willis Hudlin, of the Indians; Vic Sorrell, of the Tigers; Debs Garms and Charles Moss, of the Browns, and Leon Pettit, of the Nats. Lefty Gomez, of the Yankees, is half Spanish, half Irish.

Hornsby to Continue As Browns' Manager

New York, May 23 (U.P.).—Rogers Hornsby will continue as manager of the St. Louis Browns throughout the 1935 baseball season and probably after that, despite the collapse of his supposedly "puncture proof" club, President Louis B. Von Weise announced today.

After a two-hour conference with Hornsby, President Von Weise emphatically spiked rumors that the club was considering a change in pilots. He assured the United Press that neither he nor the Philip de Catsby Ball family blamed the "Rajah" for the club's disheartening slump.

Zaharias Winner Over Emil Dusek

In the semifinal, Walter Podolak won over PaPt McKay in 25½ minutes, using a crotch hold and body slam.

Irish Jack Donovan had no trouble in defeating Scotty Dawkins, taking but 16 minutes to do the job by the flying-tackle route.

Workman Rides Belmont Triple, Including Miss Merriment

4-Year-Old Filly Easy Winner

4-1 Shot Beats Bonanza by Three Lengths; Quel Jeu 3d.

By the Associated Press.

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., May 23. Victor Emanuel's Miss Merriment, returning from an unsuccessful invasion of Rockingham Park, was made an added starter in the twenty-first running of the Hollis, a claiming stake here today, and carried 125 pounds to a brilliant victory over a large and high-class field of platers. The 4-year-old daughter of High Time—Nobility covered 6 furlongs of the Widener straightaway in 1:10 4-5, to register by three lengths. Her victory was worth $3,700 to her owner.

William Ziegler, jr.'s, Bonanza nosed out the Arden Farms' Quel Jeu for the place, with E. R. Bradley's Bit of Sorrow fourth in the field of 13. Miss Merriment, coupled with G. H. Bostwick's Allen Z., paid 4 to 1.

Workman Rides Triple.

Sonny Workman, the Washington jockey, was the saddle star of the day. His ride was an important factor in Miss Merriment's victory and he also piloted two other winners, or three in all—half the program. In the fourth race he won with C. V. Whitney's Savings, a 9-to-10 favorite. In the last race of the day he drove Hunterdon, a 20-to-1 shot, to a length and a half victory.

In the feature race Quel Jeu was caught in close quarters by Allen Z. and Deduce in the first quarter mile. He gamely made up ground when clear and just missed overtaking Bonanza for the runner-up position.

Workman broke Miss Merriment well and the filly ran to the front in a few strides. She put Albuquerque away in the first quarter and drew into a wide advantage without being fully extended. Bonanza raced forwardly from the break, but was tiring at the end. Black Gift broke from the outside. He reached a good position only to fade rapidly in the final drive.

Open Range and Main Chance, both saddled by G. E. Phillips, were installed favorites. The former broke fast and dropped right out of it, while Maine Chance never was a factor.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VER EIGHT, $6.30, $3.30, $2.80; PROSECUTOR, $4.10, $3.20; FIRE REEL, $3.60.

VER EIGHT, prominent all the way, wore down FLAG BEARER for command after leaving the back stretch and, drawing clear, had to be placed under punishment, and was doing his utmost to hold PROSECUTOR safe. The latter, away fast, was steadied along in pursuit of the pace, came to the outside of the leader in the stretch, FIRE REEL, unable to keep pace early, finished with good energy. TIGHT WAD was outrun early. FLAG BEARER had good early speed, but faltered in the last five-sixteenths.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:54. Off at 3:59. Winner, J. U. Two-dollar mutuels paid—STAROGAN, $4.10, $3.20, $2.80; EUCLID, $17.80, $7.10; IMMUNE, $3.30.

STAROGAN, permitted to settle into her best stride and slightly reserved until STAROGAN, permitted to settle into her best stride and slightly reserved until straightening out in the stretch, and was never seriously threatened. EUCLID improved his position steadily, saved ground at the head of the stretch, and closed going gamely. IMMUNE responded gamely to urging and was going strongly on the outside through the last furlong. DE VALERA made up ground. THE BOUNCER ran well placed, but tired. DOVE OF PEACE went well for the first half-mile, tiring thereafter.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 3:27. Off at 3:35½. Winner, H. T. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANDY MAID, $10.30, $6.70, $5.40; BLACK MAIL, $16.50, $7.60; LITTLE ARGO, $4.20.

CANDY MAID, a rapid beginner, took command in the first few strides, drew clear in the opening furlong, gaining advantage steadily until the last three-sixteenths and, hard ridden, was never in danger. BLACK MAIL, unable to keep pace early, came with a rush through the closing sixteenth. LITTLE ARGO closed ground through the stretch. CIVIL WAR ran well placed early and was hard ridden. LOVITO was never prominent.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:08. Off at 4:10. Winner, A. G. Vanderbilt's b. f. (3), by St. James—Donach. Trained by J. H. Stouler. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:47 3-5, 1:13 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GLYNDON BELLE, $7.50, $4.60, $3.60; CANDIMATE, $4.80, $4.10; BULL MARKET, $6.60.

GLYNDON BELLE, in close attendance of the pace while racing in hand, moved up on the inside to take command when PARADUN began bearing out and held sway to the end. CANDIMATE, forwardly placed all the way, continued with good energy through the stretch run. BULL MARKET saved ground in the stretch and finished going gamely. WIZARD never could reach the leaders, though closing some ground in the last five-sixteenths. PARADUN displayed good speed.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. The Exeter Purse. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:40. Off at 4:42. Winner, Goldenrod Stable's b. h. (4), by Sir Galahad III—Nimos. Trained by W. R. Flemming. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:46 2-5, 1:12 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GENTLE KNIGHT, $8.10, $3.00, $2.80; POLYDORUS, $2.90, $2.50; CUTIE FACE, $3.40.

GENTLE KNIGHT, permitted to settle into his stride and following in pursuit of the pace, moved up steadily on the inside nearing the far turn, swung to the outside and, taking command, had enough in reserve to hold POLYDORUS safe. The latter was forced to circle the field when making his effort, responded gamely when straightened out for the run to the finish, and was slowly catching the winner at the end. CUTIE FACE was in the forefront throughout. WISE ANNE was much used in racing with CRAZY JANE and faltered. CRAZY JANE, hustled to the front, weakened in the closing quarter-mile. The others were never prominent.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:12. Off at 5:12½. Winner, J. U. Gratton's ch. g. (3), by Macaw—Maskelined. Trained by W. Irvine. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47, 1:12 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPIXI, $6.20, $3.30, $2.40; ERIN LAD, $6.80, $3.90; BARCAROLLE, $2.60.

SPIXI, kept within striking distance of the pace, came to the outside of ERIN LAD in the stretch and drew out steadily in the last sixteenth. ERIN LAD displayed good speed in pacemaking, though unable to keep pace with the winner when challenged. BARCAROLLE, unable to keep up in the first half-mile, was brought to the outside and, while closing some ground, never could reach the leading horses. TRULY YOURS moved up steadily, saved ground in the stretch, but faltered in the closing strides. FAKE faltered after displaying early speed. HOWS CHANCES was never prominent.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 5:41. Off at 5:43½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RAYCART, $4.20, $2.90, $2.60; THE POTTER, $5.40, $3.70; GOLDPIN, $6.60.

RAYCART followed the early pace cut out by THE POTTER, moved up midway of the far turn, went to the front when reaching the stretch, and held his position safe to the end. THE POTTER went to the front in the run to the first turn, drew into a good lead and continued willingly to the end. GOLDPIN outrun for the first half-mile, came willingly in the last three furlongs. FAIR VERBENA, well up, was unable to improve her position under urging. DESERT SANDS weakened after racing the first half-mile.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 6:13. Off at 6:18. Winner, Miss A. Doris' b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CONCHITA, $6.40, $3.80, $3.30; WAR TIDE, $3.80, $3.50; MARS PALATINE, $10.00.

CONCHITA drew clear in the run to the first turn was rated along in front and, drawing into a long lead, was never threatened. WAR TIDE, unruly at the post, moved up steadily leaving the back stretch, but was unable to get within striking distance of the winner. MARS PALATINE improved his position and closed willingly in the last five-sixteenths. BUNGALOW was unable to reach the leaders. JUDGE PEAK, well placed early, tired. STRETCH CALL displayed good speed. MATHIAS ran far back all the way. CHEROKEE SAL had early speed, but stopped badly.

Gentle Knight Rockingham Winner

ROCKINGHAM RACE TRACK, Salem, N. H., May 23.—Ol' Bill Flemming, the big trotting-horse man from Brockton, Mass., showed the trainers of running horses once again exactly how it should be done today when his 4-year-old bay horse, Gentle Knight, streaked across the finish line first in the feature race at Rockingham Park.

Just a week ago today Gentle Knight, then carrying only 99 pounds, beat Polydorus by 2½ lengths to win. Today, Secretary Jim Monroe packed 16 extra pounds on Gentle Knight and took 4 off Polydorous, which encouraged the customers to make Polydorous an even-money choice to win.

But Gentle Knight lugged the mail around the 6-furlong route with ease and aplomb. He allowed Wise Anne, Cutie Face and Crazy Jane to set the early pace, but stepped out on the back stretch and led by two lengths as they hit the home stretch.

Polydorus was off slow, but came fast on the outside, the cerise colors of Jockey Johnny Longden flashing in the sun. His rush carried him into second place, but Gentle Knight, with Jockey F. Faust giving him an excellent ride, had enough left to win by a neck.

Pitt Trims Dr. Hayes on 19th to Reach Manor Semifinals

Yoder Downs Nolan and Greene

By Dave Herman.

ON the brink of defeat, Harry Pitt, veteran Manor golfer and defending champion, squeezed through with a 19-hole victory over Dr. William F. Hayes, unattached star, yesterday to enter the semifinals of the Manor Invitation Golf Tournament.

After battling tooth and nail for 18 holes with Hayes, Champion Pitt played a great chip on the extra hole for a par 4 to eclipse Hayes' 5 and win the match.

This morning at 10 o'clock Pitt will oppose Levi Yoder, of Indian Spring, who eliminated M. Parker Nolan, of Congressional, 4 and 3, and sprang a surprise in the afternoon by putting out the favorite, Hickman Greene, of Manor, 2 and 1.

Webb Faces Miller.

The other semifinal match will find Tommy Webb, jr., Washington Golf and Country Club's long-swatting ace, meeting John R. Miller, of Beaver Dam, the one-time "District champion of club champions."

Back in form, hitting the ball for tremendous distances and putting skillfully, Webb forced Craig McKee, of Indian Spring, medalist, out of the picture with an easy 5 and 4 victory. In his second match Webb warded off a four-hole rally to eliminate a fellow club companion, Frank Roesch, 2 and 1.

Miller, product of the municipal links, removed J. E. (Pat) Flaherty, unattached player, 3 and 2, and created something of a furor by defeating Volney Burnett, Indian Spring ace, 1 up on the nineteenth hole.

Ding-Dong Battle.

The Burnett-Miller match was a ding-dong affair, neither golfer holding more than a 1-up lead at any stage. Burnett took the seventeenth with a par 3 to go 1 up, and Miller forced the issue into an overtime battle by carving out a par 4 and a win on the eighteenth. On the extra hole, Miller knocked his third 4 feet from the pin for a conceded par 4, as Burnett, short in 3, missed his putt and took a 6.

An ancient feud was resumed when Pitt toppled Miller B. Stevinson, 5 and 4, in his inaugural match. Pitt was up most of the way.

Second Flight.

Russ Hollebaugh (Kenwood) defeated G. F Stringer (Beaver Dam), 4 and 3; Ralph Gibson (Manor) defeated W. W. Jones (Congressional), 1 up; Andy Gwecker (unattached) defeated George Grier (Maryland University) by default; Jack Tucker (unattached) defeated Luther C. Steward, jr. (Columbia), 1 up 19 holes; R. King (Maryland University) defeated E. A. Merkle (Indian Spring), 1 up; Albert R. Mackenzie (Columbia) defeated Bobby Brownell (Manor), 5 and 3; J. W. Harvey, jr. (Manor) defeated Dr. C. E. Buck (Washington), 4 and 3; Jack McCarron (Congressional) defeated Harry Peacock (Indian Spring), 1 up.

Second round—Gibson defeated Hollenbaugh, 2 and 1; Tucker defeated Oliveri, 1 up 19 holes; Mackenzie defeated King, 8 and 6; Harvey defeated McCarron, 5 and 4.

Third Flight.

E. Johnson (Beaver Dam) defeated Ed Carver (Manor), 6 and 5; H. L. Lacey (Manor) defeated Tom Doerer, jr. (unattached), 4 and 2; Bob Marks (unattached) defeated O. W. 10 Will Vie Today In Illinois Derby

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 23.—A field of ten thoroughbreds, with Roman Soldier as the favorite, was named today for the $10,000 added Illinois Derby, first of Chicago's big stakes and the closing feature at the Aurora track, which will be run tomorrow.

E. R. Bradley's crack filly, Black Helen, regarded as a certain starter right up to closing time, was not named.

Roman Soldier was held at 7 to 5, with Mrs. Silas B. Mason's Sun Portland the second choice at 8 to 5. The rest of the prospective field included Tearout, Prince Splendor, San Cloud, McCarthy, Dark Woman, Whiskolo, Blue Armor and the famous Joseph J. G.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NAHALLAC, $5.80, $3.10, $2.50; HERSELF, $2.80, $2.50; EASTER LAD, $2.60.

NAHALLAC, much the best, took command at the break, ran wide at the stretch turn and just lasted to win. HERSELF, in trouble early, closed with a rush when clear. EASTER LAD broke slowly, was forced wide at the far turn, but tired right at end. TIME WINNER, used up forcing the pace, quit in the stretch.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place, same. Went to post at 3:28. Off at 3:29. Winner, A. L. Redan's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—STOOL PIGEON, $6.80, $3.50, $3.00; GIRDLES, $3.60, $2.80; TRAPSHOOTER, $5.10.

STOOL PIGEON outclassed his field. Took command and won as his rider pleased. GIRDLES had no excuse. TRAPSHOOTER was next best. SWINLANE should improve off this effort.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $300. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:57. Off at 3:57½. Winner, Mrs. M. R. Waugh's b. r. or blk. c. (3), by Wise Counsellor—Miss Crestwood. Trained by E. H. Gaines. Value to winner, $200; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:23 0:48 4-5, 0:59 (equals track record).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AELLA, $7.60, $4.50, $2.90; GLEE MAIDEN, $8.90, $4.00; BLACK DREAMS, $2.50.

AELLA took command with a rush and, saving ground thereafter, just lasted to win. GLEE MAIDEN, off slowly, was forced wide entering back stretch, closed with a rush in stretch, and just missed. BLACK DREAMS, taken the overland route throughout, was next best. The others had scant chance.

SIXTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-old maidens. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:54. Off at 5:00. Winner, Mrs. M. R. Waugh's b. f. (3), by Tournament II—Edith Caroline. Trained by E. H. Gaines. Value to winner, $200; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:50, 1:17 3-5, 1:23 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CARTOUR, $6.40, $3.70, $2.50; OUR TIME, $4.10, $2.60; BRIGHT GIRL, $2.60.

CARTOUR, off slowly, was forced wide on the first two turns, took command when BRIGHT GIRL went to her knees leaving the back stretch, and just lasted to win. OUR TIME, well up throughout, went wide turning for home and was catching the winner at every stride. BRIGHT GIRL stumbled while leading and lost her saddle. Jockey Tryon managed to finish the race, although his leg was injured when his mount struck the fence. She also suffered an injured lee. SIR CHAIN closed gamely from a slow beginning.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:27. Off at 5:28. Winner, Mrs. A. place, however, Little must account for George L. Q. Henriques, and Sweeney must get past Alex Walker in the round of eight in the morning.

Henriques is a 42-year-old stock broker and a 3-handicap player of the home club. His conquests of Leonard Crawley, Harvey W. Shaffer, of New York, Leslie Garnett and Topping in successive rounds have earned him the hackneyed sobriquet of "dark horse." He plays slowly and methodically and has achieved the downfall of his victims in a decisive manner. Despite his phenomenal performances thus far, experts give him little chance of adding the husky Californian to his list.

Beats Robb on Nineteenth.

Sweeney recorded a lop-sided 6-and-4 victory over Brig. Gen. A. C. Critchley in the morning and then staggered through against W. M. Robb on the nineteenth hole after dissipating a two-hole lead by fluffing approaches on the seventeenth and eighteenth. He stymied Robb on the first extra hole.

Before going down to defeat, Chapman scored a swift and decisive 6-and-4 victory over Olva Austreng and then was the victim of a 2-and-1 defeat at the hands of the highly regarded Eric Fiddian, who eliminated T. Suffern Tailer, jr., of Piping Rock, Long Island, yesterday. Topping nosed out Edward Kyle, 1 up, in the morning and was taken in the afternoon by Henriques, 4 and 3. Bullock-Webster was deposited on the sidelines by Morton Dykes, a young unknown, 4 and 2.

The day's toll included the ranking native favorites, Cyril Tolley, twice winner of the championship, and long-hitting Leslie Garnett. Tolley was beaten, 1 up, by Archie Goodwin and Garnett was eliminated by Henriques, 4 and 3. As the result of these developments, Fiddian is being looked upon as Britain's chief hope.

Sullivan-Baroni Duel Feature as Eastern Faces Roosevelt

Crucial Game Scheduled Today

By John R. Vosburg.

THOSE twin strikeout wizards, Lefty Joe Sullivan, of Eastern, and Frankie Baroni, of Roosevelt, will cast their Houdini-like spells over Eastern High field this afternoon, dueling for the interhigh championship in what promises to be the biggest pitching classic in interhigh history.

Over a background of three years Lefty and The Barrel have pitched themselves into a position high above the rest of the pack. Each of them has a strike-out average for three years of ten a game. Sullivan clinched his place in the interhigh hall of fame with his four straight victories in the series last year, carrying Eastern to the championship.

Second Duel Possible.

It took The Barrel a trifle longer, playing as he was for two years with a team markedly inferior to that supporting Sullivan. His strikeout talent, as well as his improvement in control, needed only his sensational performance of last week, however, when he fanned 21 Tech batters, to prove that he had finally found himself.

A victory for Baroni today would set the stage for a second duel with the great Sullivan. It will throw the Ruff Riders into a tie with Eastern, the defending champion, for first place in the series each with two victories and a loss. That third game would be another classic of the same proportions.

In Sullivan's favor it can be said that he has had better coaching with Walter Beall, former Yankee pitcher, and old Chief Guyon developing him. Baroni, on the other hand, has lacked the experienced coaching of his rival, despite the able assistance of Coaches Don (Deep Sea) Brown and Lynn Woodworth. To offset this, however, he has speed, which Sullivan, despite his rapid growth, has yet unattained. Sullivan is possibly a smarter pitcher, with a faultless change of pace and curve. He lacks a real fast ball and his drop is not in the class of Baroni's.

The Barrel rolls out sinkers, fast balls over any corner he wants them, and curves galore. It is difficult to see how he could be beat if he is anywhere near "right." On the other hand, who would want to make a choice against the brainy Sullivan?

Braddock 'Fights' Toughest Mates

we gonna get him in condition? I'm asking you!"

And you have to answer that they will either get James J. Braddock into condition or lay him away among the sweet peas.

The first thing one notices about Braddock is that he has grown and filled out amazingly. For the first time in his career he looks like a genuine heavyweight. He is big, strong, rough and tough. He weighs around 205 pounds now and they figure to take 10 pounds off his frame before they turn him loose against Baer for the great experiment.

This will bring him in at 195 pounds, which is some 20 pounds away from being a light-heavyweight. Right now they have him working out in heavy sweat shirts—two of them—and he stays in there for six rounds without a rest, fighting fresh men a round at a time, and they certainly do turn it on.

There is a delightful "What the hell!" atmosphere at this training camp. They all know they are taking a gamble around here, that they have nothing to lose and everything to win. They know Braddock is going to be hit some very painful punches and so they are letting him look at hard punches day in and day out in the hope that perhaps he will get used to them.

There is a theory that you can get used to everything. Personally, I don't know whether the system is good or bad. Braddock will either be able to withstand everything Baer has, or he will be punchy by the time he crawls through the ropes.

West Virginia School For Deaf Victor, 13-2

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Moorefield, W. Va., May 23.—Leslie Griffith yielded six scattered hits and struck out 12 batsmen as the West Virginia School for the Deaf scored its tenth victory of the season here over Moorefield High School. The score was 13 to 2.

It was Griffith's seventh win of the season as well as Romney's seventh consecutive triumph. By chalking up its tenth conquest, the 1935 team established a new record for school teams.

Scoring Change to Aid Eastern In High School Meet, Is Belief

THE margin by which Tech High is supposed to win the interhigh track and field meet this afternoon at Central Stadium has been shortened substantially by the system of counting a fifth place in the point totals. Some of those prominent in the scholastic sanctum view the new plan as a bigger drawback to Tech than a help, despite the Maroon's huge squad. The meet starts at 3:15 p. m.

Leaving little distinction between first and second place merits, the new regulation promises to cut considerably the tendency of Tech to sweep way ahead of the field on its first-place strength. The runner-up will get 4 points, raising the point power of the second place achievement to a new spot of influence. Consequently, Eastern's stock is raised to a new high this year.

Coach Artie Boyd probably is stronger in the middle-distance events than Coach Hap Hardell, of Tech, and with Long Ed Miller, the heavy favorite to take the high-jump title, certain to add some more points, the new rule further gives the Lincoln Parkers a substantial shove up toward the Tech stratosphere.

Miller is one of three and possibly four entrants given a chance of smashing any of the 16 records. The Eastern lad already has bettered the record, 6 feet ½ inch, by an inch and a half this year. Monroe Emmerich, in the low and high hurdles, is a heavy choice to set new marks in each event while Joe Peaslee, Eastern miler, is given a slight chance of setting a new record for the four-lap grind.

Phil Fox and Reds Craft, other Eastern middle distancers, appear ready to shift a few points from the Tech ledger to the Eastern point total. Tech's relay strength will bear little dispute but here again the new importance of second place will cut into the Tech first-place talent. In the sprints, Bogan, Lynch, Haskey, Thompson and Selinger give Tech some added point-power.

The fight for fourth place should be close between Roosevelt and Western. The Ruff Riders have George Simpson in the hurdles, big Spiro Kolius in the discus, Bill Marlowe, a point-winner in the sprints, with Maureen Seaver. Western's star is Jimmy Parks, a hurdle ace, but Brownie Sullivan in the javelin and Bob Greenwood in the sprints are among other prospective Western point-winners.

Brunswick Nine Takes County League Crown

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., May 23.—Brunswick, pennant winner of the southern division of the County High School League, defeated Walkersville, title holder of the northern division, for the championship of the county before a large crowd at Cadet Field, 22 to 1.

It was the first championship for Brunswick in six years and concluded the scholastic league for the season.

Blue Ridge Hunt Show on Saturday

200 Horses Entered for 42d Annual Event.

By the Associated Press.

Winchester, Va., May 21.—Approximately 200 entries are listed for the forty-second annual horse show of the Blue Ridge Hunt Club, which will be held Saturday in the grove adjoining Carter Hall, Gerard B. Lambert's estate near Millwood, Clarke County, it was announced today by Graham Dougherty, Philadelphia sportsman, who is manager of this year's exhibition.

Fifteen classes similar to those of a year ago are to make up the program. Silver cups have been donated for winners in each event. In addition, there will be four ribbons in each class.

Among the prominent breeders of hunters with entries listed are Dr. Lewis M. Allen, George H. Burwell, Miss Margaret Byrd, Mrs. Spencer Carter, Kenneth N. Gilpin, Mr. and Mrs. Abram S. Hewitt, Mrs. James R. Hubbard, Edward B. Jacobs, Miss Virginia Jacobs, Capt. Ewart Johnston, Maj. P. F. Meade, Benjamin O'F. Randolph, Ralph R. Richardson, Alexander Mackay-Smith, United States Remount Depot, Dr. Orvill Van Deusen, William B. Watkins, Miss Ellen R. Wheeler, the Wynormere Farms, the Misses Bedford, Green Farms of Connecticut, Graham Dougherty, Joseph W. Lewis, Mrs. John Hay Whitney, Daniel Sands, Arthur White, Gen. William Mitchell, Jack Skinner, Reginald Bishop, the Foxcroft School, Ernest Redmon and Louis Leith.

Allegany High Is Held To Four Hits, But Wins

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., May 23.—Allegany High School was limited to four hits by Garner ("Ding") Bell, but the Blue and White was able to ring up its eighth consecutive triumph of the season yesterday over Central High School of Lonaconing, 4 to 2.

Howard "(Slim") Nave played a leading role in preserving Allegany's unblemished record for the twentieth time since late in 1933 by holding the Orange and Black to five safeties and striking out 14.

British Women's Golf Gets Under Way Today

Newcastle, County Down, Ireland, May 23 (U.P.).—The British Women's Golf championship, only major European links competition which has never been won by an American, will start here tomorrow when a field of 92 plays the first of two qualifying rounds. The list contains the name of only one American, Grace Amory, of West Palm Beach, Fla., who also was the only United States contestant in 1934, when she was an early casualty.

Other overseas contestants included Ada MacKenzie, of Toronto Ontario, rated one of the "dark horses" of the tourney, and Kaye Farrell, of Vancouver, B. C.

Penn-Michigan Sign.

Philadelphia, May 23 (AP).—Announcement was made today that the University of Pennsylvania and University of Michigan football teams will meet in November 1937 and 1938. This will be a renewal of the two-year agreement to play this year and next.

Jones Meets Bezenah on Card Here

Baltimorean Is Signed as Silas, Tow Bouts Fail to Materialize.

By Bill McCormick.

"IT NEVER rains, but it pours," "Every cloud's a silver lining," "It's always darkest before the dawn."

These and several other well-worn old bromides were proven yesterday as a series of withdrawals shattered the preliminary card for the Buck Everett-Natie Brown boxing card next Monday and a stroke of good luck resulted in the card being reassembled—bigger and better than ever.

The first stroke of misfortune fell at exactly 1:22½ p. m. when Sid Silas, the New York welterweight scheduled to battle one Elmer Bezenah in a six-round preliminary on the Monday night show at Griffith Stadium, appeared before Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn.

Not Enuff, Walks Out.

"Fifty dollars—$50, mind ya," replied Ahearn. "An' dat's a werry, werry good price, dun't chaknow."

"S'not enuff," opined Silas, walking out of the door, the bout (and the local boxfight game so far as Ahearn is concerned).

Thus was ruined one of the preliminaries.

At exactly 1:25¾ p. m., Beverley May, manager of Bob Tow, the heavyweight who was scheduled to do 10 rounds of semifinal battling against one Norman Barnett, appeared before Matchmaker Ahearn.

Shoulder Injured.

"I'm sorry, Goldie," May spoke. "But Bob has just injured that right shoulder which kept him on the shelf for so many months. He won't be able to fight Barnett, or anyone else, Monday night."

Thus was disrupted another bout on the card.

At exactly 1:35 p. m. Ahearn was seized with a brilliant idea. At 1:36 p. m. he was burning up the telephone wires to Baltimore and at 1:37 p. m. he had signed Jimmy Jones, Baltimore's best welterweight prospect since Joe Dundee, to do eight rounds of semifinal battling against Elmer Bezenah.

Caught Off Guard.

"Selah!" opined Ahearn. "This is the silver lining. We've been trying to get Jones over here for a semifinal for months. We must have caught him off guard today, because the way he has been drawing as a main-bout performer in Baltimore, I never thought he'd come back here for a semi."

Jones, who is a brother of the sensational college boxer, Ivan Nedomatsky, of Maryland University, has been defeated only twice since entering the professional ranks. Jack Portney outfumbled him in a bout which set a new high for gate receipts in Baltimore, and Tony Dominguez is credited with a win over him. Jones reversed the decision over Dominguez in a return bout.

A total of 34 rounds now will make up the card Monday night. Everett and Brown are carded for 10 rounds on top, Jones and Bezenah for eight, Pete Bevans and Roy Manley for six, and Kirkwood Burke and Harry Vestra for four. Another six is in the making.

Wise Prince Wins In Hagerstown Test

conspicuous part in Wise Pete's victory and also piloted two other winners to annex the saddle honors for the day. When the start came, Booker hustled the son of Wise Counsellor and Miss Crestwood to the front and as the race was run it was all over except the pay-off.

The Wise Pete-Booker combination had a lead of four lengths going into the first turn. The boy looked back on the straightaway to determine his advantage and then sat tight for the remainder of the route. Small Change was making a mild bid in the stretch, but too late for anything except second money.

Presented With Trophy.

After the race, Mrs. Waugh was presented a silver cup by the Hagerstown Herald Mail, for which the feature event was named. Wise Pete was a $4.40 favorite.

Booker's other saddle successes came in second race aboard Nehallac, a $5.80 shot, and in the sixth race with Cartour, a $6.40 proposition in the betting.

Daily doubling for the day resulted in the smallest mutuel of the meeting for the popular twin wager. This Play and Stool Pigeon was the coupled combination and the pay-off was at the rate of $24.90 for each $2 investment.

The day was a bit cold, but the racing strip was in its fastest condition of the meeting.

Playground Meet Won By Hagerstown High

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., May 23.—The Hagerstown High School won the twenty-first annual playground athletic meet today here with 146 points. The Woodland Way Junior High was second with 140 points and South Potomac Junior High third with 94 points.

Two records were broken, the target pitch of 10 feet by W. Snyder, Williamsport High, and Hagerstown High second team won obstacle relay for girls in 1 minute 50 seconds.

U. S. C. Raises Money.

Los Angeles, May 23 (AP).—University of Southern California's contributions to send its track and field team to the I. C. A. A. A. A. championships at Cambridge, Mass., passed the $3,000 mark at noon today, assuring an entry of at least 18 men in the meet.

Alexandria and Wash.-Lee To Clash

ALEXANDRIA, Va., May 23.—Butcher Wood, veteran Alexandria High pitcher, will get the mound assignment against Washington-Lee High in tomorrow's Northern Virginia League game at Baggett's Field. The Northern Virginia title will be at stake. Alexandria has beaten Lee-Jackson, Fredericksburg and Nokesville, but has lost one game to Fredericksburg. Washington-Lee has fallen before the Twins, but has beaten Fredericksburg, Herndon, Falls Church and Manassas.

Pitching for a stronger team, Sullivan has won seven out of eight games in his interhigh career. He has appeared in nine. Baroni, who has pitched ten, was given credit for winning three of them and losing five of them. Two of the games which he lost, however, were a four-hit game he pitched against Central in 1933, and a five-hit game against Eastern.

Sullivan, who has pitched 77 2-3 innings, has allowed 64 hits and fanned 82 men. Baroni, in 71 1-3 innings, has allowed 69 hits and fanned 78. Errors contributed in losing several of Baroni's defeats, partly explaining how his run total is 42 and Sullivan's but 33. Earned-run averages are unavailable, except that Sullivan's, of last year, was 1.12, and Baroni's, 2.1.

The St. Mary's Celtics held a long batting drill and a 30-minute infield workout today for their invasion of West Point, where they meet the Chesapeake A. C., on Saturday and Sunday. Coach Kidwell has Doug Morgan, young southpaw, and Art Lacy, big right-hander, ready for duty. Art Benson, Bill Langford, Billy Lynch, Red Menniman, Gene Zimmerman, Ellet Cabell, Hamilton and Buddy Zimmerman will make the trip.

Butcher Wood and Puggy Heflin, stars with the Alexandria High nine this season, will join the American Legion Juniors after the Washington and Lee game tomorrow.

Happy Valley journeys to Fort Hunt Sunday afternoon for a game with the CCC nine at 2:30 p. m.

Ellett Cabell, the Celtics' outfielder, is leading local batters. He is hitting an even .600 for seven games.

Pepco Barry and Jim Titcomb, Celtic stars, may be lost to the team over the week-end. They are scheduled to make the trip to Front Royal with the NRA team Sunday.

Tigers Advance To Fourth Place

he lost much of his effectiveness toward the finish after six fine innings.

Drives in Three Runs.

Greenberg knocked in three Tiger runs, hitting his eighth home run of the season with Charley Gehringer on base in the fifth, and bringing in Pete Fox with the final run with a long fly in the seventh. He also made a couple of remarkable catches and stops of harshly hit balls around first base, cutting down at least three strong bids for extra-base hits, and completed an unassisted double play.

A foul tip of Rowe's bat in the ninth struck Rick Ferrell, Boston catcher, on the right thumb, and he was replaced by Moe Berg.

Cherner, Blue Flame Nines to Battle Sunday

THE Cherner Motor Co. and Blue Flame Valet Shop teams will have reached the critical stage in their drive for first-half pennant honors of the National City League Sunday, when these ranking contenders for The Post Association title clash on the north Ellipse diamond in a battle of survivorship.

The loser in Sunday's struggle will be virtually eliminated from the first-half race, or else his chances reduced to minimum unless the undefeated Pig 'n' Whistle and Murphy's 5 & 10 Store teams suddenly collapse.

Two colorful figures in the persons of John ("Handsome") Fitzgerald and garrulous Tony Burruto, opposing managers, will match baseball wits in the Cherner-Blue Flame fray. The outcome of the game, however, is more closely related on the pitching arms of Heinie Newman and Joe Stankus, two of the best hurlers in sandlot ranks today. If past performances run true to form, Sunday's game will more than likely develop into a personal contest of Newman vs. Stankus.

Looking over the respective lineups, Pilot Burruto appears to have the more formidable array of hitters. Burruto has Jessie Bowie, Joe Freschie, Jack Caspar and Eddie Cinotti, but Manager Fitzgerald can counter such with experienced men as Nathan Miller, Frank Carter, Joe Lee and Carlton Giovanetti, not to mention an inspiring wad of chewing tobacco always couched in the right jaw of Manager Fitz himself.

The standings will be shuffled quite a bit in Section B at the conclusion of the Stansbury-Warwick and Woodmen of the World-Distric Grocery Store frays.

The Columbian Insect League, organized under the guidance of young Joe Cohen, will open its season on June 8 with four games. During the first few weeks the games will be played on Saturdays until school closes, and after that on Tuesdays and Fridays. All games will be played on the Monument Grounds at 11 or 1 o'clock.

The teams will play each other twice in the competition for the several prizes to be awarded to the successful teams. Members of the league championship team will receive gold baseballs; the runner-up nine will be given silver miniature balls; the third-place team, bronze balls, while the teams in the next two positions will be awarded certificates. The league's leading batter and home-run hitter will receive prizes.

The following nines are entered: Boys' Pharmacy, Cubs, St. Anthony's A. C., Northwestern Boys' Club, Decatur A. C., Mohawks, Washington Flour Co. and Jake Powell A. C.

The Crimson Midgets seek games with teams in their class. Call Potomac 2321.

Loris Williams is on the outlook for a Saturday game for the North Washington team, to be played on the District Line diamond. Call Georgia 1359.

The undefeated Indianhead team added another victory to its list by trouncing the Virginia Machine Gunners, 18 to 4, behind the five-hit pitching of Bob Brown. For games with Indianhead phone Manager Wilroy at Indianhead, Md., Branch 142.

The Meridian A. C., boasting a winning record of ten straight victories, is seeking a strong opponent for Sunday. Call Metropolitan 6808 or 66807.

Ballston Plays Manassas Sunday

'Beat Driefus' Is Theme Song of Invaders; Both Clubs Have Punch.

WALTER RUDING'S Ballston nine will have a 3-ply objective in its impending clash with Manassas Sunday for the sectional league leadership of the Northern Virginia League, an affiliate of The Post Association.

With a confidence born of its 3-game winning streak, Ballston is hopeful of ousting Manassas from its joint tenancy in the top position of the Red section; it is more determined to break the hypnotic-like spell which Pitcher "Doc" Driefus seems to hold over the Ballston batters, and simultaneously with this accomplishment, to smash the Manassas jinx, which plighted Ballston in the several games between these rivals last season.

Ballston never yet has been able to beat Ike Dreifus, but Ruding and his gang will tell you that things will be different Sunday. The Ballston team is clicking. Booty McQuinn and Carl Wolverton are hitting the ball at a fast clip. The pitching triumvirate of Lem Owen, Calvin Hull and Duff, the gentleman from Winchester, has been very impressive. In short, "the whole team is playing a bang-up game," according to James Buchanan, league president.

Wurdeman Pounds Ball.

The Manassas team, too, appears to be stronger this season. The newfound slugging abilities of Jack Wurdeman, former Gallaudet College athlete, has added punch. Floyd Vetter and Buddy Brenner also have been getting a goodly share of the team's hits.

The acquisition of young Eddie Hammersly gives Ike Dreifus a chance to play in the outfield, where his hitting can be utilized more to advantage, but the former Tulane University star will draw the mound assignment for Sunday's battle with Ballston, you can be sure. Ike is just as anxious to victimize the Ballston tossers as they are to terminate his tyrannical reign.

LaSalle Institute Nine Victor Over Hyndman

Cumberland, Md., May 23.—Scoring all of their runs in two innings, LaSalle Institute scored a 9-1 victory over Hyndman High School yesterday at Community Park and gained revenge for an earlier 17-11 defeat.

Stock Trading Records Small Average Gain

Sugar Shares a Firm Spot; Rails and Utilities Lag.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 23.—With the fate of the bonus veto still in the hands of the Senate when the final gong ended stock market trading today, Wall street had put in another day with one eye cocked toward Washington and prices teetered narrowly.

While the upholding of the President's opposition to the Patman measure came too late to exert direct effect on prices, it was in line with most Wall Street expectations and a few traders backed their guess by continuing a campaign of selective purchasing during most of the day's session.

Following the trend of the recent past, most of the buying was concentrated in industrials and specialties, with the rails and utilities laggards. Oils, sugar shares, rubbers, chemicals and metals all had their firm points.

Stocks changed hands briskly, with turnover in the Stock Exchange aggregating 1,285,330 shares. The Associated Press average, however, with its gain of .1 of a point at 42.3, mirrored the restricted character of most price changes.

Sugar shares received a fillip from the 10-point advance in spot sugar to 3.35 cents a pound, and the lift in sugar futures to the highest since October, 1933.

Oversold Grain Causes Rise

Market Also Watches Financial Conditions in France.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 23.—An upward tilt became manifest in grain values today, with indications that the markets were at least temporarily oversold.

For the time being, a notable dearth of speculative offerings was apparent, and this was attributed more or less to market uncertainties unavoidable pending a Senate ballot on the bonus veto. Another bullish factor regarding wheat was attention given to financial conditions abroad, especially in France, and to sharp upturns of rates for British exchange.

Wheat closed firm, ¼-¾ above yesterday's finish, July 90¼-⅜, corn unchanged to ¾ up, July 81½-⅝, oats ⅞ off to ¼ advance and provisions showing a rise of 5 to 10 cents.

Despite better weather for corn planting, corn and oats prices reflected wheat market firmness. Provisions climbed with hog values and with grains.

Allegheny Steel Back To Good Times Level

New York, May 23.—There is a great undercurrent of optimism all along the line of business, as if it were making a real effort to break loose and rise, Harry E. Sheldon, president of Allegheny Steel Co., said here today. "Our business in the last four months has been the best for any similar period since 1930 and our outlook for the future is better than at any time since that date. We are now employing in excess of 4,400 men, or practically as many men as we employed at the peak in 1929," Mr. Sheldon declared.

Bankers Decide To Make Safe Public Funds

Advocate That Security Be Not Less Than Amount Involved.

Chicago, May 23.—The safeguarding of municipal and other public funds, deposited in banks or with trustees or other institutions, is the subject of a resolution made public here today by the Investment Bankers Association of America and adopted by the association's board of governors.

The resolution advocates that deposits of public funds be adequately secured by readily marketable collateral having a market value of not less than the amount of the funds so secured.

The resolution was proposed by the association's municipal securities committee in view of the fact that a number of defaults in municipal bonds were caused by failures of banks in which tax monies and other public funds had been deposited for payment of interest and principal on the bonds.

Collateral for securing such deposits should consist, whenever possible, the resolution recites, of United States Government bonds and general obligation bonds of political subdivisions which have power to levy ad valorem taxes.

Brokers' Loans Increase.

By the Associated Press.

Loans on securities to brokers and dealers held by weekly reporting member banks in New York City amounted to $865,000,000 during the week ended May 22, representing an increase of $39,000,000 for the week.

Market Moves Of the Day Seen In Brief Review

	Thurs.	Wed.
Advances	327	306
Declines	237	285
Unchanged	194	177
Total issues	758	768

Stocks—Price changes were small, with stocks holding firm through most of the session. Rails and utilities lagged somewhat. Sugars, oil and metals furnished the strong point. 1,285,330 shares were sold.

Bonds—Market was generally dull with about half the previous day's business. Most Federal issues declined slightly. $8,181,000.

Curb—Oil shares were leaders in increased trading volume. Sales were 270,000 for the session.

Grains—Oversold market and scarcity of offerings resulted in higher prices. May wheat closed at 89⅝, May corn at 88¼.

Cotton—Selling from Liverpool, the Continent and Far East drove cotton lower to net losses of 10 to 15 points. A slight rally preceded the close. May last at 11.93.

Sugar—Raw sugar was up 10 points to 3.35 while refined closed unchanged at 5.25 for fine granulated.

Coffee—Spot coffee was quiet. Rio No. 7 closed at 6⅞ and Santos No. 4 at 8¼.

London Sells Dollars On President's Veto

London, May 23 (AP).—Fear of currency expansion in the United States occasioned by the action of the House of Representatives in overriding President Roosevelt's veto of the Patman bonus bill caused general selling of dollars on the London Exchange in the forenoon.

The United States dollar weakened 3½ cents to the pound, being marked at 4.98¾ cents to the pound, compared with last night's official closing rate of 4.90½.

Offerings were fairly persistent as the market indicated its apprehension over the possibility of similar action in the Senate. Gold currencies weakened in sympathy.

Montreal Silver Futures.

AUCTION SALES

WEDNESDAY, MAY 29, 1935—
ADAM A. WESCHLER & SON, Auctioneers.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 6316, folio 213, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-NINTH DAY OF MAY, 1935, AT 5:00 O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described property in the District of Columbia, to wit: Lot 102 in square 5077 of the subdivision called "Hillbrook," as per plat recorded in the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber County 21, at folio 14; subject to the covenants running with the land.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash, balance in equal installments, represented by promissory notes of purchaser payable in 3 years, with interest at 6 per cent per annum from day of sale, payable semi-annually, secured by first deed of trust upon property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $250.00 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within 10 days from day of sale, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after 5 days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

I will sell at public auction in Alexandria, Va., in front of the city hall at TWELVE O'CLOCK NOON, SATURDAY, MAY 25TH, to finally settle the estate of the late Joseph Broders, the following properties: Three valuable old houses on Cameron street and valuable old home at 107 N. Fairfax street.

These properties are very large buildings and can be developed at a small cost as good investment property or as residences. They are close to historic Braddock House. Gadsby's Tavern, George Washington's office, and are among the oldest houses of our city.

If you are interested in development of property or acquiring old homes that have a future it would be wise to inspect these properties and attend this sale.

In attending sales of this character bargains are to be obtained, as the property must be sold for cash in order to finally settle this estate.

JAMES REED DUNCAN,
Attorney for Broders Estate.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 29, 1935—
ADAM A. WESCHLER & SON, Auctioneers.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 6316, folio 211, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-NINTH DAY OF MAY, 1935, AT 5:00 O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described property in the District of Columbia, to wit: Lot 101, in square 5077 of the subdivision called "Hillbrook," as per plat recorded in the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia, in Liber County 21, at folio 14; subject to the covenants running with the land.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash, balance in equal installments, represented by promissory notes of purchaser payable in three years, with interest at 6 per cent per annum from day of sale, payable semi-annually, secured by first deed of trust upon property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $250.00 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within 10 days from day of sale, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

MILBURN J. DONOHOE,
JAMES A. DONOHOE,
Trustees.

I will sell at public auction in Alexandria, Va., in front of the city hall at TWELVE O'CLOCK, NOON, SATURDAY, MAY 25TH, to finally settle the estate of the late Joseph Broders, the following properties: Three valuable old houses on Cameron street and valuable old home at 107 N. Fairfax street.

These properties are very large buildings and can be developed at a small cost as good investment property or as residences. They are close to historic Braddock House, Gadsby's Tavern, George Washington's office, and are among the oldest houses of our city.

If you are interested in development of property or acquiring old homes that have a future it would be wise to inspect these properties and attend this sale.

In attending sales of this character bargains are to be obtained, as the property must be sold for cash in order to finally settle this estate.

JAMES REED DUNCAN,

Jane Addams.

Jane Addams! . . . what a life the name recalls!
A life that all the saints in Heaven bless,
And as the curtain in the shadows falls
A world is made to feel its pettiness!

Born in the days of Lincoln, your life spanned
The era of the old and of the new;
You saw and knew and touched the virgin land
And slaved to make your dreams of it come true.

From Cedarville, a country town, you came
Their flags today in tribute are unfurl'd.

A girl of education, raised in ease,
You knew the gay, the brighter side of life,
And shunned it gladly that you might appease
The anguish in a world of pain and strife.

Pale hands stretched out . . . a feeble cry of "Bread" . . .
To these you gave much more than sympathy;
For people in despair your great heart bled——
You served with one who walked in Galilee.

Yours was a kinship with the lowly, meek——
No service or devotion was too much;
A symbol you became to all the weak——
The peoples of the earth all felt your touch.

Hull House! . . . what service to mankind it meant!
Its benefits no printed words can paint;
You gave your life to it, and mind intent——
For 50 years you were its patron saint.

Narcotics, slums, oppression and all vice
You fought for 50 years with tooth and nail;
You knew the scourge of war, you knew the price,
And fought for peace, for God and Holy Grail!

No movement that would bind the wounds of man
But knew Jane Addams in its foremost ranks;
And all the nations of the planet can
On bended knee pay homage and give thanks.

* * * *

"I had a splendid night . . . I'm better now." . . .
"Water? Of course . . . It feels so cool, you know." . . .
Through weeks of pain your spirit would not bow——
You knew no fear when it was time to go.

L'Envoi.

How like a beacon your fine life will stand
Against this age of vain, self-seeking ways!
How petty seem the great ones of our land
As on your consecrated life we gaze!

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Consolation — By Harry J. Tuthill

Yes George, I'll confess I was snippy when you told that yarn about my natives here being wild men, but I was tired and...
Snippy? You? To me? Are you serious, Ches?
Living as I have for years...alone....piling up money hand over fist, owning islands, gold, silver, jewels, and all for what? What?
Ahem! Well Ches, things could always be worse.
Seeing your family makes me fear that I, who planned so carefully, have overlooked something. Do you realize, George, that I have neither chick nor child...that I'm all alone in the world?
Oh don't say alone, Ches.
It's true! Who have I to carry on my dreams...to guard the wealth and position I have now? Who?
No situation is ever hopeless, Ches. I'll admit we're faced with a big problem, but don't forget....every cloud has a silver lining.

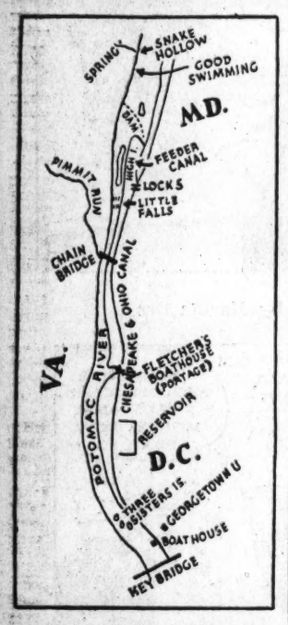
Canoeing Trip, Swim and Hike Set for Sunday

Wanderbirds Plan to Paddle Up Canal to Snake Hollow on Potomac.

By Robert Shosteck.

Sunday the Wanderbirds go by canoe up the historic and picturesque Chesapeake & Ohio Canal from Key Bridge to Snake Hollow on the Potomac River opposite Glen Echo. After 6 miles of paddling through a delightful region, the canoesits will have an opportunity to take a swim in the river and hike to the old Soapstone Quarry and Eagle Rock.

Club members and readers of The Washington Post planning to go on this trip will meet at the Great Falls boathouse at 10 a. m. Take the Rosslyn car to Thirty-fourth and M streets, or the Georgetown car to Thirty-sixth street and Prospect avenue, and walk to Thirty-sixth and M streets, crossing the footbridge over the canal. The boathouse is about one block up the towpath. Those coming by automobile can park at the end of K street or at Thirty-sixth and M streets. Two and four-passenger canoes may be rented for 75 cents a day and no deposit is required. Every effort will be made to have an experienced canoeist in the stern of each boat. Bring lunch and a cup for water. Wanderbirds who prefer to hike may follow along the towpath to High Island, continuing to Glen Echo or Cabin John.



Paddle for 5 Miles.

Leaving the somber spires of Georgetown University behind them, the group will paddle leisurely along the canal for nearly 5 miles. Many interesting aquatic plants will be seen along the route, and the painted turtle, the most gaudily colored of our terrapins, will be spotted frequently, sunning itself on logs or feeding in the rank growth along the shore.

Approaching Chain Bridge we pass the rotting hulks of barges, which in the early part of the nineteenth century were the strong rivals of the railroads in carrying coal from western Maryland mines to Washington. Since the closing of the canal in 1924 most of these huge scows have been allowed to rot along the side of the canal, while some have been repaired and are now the homes of squatter families.

About a mile beyond Chain Bridge the group will reach Lock 5, opposite the lower end of High Island. The canoes will be portaged into the feeder canal which leads into the Potomac above the dam. Giant sycamores lean precariously over the canal and delicate swaying willows and poplars line the banks of this bayou-like feeder. On the left High Island rises abrutly to a height of 125 feet, the gray wells of igneous rocks almost covered with lichens and rock ferns.

Cross to Virginia.

We enter the broad Potomac just above the dam and cross the river to the Virginia shore, landing at a cottage in the vicinity of Snake Hollow. A fine spring is located but a short distance up a small brook, and the soapstone quarry is but a half mile upstream. Eagle Rock, a high promontory overlooking the river, offers the best possibility for a short hike. Warm weather and the fine beach may tempt a few hikers to take a swim in the Potomac.

Leaving about 4 p. m., the group will return by the same route as far as Fletcher's boathouse. Here one can portage to the Potomac River via a short path to the inlet.

Tomorrow the Wanderbirds hikers will tour the foreign plant introduction gardens of the Department of Agriculture, at Glenn Dale, Md. Mr. Gunning, the superintendent, has offered to furnish a guide who will point out the more interesting plants which Uncle Sam's explorers have collected. Buses will leave the Post Building at 2 p. m., returning about 7 p. m. The hike will be short and hiking clothes are not essential. The round-trip fare will be 45 cents and reservations must be made at Nat. 4200 by noon on Saturday.

Bill Richardson will lead Sunday's Red Triangle hike along the Billy-goat Trail from Carderock to the Angler's Club, a distance of five miles along the Potomac gorge. The group will meet at Fifteenth street and Constitution avenue at 2 p. m. and the cost of transportation will be 15 cents.

The Department of Agriculture Hiking Club plans a short trip in the vicinity of Marshall Hall on Sunday. The group will take the 9 o'clock boat and the hike will start about 9:30, shortly after the boat docks at the resort. The round-trip boat fare is 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children.

The GAME of LIFE

By Priscilla Wayne

Ellen Mallory married Michael Dale against her mother's wishes. The first rift between the young couple occurred when Ellen went back to her job to help pay her mother's debts. The breach widened when Ellen saw Mike with Marjorie Hutton and was forced to believe that the gossip about them was really true. She refused to let Mike explain and went home to her mother instead. At Mrs. Mallory's urging, Ellen filed a divorce suit, only to withdraw it when she discovered she was going to have a baby. But the half-hearted attempt to patch up their marriage hasn't succeeded even after Michael, jr., is born. Then Marjorie returns to town with the openly avowed purpose of winning Mike, and the news arouses Ellen's old suspicions. One night Ellen goes to Mike's office to attempt a reconciliation and there sees him—with Marjorie.

ELLEN turned and fled from the scene. She wanted one thing only—to get away, to put distance, much distance, between herself and the sight of Michael. The sight of Michael and Marjorie. If she lived to be a hundred, Ellen knew she could never forget that scene. Marjorie in her new spring suit, Marjorie with her hand coyly upon Michael's arm.

For hours they had been together there in the office. Michael had telephoned home. He couldn't be home for dinner—there was a stress of work. He had to work. It was the old, old alibi. So many married men have told it to so many jealous wives—yes, the old, old alibi.

Somehow, on the wings of despair, Ellen reached home. She was determined she would pack what she needed of her own and baby Mike's clothing. And then she would go home to Mama.

Would File Suit.

Afterward there would be time enough to decide what she could do. Plenty of time to go back to work. Plenty of time to file another divorce suit. Yes—plenty of time—in the long heartbreak of a life without the man she loved.

But of one thing Ellen was determined. Never again could she sleep under Michael Dale's roof. That part of her life was definitely over.

She had hastily packed the few things she and the baby would need when Michael came home.

Afterward Ellen knew she had been too hasty, knew that she had been unfair to her husband in almost every difference they'd had in their brief married life.

Ellen heard Michael drive into the yard. Even then, through the wild torment of jealousy that was driving her almost wild she was calm enough to wish that she might hold her tempestuous thoughts in leash. Might talk it over calmly and with reason.

Ellen scarcely heard Michael open the door, turned only when he spoke, standing there in the doorway of their bedroom. Mike's voice trembled a little as he spoke. "Ellen, you—you saw?"

"Yes."

"Ellen, I came home right away. I want to explain to you I can explain——"

"It won't be necessary Michael. I don't want you to explain. Our marriage was headed for this. There isn't any explanation that I want to listen to."

Oh, she knew she was unfair. Fought herself to be reasonable. But the jealous memory of Marjorie would not fade.

Pleaded With Her.

"Ellen you've got to listen. It isn't fair to me, it isn't fair to our child—Ellen, it isn't fair to yourself——"

"It's bad taste, Michael," Ellen said with pointed sarcasm, "for you to worry about being fair to me. If you'd wanted to be fair to me you needn't have telephoned about the work you had to do. You could just have said that you wanted to meet Marjorie Hutton. I would have understood—perhaps even better than you thought."

"Ellen, before God I had to work. I didn't know that Marjorie Hutton was coming to the office. I didn't——"

Ellen raised her hand to silence him. "Michael, please.' Must we go into that? Perhaps it would be just as well to tell it only once—to the court."

"Then you mean—to divorce me?"

Can't Do It.

"Yes."

Michael strode across the room, stood by the little bed, staring down at the sleeping baby. "You can't divorce me, Ellen," he said at last. "You can't divorce me, Ellen. I won't let you."

"You can't stop me, Michael!" Ellen said at last. "There's no sense beating around the bush. We—we don't love each other. Everything was over—between us—long before Michael was born. I can't go on with it any longer. I want a divorce, Michael. I want my maiden name back. I want to do some of the things I've always longed to do."

"And the baby?"

Ellen looked up, startled. "Why—why, Mike, he'll go with me. He's my baby, Mike. You couldn't—oh you wouldn't try to take him away from me?"

"He's my baby, too," Michael said slowly. "I won't fight your divorce, Ellen—if you're determined to have it I guess I can't stop you. But Michael's my child, too. I haven't done anything wrong. You can't take him away from me."

Home to Mother.

And there at that point, although the argument went on for a long time, it had to stay.

The next day Ellen took the baby and went to her mother's home. She left a note for Michael. In it she explained the conclusions at which she had arrived during the long, lonely night.

"I'll not file for divorce until you ask me to file, Michael. And when I file it will only be when you have agreed that I can keep little Michael. But I can't go on with you any longer."

It was just, as he had suspected all along, that their hasty marriage had been a mistake—a hasty, ill-timed mistake for which he had been largely responsible. And poor little baby Michael was the real sufferer. That was the way of life, it seemed. the innocent suffer and the guilty go free, too many times.

Mother Was Delighted.

Mama was frankly delighted that Ellen had come home. She truly loved her baby grandson and she was genuinely sincere in saying that she would be only too glad to take care of him.

"You can go right back to work, Ellen. I haven't the least doubt that the Bensons will be tickled pink to have you. I met Mrs. Benson the other day and she told me they'd been having a terrible time with stenographers. She says that you spoiled them, Ellen."

The Bensons were glad to have Ellen back. "It's just as well, Ellen," Mrs. Benson said. "I've often told Mr. Benson you were never cut out to be a wife and mother."

"No," faintly—it was interesting to hear what others thought of one. "What then?"

"Well, you're a natural-born office manager. That's what you ought to do. And on the other side there's tennis. If you were a girl of mine I'd insist that you go back to your tennis. You had fame, and maybe even a fortune, right within your grasp and you threw it away to get married to a man so good looking that the women will always be running after him."

And Mrs. Benson grinned as she noted how her conversational shaft had struck home. Mama had suggested that she say those very things to Ellen once she got the chance and neither of the older women had guessed that the chance would come so soon.

She took to going past the school tennis courts, watching the play, and offering an occasional bit of advice to some of the youthful players who treated her as a veteran at the game and listened so respectfully that it gave her the championship thrill all over again.

It was on a later afternoon that she met Ben Milford, the football coach at the Fairhaven High School. He was a slender, good-looking man of about her age and he had won honors for himself in the world of tennis.

Fun in Prospect.

Ben Milford was delighted. He had wanted to meet young Mrs. Dale, the famous Ellen Mallory who had won from a most sensational field. The match had been held in his own home city. He had watched Ellen's game and gloried in it.

He told her so in no uncertain glowing terms.

"We'll have a great time," Ellen promised. "I'm fearfully out of practice, but if you'll bear with me I'll get brushed up again, and will we ever play!"

Evening after evening they played. And often to a gallery. It was a joy to see Ellen's graceful swing and her face lighted with the joy of the game she loved.

Mary Dale worried about it. "I'm afraid, John," she said one night as they rode by and Dr. John parked his car for a minute. "I'm afraid that things will never again be right with the young people."

Mrs. Dale Worried.

"I've thought of it often," Dr. John admitted heavily. "When Ellen was still with Mike I didn't worry so much. They're young and I thought the baby would hold them together until such a time as they both came to their senses."

"But they aren't coming to their senses, John. And I'm worried. Take Ellen there—and this young Milford——"

"They're just interested in tennis, dear. They have a lot in common."

"But that's the point, John, dear. Don't you see? And Ellen's lonely—and here's young Milford—right on the job of making her forget. Oh, I tell you I don't like it, dear."

The old doctor started the car. He had healed the body of many a client. He sighed to think that no physician, other than the Great Physician, is wise enough to heal souls.

"We'll have to let the children work out their own lives, Mary," he said sadly.

On the Air Today

By Katherine Smith.

Two international broadcasts head today's special events, with the marriage ceremony in Stockholm Cathedral uniting Prince Frederic of Denmark and Princess Ingrid of Sweden. This is heard on both networks—WMAL at 5:24 a. m. and WJSV at 5:25 a. m.

A concert at the king's request, of "representative British music" is broadcast from Albert Hall, London—another jubilee celebration—and picked up at 4 p. m. by WMAL. The concert includes numbers for orchestra, chorus and various soloists.

Guests and jests:

Bill Terry, manager and first baseman of the New York Giants, is on College Prom, WMAL, 7:30 p. m.

Warner Baxter stars in Hollywood Hotel, WJSV, 8 p. m.

"Ding" Darling, cartoonist and chief of Biological Survey, is on the Farm and Home Hour, WMAL, 12:30 p. m.

Louis Hector and other members of the Sherlock Holmes stories cast are interviewed by Nellie Revell, WRC, 4:30 p. m.

Bea Lillie plays a sergeant of the police patrol and a theatrical producer, WMAL, 8 p. m.

The Singing Lady tells the life story of Helen Hayes, with Miss Hayes as the studio guest, WMAL, 4:30 p. m.

Detroit's Musical Festival concerts start today when 5,000 public school children are heard in choral, orchestral and band ensembles on WMAL, 2:30 p. m. Later concerts are scheduled for next Sunday, Saturday, June 1, and Sunday, June 2.

A large complaint is registered by one radio fan. Says she, "So Stoopnagle and Budd have a sponsor, and now WJSV won't carry their Friday night broadcasts. It's a shame, too, because they are about the only good things on the air now."

WJSV explains that they have a commercial at that time. Radio Fan still thinks it's a shame.

Students at Catholic U. To Open Exhibit Today

Engineering and biology students at Catholic University today will open a scientific exhibit in which they will demonstrate the many pieces of apparatus used in research. The engineering exhibit will be in the department headquarters in St. John's Hall and the biology display will be on the third floor of McMahon Hall.

Opening at 2 p. m., the shows will continue through Sunday. The halls will be open until 10 p. m. each night.

The Herbarium, containing 50,000 sheets of mounted biological specimens will be part of the exhibit. Visitors to the engineering display will see many intricate electrical instruments, including oscillographs, stroboscopes, the homodyne and many others.
